OBER-AMMERGAN

Ober-Ammergan means the upper of two villages situated in the "gan" or district adjacent to the River Ammer. This village is hidden away among the Tyrol Alps in Bavaria. A mountain — The Kofel — towers 2900 ft. above it. Here more than 250 years ago "The Passion Play" became an established institution.

At that time a plague was raging nearly one hundred people had perished. The survivors, who were terrified, made a vow that, if God would spare their lives, they would give for the instruction of mankind every ten years, in a dramatic form the story of Christ's life and sufferings. The plague at once abated and the villagers have since felt it a duty and privilege to carry out the promise of their ancestors.

At one time an imposing structure in this hamlet was the Benedictine Monastery of Ettal. It had a library of 100,000 volumes. Here the villagers received instruction in the drama, and were trained in music and in the art of wood carving.

This has been replaced by a permanent School of Sculpture where the carving is taught sometimes there are as many as two hundred and fifty pupils. This is the chief occupation of those who play the parts of Our Saviour, Judas, Peter and Pilate. These artists send their work to every part of Europe and America and even to Australia.

The money they obtain the proceeds of their summer's work is divided into four parts. The first and largest part goes for Theatrical expenses. Stage appliances and to provide the material for their costumes. (These are made by the villagers themselves). Another part is put aside for a permanent village improvement fund. A

PRINCE'S DOLLAR CLASPED IN HAND WHEN HE DIES

SEQUEL TO INCIDENT OF THE PRINCE'S CANADIAN TOUR

While the Prince of Wales was addressing a number of returned soldiers from the rear platform of his train at Windsor, Ont., during his first visit to Canada in 1919, a soldier by the name of O'Leary climbed up on the platform and asked him: "Are you a democrat?" The Prince smiled and said: "Yes, I think so."

"Then," said O'Leary, "lend me a quarter."

Without expressing any surprise the Prince put his hand in his pocket. "A quarter, I believe, is twenty-five cents, isn't it?" he asked.

"Yes, your right, sir, friend."

"Well, the British don't give any quarter, so here is a dollar."

This action was profoundly cheered by all and it might be added that this same O'Leary died a few months later with the Prince's dollar in his hand.

His last words were: "God bless my mother and the Prince of Wales."

YOUR JOB PRINTING

It has come to our notice of late that several good sized orders for office stationery have been contracted for to outside parties without our having even been asked for prices.

Further investigation reveals that the price, made on quantity, was the means of securing the business, and in justification to ourselves we wish to impress upon our friends and customers that we stand at all time ready and anxious to meet all competition that is submitted by outside parties on printing jobs.

We have the equipment and usually the stock to satisfactorily and quickly execute all work that is submitted to us at the best going prices, and are anxious to retain such work at home instead of sending it to the outside.

We find also that we are usually asked to quote on small quantities, whereas the outside man succeeds in his efforts by quoting on quantity lots and on which the difference in cost per 1000 is material.

The cost of set-up and composition is the same in lots of 500 and 5000 and in this respect the purchaser is misled by the quotations of the outside salesman who submits the price per thousand and in quantities of five thousand or more and thus gets away with the order.

His quotations are also subject to the sales tax of six per cent and the express charges, usually about another 5 per cent, which must be added to the price paid by the purchaser. On the whole he is not cheaper, nor does his concern contribute to the upkeep of the town in which the sales tax is made. We are therefore requesting that all such work be submitted to us for our estimates and we assure you that the same will be kept at home and the money derived therefrom will be spent to the benefit of the town, without cost, and perhaps, with a saving to you.

WHAT HAVE WE DONE?

We shall do so much in the years to come, But what have we done to-day? We shall give our gold in a princely sum.

But what did we give today?

We shall lift the heart and dry the tear.

We shall plant a hope in the place of fear.

We shall speak the words of love and cheer.

But what did we speak to-day?

We shall be so kind in the after-a-while.

But what have we been to-day?

We shall bring to each lonely life a smile.

But what have we done today?

We shall give to truth a grander birth.

And to steadfast faith a deeper worth.

We shall feed the hungering souls of earth.

But whom have we fed to-day?

We shall reap such joys in the bye and bye.

But what have we sown to-day?

We shall build our mansions in the sky.

But what have we built to-day?

'Tis sweet in idle dreams we bask.

But here and now do we do our task?

Yes, this is the thing our souls must ask:

"What have we done to-day?"

WHY THEY REMAIN DOWN

Their hearts are not in their work. They expect mastery without apprenticeship, knowledge, without study, wealth without work.

They win neither the confidence nor the admiration of their employers and by their indifferent behavior cut off their chances of advancement.

They fooled away their time when they should have been studying and preparing for their life work.

They skipped all the hard problems at school, never dreaming that their failure to solve them would later lose them many a good opportunity.

They never made up their minds what they were best fitted for, and they have never found their special niche.

They live in dreams and reveries and vain regrets for the past, never boldly grappling with the present and making the most of it.

They waste their time and energy, and weaken their initiative, by constantly forming new plans and resolutions which they never carry out.

They long for success, but want it at a discount. They are not willing to pay the full price for it.

They have no strong purpose running through their lives, the one thing which can unify and give strength and meaning to their faculties.

They thought that if they only kept on working, even if they had no definite goal in view that they would, somehow, arrive at the success port.

They are afraid of the new, the untried. They want other people to do the experimenting, while they get into ruts and cling to the old, the conventional and out-of-date.

They prefer to remain on a low rung of life's ladder, for the sake of temporary comfort and ease, rather than put forth the efforts that would carry them upwards.—I. S. M.

When cleaning a grate mix the blacklead with a little turpentine. Milk should be kept in a shallow basin rather than in a narrow jug. It will remain sweet far longer.

When cooking green vegetables add a crust of bread to the water. This will prevent the unpleasant odor.

When cooking hard boiled eggs boil in salt water and dip immediately in cold water. They will then peel easily.

To soften old paint or varnish and make its removal easy use two parts of spirits of ammonia to one of turpentine.

JUST BEFORE LAUNCHING

The "Princess Margaret." Built at Clydebank, with a sister ship, the "Princess Kathleen," for service between Vancouver, Victoria and Seattle, under the Canadian Pacific flag. The new vessels, of 6,000 tons, were specially designed for service on the British Columbia coast and, being capable of maintaining a speed of 22½ knots, will considerably reduce the time between the mainland and Canada's western playground—Vancouver Island.

THE THING WORTH WHILE

Whatever may be the thing we do,

Or the end for which we strive,

If worthy, the aim which we pursue,

As onward and on we drive,

We may be sure as the days go by,

If truly and hard we try,

That ever closer the goal draws nigh

Where some day we shall arrive.

The thing worth while is to keep right on,

With a purpose fixed and true,

Resolved with the coming of each new dawn

To do what we have to do; Unmindful of steps we are forced to climb,

As we plod each weary mile,

Sustained by a magical faith sublime,

In doing the thing worth while.

The thing worth while is the compass true

That points the way to the goal,

As the magnet points unerringly to

The Far North's desolate pole;

And ever secure is the course we wend,

In spite of the bitter trial, And joy we find in the days

Achieving the thing worth while.

LOVE.

Ah, man can never tell

How much of all that's best above

Within his lovely heart may dwell,

'Till he has learnt to love!

I never felt how passing fair

The works of all Creation were;

I never saw sweet visions there

'Till when I read as in a book,

The name on every flower and bough,

The name so blest! But why that look?

Thank Heaven, I read it now!

The white pithy part of a lemon dipped in bath-brick is excellent for scouring stained kitchen utensils and for whitening woodwork.

"Oh, auntie, I've planned such a lovely holiday," exclaimed Dolly Collins and I are going to take a tramp through the mountains next week."

"Well, I suppose it'll be all right if your father approves," was the rejoinder, "but do you really think the tramp will enjoy it?"

FAULT FINDING is the poorest way imaginable of helping others to be better.
