

THE SONS OF ST. GEORGE.

WHAT THE ORDER IS AND WHAT IT SEEKS TO ACCOMPLISH.

An Account of its Origin and its Rules and Requirements as Set Forth by the Grand Lodge of the Pacific Coast.

In consequence of the widespread interest aroused by the suggestion that closer relations be established between the S. O. E., and Sons of St. George, we have compiled at the request of a British Columbia correspondent, whose letter appears in another column, an account of the latter society.

This order, says the explanatory circular of the Grand Lodge of the Pacific coast, had its origin in the state of Pennsylvania in the year 1871. About that time a number of outrages and murders were committed upon Englishmen by secret organization known as the "Molly Maguires," for no other reason than that of enmity towards those of that nationality. For the purpose of devising means for mutual protection a few Englishmen met secretly and effected a temporary organization, and were so successful in carrying out the object for which they combined that when the causes of their banding together disappeared they decided to perpetuate the organization by re-organizing as a sick and benefit society for those of English birth or descent. Thus originated St. George's Lodge No. 1. Other lodges were soon formed in various parts of the State, and in a few years the Order had spread itself all over the State of Pennsylvania. The Order then stepped beyond the boundary of the Quaker State into New York, Massachusetts, and Ohio, and inside of ten years had established itself all over the Eastern States.

On January 23rd, 1880, the Order was introduced to the Coast by the institution of Burnaby Lodge of San Francisco, named in honor of the gallant Life-Guardsman of that name who lost his life whilst fighting in the Soudan War when on leave of absence from his regiment in London, and who was also the hero of the famous ride to Khiva. This was quickly followed by the formation of lodges in all the principal cities of California.

On April 5th, 1880, a change having been effected in the Constitution of the Order, granting State sovereignty, the Grand Lodge of the Jurisdiction of California was instituted in St. George's Hall, San Francisco. The institution of the Grand Lodge gave an impetus to the Order on the Coast, and inside of six months from its institution the number of lodges in the State were doubled through its instrumentality.

In consequence of the sparseness of population of the States and Territories of the Pacific Coast, the Supreme Lodge, at the Convention held in Chicago, October, 1880, extended the boundary of the Jurisdiction so as to include all the States, Territories and Provinces west of the Rocky Mountains. The Grand Lodge is now actively at work organizing lodges in every city on the Coast large enough to support one.

Its Constitution.

In its Constitution the Order is similar to most other fraternal organizations, the benefits being a weekly payment in case of sickness, and a death benefit on the decease of a member or his wife, with the additional advantage of every member being entitled to the services of a first class physician, with medicine free of charge.

Conditions of membership are: A member must be an Englishman, or the son or grandson of an Englishman, either on the paternal or maternal side; or, a son of a Son of St. George—sound in health and mind; over eighteen and under fifty years of age; of good moral character, and a believer in the Supreme Being. For honorary or social membership a person otherwise qualified may be admitted at any age over eighteen years on payment of at least $3 per year.

Social Advantages.

Large numbers of our fellow-countrymen start from their native homes seeming to have an idea that "America" to them will not be a foreign land. When they arrive here, they do certainly find the predominant language to be their native tongue; but, with that exception, they are, to all intents and purposes, "strangers in a strange land." Home associations and endearments are, of course, to a large extent broken, added to which, they have, as a rule, almost unconquerable prejudices in favor of their own and against this country. All these combined have a tendency to alienate and isolate them from the general community, and also from their own countrymen.

By membership in the Order says the Grand Lodge circular, you become acquainted in a very short time with hundreds of your countrymen who are glad to meet you, and talk with you about the old home; to give you advice; to help find you employment, should you need it; in fact, you will soon be so well acquainted that, although loving and life-long associations were, by force of circumstances to some extent severed when you left your native land, yet others may, if wished, be formed here which shall be loving and long. And again, it is not only we, who are actual members of the Order, that reap all the advantages of association, and consequent friendships. We have frequent social gatherings, when we may bring along our wives, our daughters, our sisters, etc., so that they may become acquainted with each other; family friendships made which shall be lasting, because they are cemented by the memories of our dear old native land.

Non-Political or Sectarian.

The Order does not concern itself with the religious or political opinions of its members, and does not allow English or American politics to be introduced into its meetings. It enjoins all its members to become good citizens of the land of their adoption, and is in no way antagonistic to this country or its people, seeking only the unification of Englishmen for good and wholesome purposes, conducive alike to the welfare of its members, the general good of society and the prosperity of the land in which its people have found a better home than the land of their birth can afford them.

The interests of its members being now wrapped up in the prosperity of this country rather than that of the land of their birth, it warns its members that no Englishmen will be a traitor to the land of his adoption, but will always obey the laws of the land in which he resides.

How to Form Lodges.

Persons wishing to organize a lodge of this Order should act as follows: When satisfied that there are persons enough in the locality who are eligible for membership, communicate with the Grand Secretary of this Jurisdiction, who will forward gratis a quantity of papers, etc., necessary to enable the parties interested themselves to carry out their design. Next call a meeting of Englishmen, either by advertisement in a local paper or by a circular letter addressed to all Englishmen whose address you can obtain; or by both methods. When an advertisement is given to a local newspaper, the editor will seldom refuse to give also a small notice in the news column, calling attention to the advertisement. A good way to get the addresses of English-born residents is to take them from the Great Register of voters which can always be seen at the County Clerk's office. When the meeting takes place a competent person should be selected to read this circular and give any other information that may be in his possession concerning the Order. Two or three may be selected to speak if they can be got. The principles of the Order having been explained, a show of hands should be taken to ascertain how many are willing to join in case a lodge is organized. If a sufficient number signify their intention of joining in case a lodge is formed, the next thing will be to appoint a Committee on Organization, who will take the matter in hand and carry it through. The most energetic men obtainable should be got for this committee. Next appoint temporary President, Treasurer and Secretary, who will also act as members of the Committee on Organization. The next thing to do will be to get each one to sign the application for Charter—twenty signatures being necessary—and as evidence of good faith each one should pay a sum of about $2. In case some may be at the meeting not prepared to pay that amount; or, that some may want to sign the application who could not attend the meeting, an adjournment should be taken to some other night, to be agreed on. The necessary number of signatures having been obtained, the application should be forwarded to the Grand Secretary, with $35 for Charter fee.

The initiation fee for a lodge just organizing is generally fixed at four or five dollars, half of which should be paid on signing the application for Charter, and the other half on or before initiation. A Charter outfit consists of the following: One Charter, 6 Rituals, 50 Ode Cards, 10 Supreme Constitutions, 10 Grand Lodge Constitutions, 100 Application Blanks, with Physician's Certificate attached. The Grand Lodge will pay cost of Deputy going to organize a lodge, provided the expenses of journey, etc., does not exceed $25, in which case the lodge instituted must pay all costs of institution over that amount.

S. O. E. B. S. LODGE DIRECTORY.

Lodge Cards under this head will be inserted at the rate of One Dollar per Year.
