Hand-made Indian Rugs at Half Price

From the Land of the Taj Mahal—That Great Temple Typical of the Mystical Eastern Realm Over Which Floats the British Flag—Come These Handsome Rugs. Suggesting in Every Detail of Design and Color the Spirit of Romance and Mystery for Which India is Far-famed.

INDIAN BLUE, A LOVELY CLEAR TONE NOT TOO INTENSE, predominates in several and combines in true Oriental fashion with green, red, gold and ivory. A rich green rug has a conventional border and the centre quaintly decorated with single flowers such as grow only in the imaginations of the occult East.

BLUE AND BUFF with touches of soft green seem odd as a color scheme for an Oriental rug, but these are charming in the softness of their pastel tones and would be delightful for bedroom or boudoir for which so few high-grade rugs are suitable because of their bizarre colorings.

NAVY BLUE AS THE BACKGROUND and bright green and red in the small all-over design make a rug specially adapted for den or library. Red with dull grey-green in an odd "squared" design is another exceptionally attractive pattern.

EXCELLENT WEARING QUALITIES characterize all these East Indian rugs as is usual in the hand-made article. The designs are distinctly different from others, for as much contrast exists between various types of the Oriental as between these and European or American styles.

LIVING-ROOM, DEN, SITTING-ROOM, EVEN

THE BEDROOM, may be made the more charming for the addition of one of these handsome rugs which add the quality and color that give character to your room.

THE SIZES range from the Hearth Rug, 4 ft. x 6 ft., reduced to $6.25, to those much larger, some of the sizes and prices of which follow:

KING WAS READILY RECOGNIZED BY MEN

Victors on Somme Battlefront Gave Cheers for Beloved Sovereign.

SPLENDID DEMOCRACY

His Majesty, Eager to View Ground Won, Went to Front Trenches.

was sending screaming answers. "You seem to have missed that," he said to Gen. Rawlinson, indicating a silver of wall still standing in Mametz. "But there is nothing that is not down in La Boisselle, as you will see, your majesty," said Gen. Rawlinson. "We improve as we advance."

In Captured Dugouts. When the King wanted to descend one of the deep German dugouts, Gen. Rawlinson warned him that they had not all been cleaned out yet, and when the King came back up the steps sniffling, he said: "It smells pretty strong." Remarking on the depth and spaciousness of the dugouts with their beds, tables and chairs, he said to some soldiers of a reserve battalion stationed at that point: "Evidently the Germans expected to make a long stay, but you gave them a surprise and they are not so comfortable now."

A dramatic moment occurred as the King was walking across a field swept by a British charge. He came to a grave at the bottom of a shell crater with a cross bearing the inscription: "Unknown British Soldier."

Both the King and the Prince of Wales halted and saluted the cross. "It was sporting of the King to come here," said one of the soldiers, "and if Fritz only knew it wouldn't he begin to strafe with his guns? As it is, Whistling Percy might let loose any minute." Whistling Percy is the name for a noisy shell from the German guns.

Carried Away Souvenirs. In common with all visitors, the King took away some souvenirs in the shape of empty shell cases and bits of German equipment. As he was leaving the field the soldiers of the reserves, the transport men, gunners on relief, and others in the neighborhood followed him until there was a large crowd around the party before they entered their automobile. Somebody called for three cheers for the King, which were given with a will.

Sir Douglas Haig, as the King's host, told him what was worth seeing during his visit, and then the King laid out his own program each day. This led him to have a look at a town which had been shelled recently by guns of big calibre. As he and the prince went about leisurely examining the enormous craters in the square and the ruins of the old town hall, his attendants were considering what might happen if another crater was made where the occupant and heir of the throne were standing. Etiquette did not permit them to tell royalty to move on, but they suggested it politely. Royalty, however, persisted in remaining in the square until curiosity was satisfied.

Gave Zulu War Cry. When the King visited the men of the Scottish division, which had seen such desperate fighting at Delville, or "Devil's Wood" the survivors of the South Africans give him the Zulu war cry. He managed to see something of all kinds of the soldiers fighting under the British flag from the Scotch, English and Irish, to the troops from overseas. A machine company of the Lancashire in rest quarters on a French farm, was most surprised of all by his visit. Leading the way, he walked into a barn with its crooked beams and plaster walls and litter of straw, on which the men were lying after their turn on the firing line. The most amazed of the company was one soldier with a healthy snore, who was the last of those asleep to awaken. Blinking and rubbing his eyes he looked up to see the face of the King. At first he refused to believe that some trick was not being played on him; then, convinced, he scrambled to his feet while the King broke out laughing.

A Frightened Hero.

More than once the King's car had to draw on one side of the road as a battery of guns swept close to its panels, or a marching battalion passed by. When Private Proctor, of the Liverpool regiment, was told the King himself was going to put a Victoria Cross on his breast Proctor confessed to being scared. "But you were not scared when you fought the Germans," he was told. "No, I know how to act when I meet Germans, but not when in the presence of kings."

"I believe I have found my youngest soldier," exclaimed the King when he saw a 12-year-old boy among the Northampton. But little Joseph Leffevre was not English. He is the son of a dead Belgian soldier and was found wandering about under shellfire at Ypres, adopted by the battalion and placed on its rolls. He told his story in French to the King and said:

"They will not let me go up to fight, but keep me back with the transport." The King said: "As I was going to suggest, and being a soldier, you will have to obey orders."

Cheered by Australians. If there could be said to be any review it was an informal one. When the King went to call on Gen. Birdwood he met a battalion of Australians who were just coming out of the trenches after having taken Ponsard ridge. With their steel helmets back on their heads, their shirts open at the neck, their skin tanned as Indians, their clothes rent and streaked with earth stains, they lined the road and gave him an Australian cheer.

Trained by Movie Man. Gen. Joffre came over from his headquarters and President Poincaré came from Paris to take lunch with King George and Sir Douglas Haig. On Sunday King George lunched with King Albert of the Belgians. Through the week a moving picture man was doing his best to keep up with the King, while the diffident Prince of Wales was noticeably proficient in slipping out of the picture just as the operator began turning the crank. Not the least of the many scenes with dramatic appeal during the King's visit was that on the quay when the King landed. He was received by a guard of honor from a battalion of the King's Royal Rifle, 75 per cent of whom had been wounded.

For All Complexion Ills

If the skin be colorless, sallow, muddy, over-red, blotchy or freckled, nothing will so surely overcome the condition as ordinary mercurized wax. It literally takes off a bad complexion—absorbs the dead and near-dead particles of surface skin, gently, gradually, causing no inconvenience at all. A new complexion is then in evidence. Soft, spotless, delicately and beautiful. One ounce of this wax, procurable at any drug store, will regenerate even the worst complexion. It is used like cold cream.

An interesting event occurred at Buffalo on Monday, being the marriage of O. E. Anderson and Miss Josephine Gundberg in the presence of all the members. At Oakville today the newly-married couple will be presented with a gift purchased in Toronto.

BOY HAD SKULL FRACTURED.

Three-year-old Fred Porter of 7 Wynt street had his skull fractured yesterday afternoon when he fell off the shoulders of a ten-year-old boy who was carrying him along the sidewalk. The child was removed to the Hospital for Sick Children and is in a critical condition.

Gas In The Stomach Is Dangerous

Physician Recommends the Use of Magnesia to Stop Acid Indigestion. Sufferers from indigestion or dyspepsia should remember that the presence of gas in the stomach almost invariably indicates that the stomach is troubled by excessive acidity. This acid causes the food to ferment and the fermenting food turns into a poisonous gas which distends the stomach, hampers the normal function of vital internal organs, causes acute headaches, interferes with the action of the heart, and changes the blood stream into a deadly poison, which in time must ruin the health. Physicians say that to quickly dispel a dangerous accumulation of wind in the stomach and to stop the food fermentation which creates the gas, the acid in the stomach must be neutralized, and that for this purpose there is nothing quite so good as a teaspoonful of pure blaud's magnesia taken in a little water immediately after meals. This instantly neutralizes the acid, thus stopping fermentation and the formation of gas, and enables the inflamed, distended stomach to proceed with its work under natural conditions. Blaud's magnesia is obtainable in powder or tablet form from any druggist; but as there are many different forms of magnesia it is important that the blaud's which the physician prescribes should be blaud's asked for.
