THE HANDSPRINGS HAVE BEGUN.

Major Macdonald has not yet been in office a week, but it is already evident that a mighty change has taken place. Engineer Rust is one of those who have begun to work in the handsprings.

The conference between the Mayor and City Solicitor and the Attorney-General re the case against the Consumers' Gas Company is at an end. The activity of the new administration, the Ontario Government has been impressed into the service of the city.

As a consequence of this new vigor, ex-Mayor John Shaw and Auditor Trew, appointed by him, began yesterday the submission of the city's case against the Metropolitan Railway.

The submission of the city's case against the Metropolitan Railway was decided on during the late administration. It is true, but Mayor Shaw only acted because a hand-spring administration was in sight.

The city's victory over the Metropolitan Railway is a victory of the new idea that the people, and not the corporations, are the rulers.

The officials of the City Hall, from caretaker to cellarer, are all turning handsprings in their endeavor to keep up with the procession, and to give the public a show for its money.

And this is only the first week of the new regime!

CHASE HIM OUT! The disloyal article in La Semaine Religieuse is something to be very regretted by people both of French and English tongue in this country, and we trust that we have seen the last of this kind of writing in Canada.

The author of it is said to be a member of a religious order in the Province of Quebec, who was born in France. We have an impression that a good deal of the kind of writing that exists in this country may exist in Quebec against that province.

Quebec has its origin in men who were born in France, and who have settled in Quebec. It might, therefore, be just as well if the province of Quebec were to be in the public interest.

cities. In Montreal the practice is for a mason, a carpenter or a plumber and some body who has either capital or a lot, to form a little syndicate among themselves to buy a lot, to put in their own work, and with a little borrowed money, erect a modern house divided into from three to ten complete and separate compartments, some of the suites containing three rooms, others six and so on. These apartments are fitted up with every convenience, such as each suite having its own bathroom and kitchen, a supply all over of hot and cold water, first-class heating, and can be rented by people of very moderate income. As a result of these houses, quite a number of people who have homes in other places come to the city and go into houses kept by their children or other relatives who may be attending school or engaged in some other occupation. Every house of this kind, we are informed, is leased in Montreal as soon as it is finished.

There is an opportunity in Toronto for some such similar enterprise, and we direct the attention of builders, architects and others to the chance that is offered them here. Bond-street, and University-street, would be good streets on which to make the experiment. Lots on these streets can be had at a very reasonable price, and would accommodate a large number of people seeking to avoid street car fares and be near the centre. Every day the real estate men say they come across people looking for apartment houses of this kind and that they are unable to supply them. The World would be glad to receive and publish any suggestions on this line that our readers may care to send in.

SINGLE FARE AND THROUGH CARS. The court has decided that the Railway Commission has no jurisdiction over the streets of the city of Toronto; that if the Metropolitan desires to make a connection with the C.P.R., it will have to obtain the necessary right of way on Yonge-street from the city corporation. This is the decision of Judge Falconbridge, and there is no reason to apprehend that his decision will be overruled by a higher court, if the railway company decides to appeal the case. At any rate, this is the law of the land for the time being, and the Metropolitan Railway will have to get the necessary right of way on Yonge-street from the city corporation. This is the decision of Judge Falconbridge, and there is no reason to apprehend that his decision will be overruled by a higher court, if the railway company decides to appeal the case. At any rate, this is the law of the land for the time being, and the Metropolitan Railway will have to get the necessary right of way on Yonge-street from the city corporation.
