Will Oppose Course Re Christmas Gifts

New York Retail Dry Goods Association Against Plan of National Council of Defense (New York Times). In a statement issued yesterday by E. L. Howe, executive secretary of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, from its headquarters, 83 West Forty-second street, strong protest is made against the action of the National Council of Defense, which has asked that a campaign of publicity be started against the giving of merchandise for Christmas gifts, and recommending that gift giving be confined to the sending of cards and letters. "The belief is expressed that this matter is already sufficiently controlled by the War Industries Board, for the reason that many merchants have been notified by manufacturers, from whom they have ordered toys, jewelry and articles in which metal is to be used, that deliveries cannot be made because of inability to secure coal and basic materials. The merchants believe, because of this fact, that the manufacture of non-essentials is being properly regulated by

What the Kaiser's Father Wrote of War

(W. J. H. in Winnipeg Free Press.) We read in the published diary of the Emperor Frederic, the father of the present Kaiser, that it was a gruesome thing to ride over a battlefield, and the ghastly mutilations that met one's eye, was indescribable. War is an appalling thing, and the man who brings it about with a stroke of his pen at the "green table" little reckons what is coming with it. There were only two German wars during the lifetime of the Kaiser's father—two brief and immensely successful wars, which were both rushed through while he was Crown Prince. The first was the Prussian war against Austria in 1866, which lasted forty days, with a total of between 5,000 and 6,000
