Baseball Red Sox Just Last To Beat Dodgers 6-5 Grand Circuit More Records At Lexington

DODGERS WILL HAVE CONFIDENCE TODAY

That Ninth Innings Rally Demonstrated That Red Sox Are Not Invincible.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 7.—It was a very fortunate thing for the National League contingent, players and rooters alike, that the Dodgers were able to put on their ninth-innings rally.

If they had gone out in the last chapter as easily as the others, the remainder of this world's series would have been an empty formality. As it is, they are bound to gain confidence from the happenings of the stirring final frame and come back on Monday more formidable than they were today.

on Monday more formidable than they were today.

Until the last-ditch stand, that came so close to changing the complexion of the game and robbing the Red Sox of their victory. Brooklyn was about as thoroly beaten a club as could be imagined. Not only were Robinson's men far behind in the score when the eighth round ended, but they had been completely outclassed. The American Leaguers had literally played rings around them, and made the game so lopsided as to be ridiculous. Had matters ended here, the visitors would have been remembered as perpetrators of one of the worst exhibitions ever foisted on a world's series crowd.

The Brooklyn players say that they are not a big discouraged over the defeat. On the contrary, they assert that they did not find Boston so tough as they had expected. They admitted that the infield had an off-day, but promise better work in future. They have every confidence that Coombs', intelligence and courage would see him thru the second game, and that Marquard will be a winner the next time out, with decent support

WHENPITCHER SHORE LOST ALL CONTROL of the worst exhibitions ever folated on a world's series crowd.

The Red Date had innings that was were than any charged against the enemy; but the Carrigans fall was due to bad pitching, and not to any structural weakness in the club itself. Robinson's fourtiff revealed several bad flaws and no real indication, except when Shore lost the location of the plate.

With the game apparently won, the Carrigan clan began to wabble, led by Pitcher Ernest Shore, and before the last Brooklyn batter had been retired, amid a sigh of relief that could be heard across Massachusetts Bay, the Superbas had a massed four tallies and appeared upon the verge of wresting the initial games away from the American Leaguers.

This surprising break, which the invading team from Greater New York was quick to take advantage of, was the feature of an otherwise rather ordinary to baseball game. Before the threatening rush of the Superbas developed in their final turn at bat, the contest appeared to indicate that the Boston players would swing thru to easy conquest, and the startling break in the steady work of the local club furnished the thrill needed to fix the memory of the struggle in the iminds of the fans, without leaving a sting, since the Red Sox were able to check the rush of their rivals just when victory appeared to be turning into defeat.

The National League contenders were not lacking in either spirit or playing tactics, but their hit-and-run offence was, on the whole, easy for the Red Sox to solve and turn back. There was also a noticeable lack of speed on the part of several of the Brooklyn players, which, combined with poor judgment as to who should handle batted balls at certain critical moments of the game, put Boston men on bases instead of turning the plays into outs. plays into outs.

Pfeffer was the wildest of the four pitchers, 10 balls being called against him in one innings, while Marquard's average of bad ones, including the four that he purposely handed Cady early in the game, was a little over six to the round, and Shore's just over four.

Toronto Fans Root for the Dodgers

Unusual interest was centred locally in the world's series. Besides giving the score by innings in most of the theatres, three score boards were patronized by crowds on Saturday afternoon. At the Star Theatre every seat was taken, and there was rooting before the Paragon like at a real ball game. At the Arena, the Manikins caught on immensely, and the contrivance worked splendidly. There was a good attendance.

At Massey Hall, the assembly included many ladies, who were given quick and accurate returns on the Nokes electric board.

WORLD'S SERIES AT MASSEY HALL

There was a very large attendance of local "fans" at Massey Hall on Saturday afternoon to witness the first game of the world's series and all were well pleased with the reproductions of the game upon the Nokes Electrascore Board. Excitement ran high thru the entire game, but particularly so in the ninth innings, when the score became so close. Today being a holiday and with Boston winners of the first game, there will be a great desire to witness the second game. Manager Withrow has everything in reediness to handle a large crowd that will surely attend the game at Massey Hall.

Royal Canadians and the crack 20th Century team of Hamilton meet today at the Broadview Field at 3 p.m. in the official wind-up of the amateur baseball season. The 20th Century team won the inter-city title last year from the Kendons, but the Royals promise to make a strong bid for the honors this year. Norman Lutz, the star hurler of the Hamilton team, recently pitched a nohit, no-run game, and is said to be ripe for higher company. Ramsay, the Royals hope, is going better than ever, and his feat of striking out the side with the bases chocked against the strong Mouse Club in the final for the city title stamps, him as one of the best. Dinny Maguire will handle the game, which promises to be a fitting closing fo the season.
