

ments regarding the province, which are certain to be detrimental to our best interests.

We have not realized the wonderful possibilities open to New Brunswick or we would not have so long remained supine. Not long ago one of the leading financiers of Canada said to me that, while there might not be a great future for the province in manufacturing, trade and commerce, he was certain that there could be no limit to the expansion of the business of increasing tourist traffic and encouraging the influx of summer visitors. The economic results of such a policy would be enormous.

Appendix.

I desire to express my acknowledgements to the Hon. Pascal Poirier, M. Placide Gaudet and Dr. W. F. Ganong, for information derived from their valuable writings. From the latter I also obtained a copy of the Hanington history, as well as the plan of the original grants in the neighborhood of Shediac.
