HO! FOR THE WEST LAND

Three Hundred English Immigrants Passed Through From Halifax This Morning.

Three hundred English immigrants arrived in the city on a special train early this morning from Halifax where they landed from the steamer Corsea yesterday afternoon. They were a fine looking lot, not one poorly dressed man or woman being in the party. Officer Collins has never had a more brightly lot of immigrants in the station. A Times reporter interviewed one of the Englishmen. He was six feet tall and weighed in the vicinity of 200 pounds. He said that most of the party were from Glasgow and Liverpool. "The passage out on the Corsea was a good one, very little rough weather being met with. We are mostly all young men, very few of us being over 40 years of age. I am not going to settle in Winnipeg, no matter how good a city it is, I want to strike work in a country place with a few thousand inhabitants. I have farmed all my life and would not be successful at any other work. There are about seventy-five women amongst us and about that number of children. The Englishmen were not aware this morning that they were in the winter port of Canada until shortly before the train left and a number of them were disappointed when told that they would not have time to go to Sand Point and see the steamer.

On the voyage out one young Englishman took seriously ill and it was thought that he would have to be left at Halifax. He was put aboard the train, however, and this morning was somewhat better. None of the immigrants were ill at Halifax as there were none suffering from infectious diseases. The special of eleven cars carrying the immigrants left for the west at 9:30.

She has been ailing since the eighth day of February, but only for a few days has the case been critical. The immediate cause of death was aneurism. Deceased was Miss Cecelia A. Jones, daughter of Daniel and Catherine Jones, of Hodgeville, Maine, and was 58 years of age in December. She was married to J. A. Lindsay of this town 24 years ago. The only child is John J. Hollis Lindsay, of the American Conservatory of Music, Chicago, who has been wired of his mother's death. Prof. Jones of Bangs, a brother of deceased, will arrive today. THE THEATRES LAST NIGHT

Marriage of Kitty a Hit at the Opera House.

"The Marriage of Kitty" was given the York Theatre last night. There was a large audience present and the entertainment was delightful, as the play was well performed and well staged. While the whole play was good, the first and second acts were particularly clever, the transformation at the end of the first act where the charming Kitty becomes for the nonce a gawky, awkward country girl, was exquisitely done. The plot consists of the adventures of Sir Reginald Belvoir, who is left a fortune by his uncle on condition that he should not be married at a certain period to a widow, Madame De Seranno, to whom the uncle had taken a dislike. Sir Reginald, to overcome this obstacle, at the advice of his lawyer, goes through the form of marriage with another girl, a stranger, Kitty, a vivacious, and then starts off on his honeymoon with the widow. However, Sir Reginald, grows tired of travels and of the widow, and returning to his wife falls in love with her and immediately elopes with her. The company presenting "The Marriage of Kitty" is a small one, there being but six members in the cast, but they make up in talent what they lack numerically, and the play seems to fit like a well fashioned glove. Miss Alice Johnson, who essays Katherine Silverton, the irresponsible "Kitty," is a finished and graceful actress. Perhaps, like Madame Adams, her greatest charm is her vivaciousness and the ability to inject a large amount of the "love me" quality into her acting. She is certainly one of the most "excellent" little women seen behind the footlights in St. John for many a day. Miss Elsie Baird made a remarkable success in the role of the heiress, passionate Peruvian widow, while Miss Clappie did conscientious work as a casual. The difficult role of Sir Reginald Belvoir was well taken by Harrison J. Wolfe. The part abounding in opportunities and Mr. Wolfe took ample advantage of them all without overdoing it. In manner and action he was the Englishman of "class" to perfection and brought the mirth provoking elements of his part to the front in the style of Franklin Hall. His good work as John Travers, while G. M. Beldon was satisfactory in two minor roles. The play, which was well produced and good work as John Travers, while G. M. Beldon was satisfactory in two minor roles. The play, which was well produced and good work as John Travers, while G. M. Beldon was satisfactory in two minor roles.
