EIGHTH ROYAL RIFLES.

The St. Joseph Ranges presented a very lively appearance on Saturday, 17th inst., at the usual weekly practice of the 8th Royal Rifles. There were over thirty men from the 8th R. R., "B" Battery and 17th. The day was such as to gladden the heart of the rifleman, there being a magnificent light with steady right wind. The scoring was extremely high, the following being the scores over 70 made by the 8th:—

Sgt. Douglas.....	30	34	28	92	Corp. Hawkins.....	30	19	29	78
C.-Sgt. Goudie.....	28	22	31	81	Pte. Murgatroyd.....	25	28	23	76
Sgt. Morgan.....	26	29	26	81	Lieut. Davidson.....	20	21	25	75
Pte. Fraser.....	27	29	24	80

C.-Sergt. Goudie on Friday afternoon, the 16th, at St. Joseph Ranges, in the presence of several spectators, made the fine score of 95 with a M. H. rifle, with 31 at 200, the possible 35 at 500, and 29 at 600 yards.

Captain Lydon, of the fifth Royal Scots, was presented last week with an address and a handsome gold watch, chain and locket, by the non-commissioned officers and men of the corps. The presentation was made by Quartermaster-Sergeant Deacon. Captain Lydon in the course of his reply said it would be no fault of his if they ever fought in Canada under any other flag than the Union Jack. He advised the men to do their duty by that glorious old flag, and by attention to drill show that it was impossible for any other to wave in Canada.

Gleanings.

Some important experiments are now being carried out at Lidsing, near Chatham, the encampment of the balloon detachment of the corps of Royal Engineers, with a new balloon and parachute, intended for military purposes, the invention of Lieut.-Col. Templar, the senior officer of the Balloon Department.

A Fort Hays, U.S., correspondent writes: "Our post commander has inaugurated quite a useful scheme in announcing the uniform of the day by means of different flags displayed in front of the commanding officer's headquarters daily at 8 a.m. A white flag indicates undress uniform; a blue flag, straw hats, blue blouses and white trousers; red flag, overcoats, and no flag, full dress. The camp colour displayed means dress parade."

A lecture on "Forage for Military Purposes," was delivered at the Royal United Service Institution June 14th, by Mr. George Fleming, C.B., LL.D., F.R.C.V.S., principal veterinary surgeon of the army. Gen. Sir C. P. Beauchamp Walker, K.C.B., vice-president, was in the chair. Having referred to his previous lecture on this subject and the inutility of concentrated food and essences, the speaker went on to remark that the natural food of horses, oats and hay, should, as far as possible, be provided during a campaign, but prepared in such a way as to make it portable, fit for keeping, and ready for issue without waste. He commended crushed and compressed oats and chopped hay compressed into trusses.
