Blanco's men had been held in camp all day yesterday and were fresh. They went into the fight with a vim and it was impossible for the federals to stops them.

Throughout the smoking town, swept by flames last night, the federals made desperate stands behind their barricades.

Navarro, the federal commander said last night that he would fight to the death. He expected reinforcements, but the last reports showed his succor to be distant more than a week's march.

General Navarro and staff have surrendered to General Garabaldi. Tia Juana, the Mexican town in Lower California captured by the rebels yesterday, is still in their pos-session. No further fighting at that point was reported.

Federal forces in Agua Prieta evacnated that town early to-day. Saltillo and lost 56 men killed in the bodies so far identified are those of engagement with the rebels.
