B.C. WILL INVESTIGATE CONDITION OF ABATTOIRS

Public Attention Drawn to Them by Warning Letter to Greenwood People.

Vancouver, B.C., June 27 .- (Special.) -This province has resolved to investigate conditions in abattoirs. A resolution was presented to the legislature at the last session by Mr. Hawthornthwaite, member for Nanaimo, and carried with this end in view. The resolution read:

Whereas the condition of certain private slaughter houses in this province is such as to endanger the health of the com-

Therefore, be it resolved, that in the opinion of this house the government should take immediate consideration some method that will remedy this condition of affairs.

Mr. Hawthornthwaite speaking in support of the resolution said that so much of the time lately had been taken up in discussions on Kaien Island and other contentious matters, that things of more vital importance to the welfare of the people had been

This matter was of the greatest importance to the health of the people. and it was well known that the condition of slaughter houses in this province was not what it should be. It would at the same time be incorrect to say that all private slaughter houses were not properly conducted. In fact he knew that most of them were handled very carefully, and with a view to protecting public health. He knew it was so in his own town, where the inspector's report on the premises of Messrs. Hemans & Wamsley, showed theirs to be one of the very best institutions of the kind in the pro-

Points the Moral. To show that in British Columbia we were by no means free from dangers of this kind, he read a letter from E. W. Dynes, of Greenwood, a wellknown and respectable man who was undoubtedly incited by honest and conscientious motives in writing this letter, and drawing public attention to it in this way.

Dynes' letter is addressed to residents of Greenwood and vicinity, and "Many of you, no doubt, remembe, the plague of hog-cholera that prevailed in the vicinity of Greenwood during the summer of 1903, and that Dr. Armstrong, Dominion government veterinary surgeon, quarantined hogs on two ranches, and that these hogs were afterwards killed and burnt by Co.'s slaughter house were also diseased. I was at this time in their employ and therefore had an opportunity of knowing something of the conditions that prevailed.

From about the tenth of April until early in August, three car loads of hogs, all more or less diseased, were killed and sold. Hog corrals were carefully looked over daily, and if any hogs showed symptoms of disease at first opportunity they were killed and dressed for the market. In pursuing this course, the loss sustained by the company was very small. At times, however (so quickly would they sicken and die), two or three would be found dead in the evening, altho, that same morning, all that had appeared sickly or diseased had been killed. At this time, the local officials were greatly concerned lest the public should in some way learn of the conditions pre

"As I stated in the first part of my letter, Dr. Armstrong, Dominion gov-ernment V. S., quarantined hogs on two ranches in the vicinity of Greenwood, which were afterwards destroyed by order. But, the curious fact is, how he learned of the disease being prevalent on these two ranches without knowing that the hogs at P. Burns & Co.'s slaughter house were also diseased. However, the fact that in one millions at their back, might probably explain the mystery.

Simple Surgical Operation on Few Scholars Leads to Startling Rumor.

New York, June 27.—Because of a report circulated among parents in the lower east side to-day, that the pupils attending the eight public schools in that district were having their throats cut in the schools, thousands of angry, parents to-day surrounded the buildings and fought their way into them to rescue their children.

A large force of policemen was sent from three stations to restore order. The majority of pupils in the eight schools had to be dismissed to appeare their frantic mothers and fathers. Doctors from the board of health called at the schools yesterday and removed from a number of children's mouths adenoids, a fungus growth at the back of the mouth and nose.

The operation is simple and harmless It is supposed that this was what caused the dire rumor spread abroad this morning. The panic spread until 15 schools, with 25,000 children, were closed for the day.
