

The survey of U.S. industry associations showed that Canada is viewed as a capable supplier of furniture to the U.S. market. Canadian furniture is perceived to be competitive with U.S. products. Canadian manufacturers may have the competitive edge for upholstered furniture and have available furniture designs in high demand (e.g., European-type) as well as flexibility in design.