The trout were reared in the hatcheries on the Loch Lomond road, about six miles from the city, and are four years old. On Saturday 500 rainbow trout, two years old, were placed in Loch Lomond. The transfer of rainbow trout to lakes in this vicinity is expected to result in a heavy multiplication of the trout family in those bodies of water. Mr. Catt said today that further shipments of fish to the two lakes from the hatcheries are probable.
