

THE SABBATH OF SIXTY YEARS AGO.

BY REV. THEODORE L. CUYLER.

Some one has kindly sent me a Tompkins County newspaper, containing a description of certain things as they existed sixty years ago in the village of Ludlowville, on the shore of the Cayuga Lake.

The church elder who took the most prominent part in inflicting these ecclesiastical censures, was that sturdy old Puritan, Captain Benjamin Joy. No man in that day followed the Sabbath through all the country side as "Uncle Ben." He was of the stuff that heroes are made of, and in the little band of early Abolitionists and Teetotalers he was regarded as a leading figure.

He was drawn into this loving tribute to Captain Ben. Joy as one of the representative Christian leaders in Western New York during the times of the great revival under Finney and Wisner and Joel Parker. He was also one of the most sturdy champions for the strict observance of the Lord's day.

How tender and sweet is my memory of the quiet Sabbaths of my early home at the house of my grandparents at Lake Ridge. A more attractive or graceful home than that did not grace the shores of the Cayuga Lake.

It was a three miles drive to our meeting-house, and often when the snow banked up the roads, we threw down the fences and cut across lots. On summer Sabbaths some of the farmers came on foot; occasionally a husband rode on horseback, with his good wife holding on behind him.

After the morning service came an intermission of an hour and a half. Part of this was spent in a brief Sunday-school, when we were not coddled with "Lesson Help," but were expected to study out God's Word for ourselves and repeat it from memory.

and we all wended our way homeward, to digest two good, stiff sermons, well watered with sound doctrine and not sweetened with any confectianaries.

When we had reached home and our sweet, quiet Sabbath gloaming. In winter, as the twilight shadows fell, we all gathered around the blazing fire that filled the room and burned the walls with "royal bloom."

Filling the Life Full. In the town of Colosse, lived a good man, a member of the church, perhaps one of the pastors of the church, Archippus. He was a man of a possible life. He was disappointed to Paul. To him Paul sent a message, Colossians 4: 17. Paul said, "Tell Archippus to fill his ministry full, to live a whole life."

It is far easier to live an Archippus life than a Pauline kind of life. To be a middling good kind of man requires no heroism in the soul. To be an ordinary man, who is content with a middling life, is a possible life. It needs not much planning or praying.

He was a man of a possible life. He was disappointed to Paul. To him Paul sent a message, Colossians 4: 17. Paul said, "Tell Archippus to fill his ministry full, to live a whole life."

B. Fay Mill's Spiritual Birthplace.

At the close of the last of the after-noon meetings in the First Congregational church, San Francisco, Mr. Mills laid his hand on my arm, saying, "Now I am going to visit my birth-place."

Mrs. Mills joined us at the door and we walked to the house, No. 7 Mason street, a few blocks from the church. This was the spot where, seventeen years ago, he gave his heart to God. The talk on the way was reminiscent.

As we approached the house, near Market street, he said to me, "I'm going to bring my old friend in and introduce him to you," addressing both Mrs. Mills and myself.

Yes, we were often together. I never expected that those days that you would be a preacher. The lady of the house welcomed us, and for a little time we chatted in the parlor. Then upon learning Mr. Mills' desire to revisit the room where he gave his heart to God, she cheerfully assented, and permitted him to lead the way.

Then Mr. Mills told the story of his conversion, which occurred in 1857. He had been gambling and had won a large sum of money—enough to pay all his debts and some over—and had started for the door with the intention of leaving the place while he could.

What Became of the Apostles. From the close of the Acts history (A. D. 64) until the Apologies of Justin Martyr (A. D. 148), when a continuous Christian literature began, there is nearly a century of comparative obscurity.

An Old Zulu Chief. Our recent account of a new Zulu missionary, Mr. John Meek, of Oshello, Rhode Island, may add interest to the story of an old Zulu chief, which comes to us in a private letter from the missionary himself.

It was an experience to kneel with this chosen servant of God at the bedside, on the very spot where he was translated out of the kingdom of darkness into the kingdom of God's dear Son.

would seem to justify its publication as the best possible illustration of the spirit and intention of what actually transpired, when, after the lapse of seventeen years, Mr. Mills revisited the scene of his spiritual birth.

Lip and Life. "How can that man be so inconsistent, and yet be a Christian?" asked a plain, practical man about one who was noted for his piety, prayer, and benevolence, yet of whom frankness compelled the statement that he was a very mean man.
