Mothers

Castoria is recommended by physicians for children teething. It is a purely vegetable preparation, its ingredients are published around each bottle. It is pleasant to the taste and absolutely harmless. It relieves constipation, regulates the bowels, quiets pain, cures diarrhœa and wind colic, allays feverishness, destroys worms, and prevents convulsions, soothes the child and gives it refreshing and natural sleep. Castoria is the children's panacea—the mothers' friend. 35 doses, 35 cents.

Young man—"You are older than I am, and I want to ask you a question. Does a woman always mean what she says?

Old man—"Always—that is, if she's married."

C. C. RICHARDS & Co.

Gents,—I took a severe cold, which settled in my throat and lungs and caused me to entirely lose my voice. For six weeks I suffered great pain and discomfort, and tried numerous remedies. My wife advised me to try MINARD'S LINIMENT and the effect was magical, for after only three doses and an outward application, my voice returned and I was able to speak in the Army that night, a privilege I had been unable to enjoy for six weeks. These facts can be verified by numbers of people in this town.

CHARLES PLUMMER.

Yarmouth.

Eastern man (in Chicago)—"Collecting subscription for the Browning Club, eh? What do you need a fund for?—to rent a hall?"

Chicago youth—"No we have a hall; but we want to raise money enough to buy two copies of Browning and a billard table."

Pullets Should be Laying.

Young pullets batched in March and April ought all to be laying this month. Later hatched ones if not laying by November, will probably if left to themselves not lay before spring when eggs are down to fifteen cents per dozen. A well known poultry farmer showed us recently his account for last Dec. with 125 pullets. The net profit for that month from eggs alone was $39.39; from the same pullets in April following, the profit was $14.97, and he got 50 doz more eggs in April than in Dec. Now this is a striking lesson to all who keep hens for profit. Get all the eggs you can this dull year when other crops are short, as eggs always bring cash. Probably 45 cents per dozen by Christmas. Therefore get the pullets to lay early when prices are highest. Rev. S. W. Squires, of Franklin, Mass., says: "For the purpose of seeing how many eggs I could obtain last winter from twelve hens, I used four large cans of Sheridan's Condition Powder. I believe it is the best preparation known to increase egg production. I saved part of the eggs for hatching after forcing the hens four months for all they were worth with the Sheridan's Powder, and I never had a greater per cent. of fertile eggs or more vigorous chickens. In brief, I do not believe I can afford to be without the Powder to give health, and vigor to young hens." Six cans of Sheridan's Powder will pay a good dividend in eggs if you commence early. If you cannot get it near home, I. S. Johnson & Co., 22 Custom House St., Boston, Mass. (the only makers of Sheridan's Condition Powder,) will send for 50 cts, two 25-cent packs of Powder: for $1, five packs; for $1.20, a large 2¼ pound can, all post paid; six cans for $5, express prepaid; one large can of Powder, also one year's subscription to the Farm-Poultry monthly both sent post paid for $1.50. Sample copy of paper 5 cts. Send stamps or cash. Testimonials sent free.

Shiloh's Consumption Cure.

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold, a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup, and Bronchitis, while it's wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since it's first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a Cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price 10 cents, 50 cents and $1.00. If your Lungs are sore, Chest or Back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster.

Sold by E. Lee Street.

Gotham dame—"Do you think Mr. Nicefellow is in earnest?"

Daughter—"I guesso. He asked me last evening which one of your daughters was your pet, and I told him that I thought if all three were married you would rather live with Clara or Dora than with me."

Answer This Question.

Why do so many people we see around us seem to prefer to suffer and be made miserable by Indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, Coming Up of the Food, Yellow Skin, when for 75 cents we will sell them Shiloh's System Vitalizer, guaranteed to cure them.

Sold by E. Lee Street.

Mr. Greathead (coal and ice dealer) "I didn't sell as much coal last winter as usual."

Mrs. Greathead—"Too bad. Your customers must have some money left which you would have had if the weather had been cooler."

"Yes, they have, but I shall raise the price of ice and get it away from them before fall."

Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy.

Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy, a marvelous cure for Catarrh, Diphtheria, Canker Mouth, and Head-Ache. With each bottle there is an ingenious Nasal Injector for the more successful treatment of these complaints without extra charge. Price 50 cents.

Sold by E. Lee Street.

Young man—Tommy, is your sister in?

Tommy—Yes.

Y. M.—Is she engaged?

T.—I guess so; I saw her kiss Mr. Comegain in the hall a little while ago, and she always said she'd never kiss a man unless he was engaged to her.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Theatrical manager—I must have a new play for next season. Can you furnish it?

Dramatic author—Certainly if my wife will help me out with the baby talk. Got your star yet?

Theatrical manager—Yes; but he won't be ready to rehearse till fall. His mother refuses to wean him in hot weather.

CONSUMPTION SURELY CURED.

TO THE EDITOR:—

Please inform your readers that I have a positive remedy for the above named disease. By its timely use thousands of hopeless cases have been permanently cured, I shall be glad to send two bottles of my remedy FREE to any of your readers who have consumption if they will send me their Express and P. O. address.

Respectfully, DR. T. A. SLOCUM,
164 West Adelaide st., Toronto, Ont.

"What is your business?" asked an old gentleman of a man on the cars.

"I'm a painter sir."

"Ah! and I suppose you are now on your way to sketch some especially stricking landscape or something of that kind."

"No, I am on my way to go to work as a bar-tender."

"But you said you were a painter."

"I am sir of noses."

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this receipt, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper. W. A. NOYES, 149 Power's Block Rochester, N. Y. eow.

An exhibitor in Paris called for the landlord, and said: "Your prices are very erratic. A week ago I dined here and paid 5.75 francs: here is the bill. To-day you charged for precisely the same fare 8.25 francs.

The landlord examines both accounts. "It is quite correct, sir we made a mistake last Thursday so that you owe us 2.50 francs which I will thank you to hand over."

Farm and Household.

THE AYRSHIRE COW.

The Ayrshire breed of cattle hails from Ayr, one of the Southwestern counties of Scotland. The county is elevated and of a rolling character and is largely devoted to daily farming, its proximity to the great city of Glasgow rendering the cost of marketing dairy products, for which there is an immense demand, an easy and cheap matter. This large demand has, therefore, caused great attention to be paid to the breed of cattle best fitted to meet requirements, and the result is seen in the Ayrshire cow, which is the product of careful breeding and improvement of a breed indigenous to the country. The elevated character of the country and its northerly situation required that the breed should be hardy and not too heavy to prevent its ranging over the hill pastures in search of food with ease, whilst at the same time it was required to be one, which would readily assimilate the food provided and convert it into an abundant flow of milk. In all these respects the native cow has, by careful breeding and attention to the question of fitness for the required purpose, proved itself perfectly adapted, and the consequence is, that in the Ayrshire cow, as now seen, we have an animal pre-eminently fitted not only for the county of Ayr, but for all other places having something of the like characteristics of that county, and requiring a good general dairy cow.

Whilst on the one handshe is not so great a butter cow as the Jersey, she excels her in the quantity of milk produced; and although not so well adapted for beef as the Shorthorn, she is yet capable of being converted into a fairly good beef cow when required. They were early introduced into the Northern States and Canada, and have proved themselves well adapted to the climate and country, and in Canada have been bred to a high state of perfection. Like the Jerseys, they breed particularly true to color (red, or yellow red, and white) and to type—fine-boned, clean-headed, deep-bodied, and fully developed udders. Their milk records, though not coming up to the phenomenal ones of the Holsteins, are good, many of them averaging from 30 to 40 lbs. of milk per day, and that of a much higher butter producing quality than the average of Holsteins.

Within the last few years a considerable number of them have been introduced into hill country of the Southern States, and they have adapted themselves with readiness to the climate, and have proved a success.

To the farmer who has an up and farm not yet sufficiently improved to produce an abundance of good rich food for consumption all the year round, and who has not the best buildings in which to shelter his stock during the winter, we should recommend the Ayrshire as the best cow he can get to commence the improvement of his herd. It will bear rougher treatment and coarser food than the Jersey, and will yet show a great advance over the native breed in milk and butter production. At the same time the breed will give him a good return for the best treatment he can give it, and failing in milk production from age or barrenness, will make a good beef cow for the market. They usually weigh from 800 to 1,000 lbs., and the meat produced is of fine texture and quality. In one of our exchanges we see a notice of a cow of this breed weighing, when in good condition, 1,200 lbs., which has a record of 50 lbs. of milk per day. It is also a characteristic of the breed that they milk freely almost the whole time from calving to calving again, and we have ourselves known cows which it was almost impossible to dry off. They usually produce butter of good quality and color, but cannot in this respect come up to the Jersey's record, whilst at the same time they are at least the equal of the Short-Horn and ahead of the average Holstein.

We strongly recommend to the farmers that they should secure some Ayrshire stock for the improvement of their herds.—Southern Planter.

FARM ECONOMY.

It is the shiftless and wasteful farmer that often "floors" himself financially. Now such a class of farmers do not believe this or at least, will not admit it—and to such let me ask a few questions in relation to the economy (?) of their actions. How is it about leaving plows, cultivator and numerous other tools and implements covered with dirt and left out of doors after using them for the season leaving them to rust and become useless: and these carts, why they are left to be half covered up with snow and durings spring rains to spoil by this neglect? I ask this kind of a farmer, is this economy? How about that broken harnesses or machinery is it economy to leave it until "wanted at once" to use? Will not these harness last longer if hung up on a convenient peg instead of being thrown into the corner every time taken from the horses; is it economy to thus use your harnesses? Where there is a break or slight rip is it not then the time to repair the same, and not wait until they fall to pieces and can be used no longer? Remember shiftlessness will not answer, and a "stitch in time saves nine." Is it economy to allow the stock to stand and shiver in a barn where the cracks are large enough to admit your finger? Do you save the little expense it would cost to repair that barn or stable, by keeping the money in your pockets? I should say not. Your are taking out of your stock annually half what it would cost to make the buildings more comfortable? Perhaps you have not looked at it in this light, yet it is here you see the "true colors." No, sir; no economy in that. Is not the trifling expense put into paint for your carts, sleds and various farm implements, more than saved by the preservation of these articles so necessary to every farmer? Is this not economy? Try it and see. The above does not refer to the enterprising, careful farmer. They do not need this advice, they do not need to ponder over these questions. They have learned from experience the economy of care of things around them. It is only the shiftless and don't care tiller of the soil we refer to. Is is to be hoped that some such may get their eyes on these questions, and study them, until they are brought to see how useless such farmers are, and turn about, fixed up and stay fixed up; keep ahead of their work, instead of its driving them all the time.

In all branches of business it is hard to catch up when once behind, but for the ambitious and wide awake farmer who is always a little ahead of his work it is an easier thing to carry on his farm, and not feel as though he was working for lost time or a "dead horse" as the expression is.

THE FOLLY ABOUT EARLY RISING.

All the talk about early rising is moonshine. The habit of turning out of bed in the middle of the night suits some people, let them enjoy it. But it is only folly to lay down a general rule upon the subject. Some men are fit for nothing all day after they have risen early every morning. Their energies are deadened, their imaginations are heavy, their spirits are depressed. It is said you can work so well in the morning. Some people can, but others can work best at night; others, again, in the afternoon. Long trial and experiment form the only conclusive tests upon the points. As for getting up early because Prof. All-Gammon has written letters to the papers proving the necessity of it, let no one be goose enough to do it. We all know the model man, aged 80: "I invariably rise at 5; I work three hours, take a light breakfast—namely, a cracker and a pinch of salt; work five hours more; never smoke; never drink anything but barley water, eat no dinner, and go to bed at six in the evening." If anyone finds that donkeyfied sort of a life suits him, by all means let him continue it. But few people would care to live to 80 on these terms. If a man cannot get all withered and crumpled up on easier conditions than these it is almost as well that he should depart before he is a nuisance to himself and a bore to everybody else. School boys and young people generally ought to get up early, for it is found that nine-tenths of them can stand it, and it does them good. But let no one torture himself with the thought that he could have been twice as good a man if he had risen every morning at daylight. The habit would kill half of us in less than five years.—MEDICAL CLASSICS

AUTUMN FOLIAGE.

Let the poet sing of the beautiful spring time, but give me bountiful October, with her Indian summer skies, her many tinted leaves, her bending orchards of ripened fruit, her quiet ways and sober enjoyment.

Now is the time to seek the woodland, rich in her brightly colored foliage. The spring flowers are gone with their delicate petals giving place to plainer, homlier beauties with clustering heads of compound flowers. Perhaps not so brilliant in dress, but restful to the eye, and filling a large place in the ranks of our floral friends.

If the daisy and the buttercup receive the first impulsive greetings of spring, the wild aster and the golden rod ever claim the no less honest homage of quiet October.

If the first joyous buds of the newly awakened year are hailed with delight, no less sincere, though sober, is the pleasure awakened by the richly variagated leaves of our autumn woods.

The leaves of October are now in holiday attire. They are dressed for the last mad whirl dance of the closing year.

In a few days the red, the crimson, the yellow, the gold, the purple, the brown will all be sightless rubbish, heaped in hollows and corners. But in dying, they cheer the world with their brighest smiles.

The leaves have filled their offices. All summer long they have rustled their happy songs as they breathe out oxygen and breathed in the carbon of the air; thus at the same time storing up fuel for the use of man, and robbing the air which we breathe of its most dangerous element—carbonic acid gas.

During the summer months, the leaf tissues and the tiny cells between have been gorged full of minute grains of chlorophil, green coloring matter pleasant to the eye and wonderfully fitted to convert the active heat of the sun into latent heat for winter's use.

But the race of the leaves is run. The watery parts are evaporated, and in the process, the chlorophil has undergone a chemical change. The green has turned to every shade and color of the rainbow.

Less closely now they cling to their parent stem. The wind lifts and bears them away, they go, they fade and are only a memory, but they give their brightest smile at parting. It is too bad to loose the pretty things of this life, and so far as autumn leaves are concerned, a little effort made now, will save us a part of October's tinted visage.

Gather the brighest leaves and scatter over them finely powdered rosin, and smooth with a hot iron. The colors will remain bright through the long winter months. Varnish will accomplish a similar result, but it is not so easily applied.

Leaves gathered now and tastily arranged will give a bright cheerful look to what might otherwise be a cheerless room.

Now is the time to decorate your school rooms and churches. Now is the time to instil a taste for the beautiful on wooded hill and dell. Now is the time to teach that botany in the fall has as many charms as botany in the spring.

FEED THE COWS WELL WHEN DRY.

When the dairyman fully understands that he can draw no milk from the udder which he has put in at the mouth, he is in a hopeful frame of mind. The cow is the most reliable savings bank to receive her deposits, and, unlike the ordinary savings bank, she pays the highest interest on the largest deposits. The flesh which the good cow puts on in her dry season will as surely be drawn into the pail during the next milking season as will the food she eats from day to-day; consequently while the cow is dry she should be so fed as to enable her to gain strength and flesh for her next season's draft, and this will not be done by the old-fashioned farmer who feeds her with bog hay, oat-straw and weather-beaten corn fodder. We believe that by mingling a little grain with straw, corn fodder and swale hay they may be made as valuable as good hay and quite as cheap.

Bronchitis Cured

After spending ten Winters South, was cured by Scott's Emulsion.

146 Centre St., New York,
June 25th, 1888.

The Winter after the great fire in Chicago I contracted Bronchial affections and since then have been obliged to spend nearly every Winter south. Last November was advised to try Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites and to my surprise was relieved at once, and by continuing its use three months was entirely cured, gained flesh and strength and was able to stand even the Blizzard and attend to business every day.
