Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup has spoke at the commencement of the galleries were crowded and interest and speculation was rife. But there was no "fight" and not much visible manoeuvering for position.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier came first, immediately after the mover and seconder of the resile to the greech from the throng.

the reply to the speech from the throne, and pitched the key of the discussion high. He emphasized the necessity of placing patriotism at this time before placing patriotism at this time perole partizanship. As an earnest of the Liberal position Sir Wilfrid concluded by "THE DUMMY" AT commending the government's decision to be represented by the premier at the forthcoming imperial meeting of Britain's war cabinet, suggesting the ous bills, and undertaking unanimous support to an interim war supply bill and to an interim current supply bill, prior to an adjournment of parliament until such time as the premier returned from Britain.

"Sir Wilfrid did not, however, abandon the duties of an opposition leader. He criticized the government for lack of unity of purpose, for procrastination and indecision when the call was for promptness tate improvement of the deplorable conditions existing within the cabinet as revealed by the published letters of Premier Borden and Sir Sam

Diseases and disorders of the heart and nervous system have become frightfully prevalent of late years.

Telegraph that the withdrawal of the Intercolonial trains from St. John to Moncton would mean the taking away of any direct connection at Moncton for passengers taking either the Maritime express or the Ocean Limited.

Dr. Pugsley said that while there had not been direct connection with the Ocean Limited this year, there had always been connection with the Maritime express. Under the new conditions passengers will be obliged to wait over at Moncton several hours either coming from St. John or going to St. John. He thought it would be a great mistake to discontinue the trains and expressed surprise of the action of Mr. Gutelius.

Dr. Pugsley asked the minister of railways to look into the question and countermand the orders for the discontinuance of the trains.

Hon. Frank Cochrane promised that he would look into the matter and see that no injustice was done to St. John.

THE "AMEN CORNER."

Famous Lounge of Old 5th-Avenue Hotel Where Many Great Men Met

(The Amen Corner consisted of two sofas at the end of the broad corridor of the Fifth Avenue Hotel, New York. Here statesmen, soldiers, politicians and reporters sat and gossipped.)

The "Amen Corner" received this name because when Senator Platt, during his long leadership, after a conference with party leaders, would announce his conclusion as to nominations, policies and platforms, there never was any dissent, but the waiting magnates sitting upon the sofa would all say, "Amen."

A volume could be filled with remin iscences of that old spot. Stories could be told endlessly of Grant, Blaine, Conkling and Arthur, as each of them sal with his friends upon that old sofa. I had no great antiquity compared with old-world castles, with centuries of traditions, but gathered about that bench has been made as much American history as within the walls of any comparatively modern structure in the United States. It was not distinguished for any one event, but a series running through half a century. During the Civil War, upon that Amen Corner bench sat generals and admirals, who were the inspiration of our army and navy. I was a frequent visitor there for more than forty years. I met there Grant, Sherman, Sheridan and other officers of the army and navy; Presidents Garfield, Harrison and McKinley, also Blaine and John Sherman.

During the quarter century of leader-ship of Senator Platt more men in the state and nation consulted with him in that corner than in any other place. There were made governors, senators, supreme court judges and members of congress. Governors thought the capital was at Albany, but really took their inspiration and the suggestions for their policies from the Amen Corner. State conventions would meet at Rochester, Syracuse or Saratoga, but the 800 members would wait before acting to know what had been decided upon the Amen
