

And now, dear Reader, excuse me if I leave you. You were present at the friendly farewell handshakings on the New York side; but on this Liverpool quay I see a face that I have not looked upon for five months, and having a great deal to say to the owner of it, I will politely bow you out first.

