

Marriage a Failure? Try Again
With Same Wife, Singer's Advice

Mrs. and Mr. Jerome Uhl on their third honeymoon.

New York, Jan. 18.—It isn't it isn't! It isn't! What? Why, marriage—is it a failure, or isn't it? Jerome Uhl, opera singer, of New York, now in Paris on his third honeymoon, with the same Mrs. Uhl, says it is not. Marriage, according to Mr. and Mrs. Uhl, is a distinct success if you keep trying. Married to each other twice before, and twice divorced because "Uhl's art" interfered with his devotion to his wife, they did not let this wreck their marital craft. "Perspective is the thing," says Mr. Uhl, who is also a painter. "Separate, get your perspective, adjust your differences and try all over again."

"When a divorce is asked for every marriage license applied for in Denver last year, there is something radically wrong," says Judge Ben Lindsey. "Marriage is a failure not only when, who admits it, but with every other woman I know, none of whom will admit it," remarks Miss Jane Burr, a double divorcee and writer on marital infelicity.

M. Coue Calls Auto-Suggestion Antidote for Broken Hearts

Takes Hour Off to Puff Famous Cigarette, Discuss Skirts, Shrimps, Admit He Had Lumbago and Tell of Things He Likes to Do But Can't.

(Shelby Ross in New York Tribune.) Coue, the healer, stopped working long enough yesterday to reveal something of the Coue man. After a day spent in clinics and in making social calls, including one at the home of Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, he had an informal chat with reporters at the Pennsylvania Hotel in which he aired his views on everything from long skirts to miraculous cures at shrimps. "This was a different Coue from the busy little man who concentrates on the sick. It was a Coue who rolled and puffed his famous cigarette, a Coue, who does not like Charlie Chaplin and has longings for many things he cannot have. Not even saying, 'I can, I can,' will give him time to do the things he wants to do. "What would you really like to do?" he was asked. "Ah! Sometimes I would like to fish—but I have no time. Sometimes I would like to play billiards—but I have no time. Sometimes I would like to play chess—but I have no time. I work all the time." He rolled a cigarette with skilled fingers. A long puff, their rings of smoke obscured his merry features. "Does Not Tease Well. "So!" he said, with an expressive wave of the hand that held the cigarette. "Books? Oh! I am not much of a reader, and I am glad of it. If I read much I would not have the time to think much. A reader is not a thinker." "Were you ever ill, Mr. Coue?" The little Frenchman's keen eyes shot around the room with a questioning gleam. "Ah! Now, you are enjoying me," he challenged. "This M. Coue does not like to be teased. He is keenly sensitive to ridicule. Finally, assured that no one was trying to make fun of him, he said: "Well, I used to have lumbago. I remember in 1914 I was putting wine in bottles—so!" (He rose to demonstrate.) "I was just putting in the cork when I felt the pain in my back and said: 'It is the lumbago.' So I rubbed my back and said: 'Ca passe, ca passe,' and I have no lumbago any more. "Skirts for women? Personally I prefer the long skirts. I do not like to see the ballet on the street. I like long hair, too. The bobbed head—ah no!" Questions about the fair sex were boomed into M. Coue's ears until he threw up his hands and called for quarters. He chuckled and said expressively: "At my age—well! I am not a follower of the mode." A Tip for the Old Soul. "Would it be possible to get a good jag on by the use of auto-suggestion?" Comprehending American slang without the least difficulty, M. Coue chuckled. "Yes, I think so," he said. "And how about curing broken hearts?" "Ah! It is easy. I have cured two such cases." M. Coue sighed deeply. When asked to account for his wistfulness he said he was longing to see the "cinematograph." It is four whole months since he has found time to take in a picture and he is made about comedies, especially French comedies. "Charlie Chaplin? No, I do not care for him. He is not to my taste." When asked if he would accept an offer of $5,000 a week to demonstrate his method in pictures he said he had not considered it yet, but if he did accept the offer it would simply be to get money for the clinic. He said he had found his reception in the United States most gratifying. Questioned about the so-called miracles at Lourdes and other shrines he said he believed them to be nothing but auto-suggestion. "Did Christ use auto-suggestion?" he was asked. "Yes, I think He did to a great extent." Fifty a Morning Clinic. Fifty persons attended Coue's clinic held in the morning at the MacDowell Club, 108 West Fifty-fifth street. A woman of fifty gave one of the most dramatic recitals of a "cure" that Coue has had since arriving here. She appeared to be very much in earnest, and stirred the other patients with her story. For twenty-three years she had suffered from periodic attacks of bronchitis, which were invariably accompanied by a nervous affection that temporarily deprived her of the full use of her limbs and interfered with her speech. Rising to her feet she caught every one's attention when she told of studying Coue's method through his books and "recovering completely." "I want you to know you have made me well," she said. "I didn't do anything. You did it yourself," said Coue. The man with the shuffling legs, who has been improving at every clinic, made a still better attempt yesterday and ended by running around the room five times while Coue spared him on. When he dropped into his chair with heaving chest, he was amazed at his own performance. Similar treatment was given to a woman with sciatica. She was marched around the room at the liveliest clip she has known in years. She seemed to be impressed. Woman, Sixty Drops Cana. Something of a sensation was created by a frail looking woman of sixty, who dispensed with her cane and walked round the room first with a little limp, later with none at all, so far as could be seen. A deaf man whispered of his affliction to Coue. "Ah!" said the little French pharmacist. "It is impossible to get results when you are deaf." The man heard him and quick as a flash, he turned the incident to advantage. "Goodness! I believe your ears are getting better," said Coue. "Keep it up." He picked up one and a neighbor caught up the other and carried them out. There was no doctor near, so the children were put in an automobile, which started at full speed for the Southampton Hospital. When they reached there they were both dead. The house was completely destroyed.

OIL POURED ON FIRE; TWO PERISH

Boy Tries to Brighten Sluggish Blaze; He and Sister Die in Flames.

Southampton, L. I., Jan. 18.—Two children were burned to death in their home at Fort Pond Bay, the Montauk terminal of the Long Island Railroad. They were John Smith, 14, and his sister, Hazel, 9, children of John Smith, an employe of the railroad. Their parents were at a neighbor's house close by. A brisk wind was blowing, and it was chilly in the house. John decided to enliven the fire in the kitchen stove, and got the kerosene can. He poured out only a little of the oil when the flame backed up and caused an explosion. The boy was in flames in a moment. He shrieked and his sister ran to him, and her clothes, too, caught fire. The two children, calling for help and trying to beat out each
