New Pavement and More Consideration From H., G. & B.

City Has to Pay For Searching Its Own Maps.

Building Inspector to Prevent Encroachments on Streets.

The reports on street railway matters and the permanent pavement programme were not ready for the Board of Works to consider last night, and the aldermer spent the evening cleaning up business

Newton D. Galbreaith and ex-Ald. William McDonald headed a deputation of Main street east residents who asked that their thoroughfare be paved. They declared that the cars, with flat wheels went bumping and thumping along, making almost enough noise to wake the dead. The tracks, they insisted, were in dead. The tracks, they insisted, were in a disgraceful condition.

Mr. McDonald said that pools of water a foot in depth collected on the street. Another resident complained that the company was in the habit of running double freight care down the street. At times the cars were geared up so that they could make the run up from Benusville an hour faster than the ordinary schedule. He charged that the Grimsby road and the street railway were practically amalgamated, now, and wanted to know if this would not void the company's charter on Main street.

The City Solicitor said as far as he was aware the company was operating its cars within the provisions of its charter.

The residents also asked that the nuisance caused by placing Board of Works garbage cans at the corner of Main and West avenue be abated.

The committee approved of the following recommendation made by the subcommittee regarding street encroachments.

"That the Building Inspector be required, before granting building permits, to insist that a ground plan showing the building proposed to be erected, with the street line, be furnished, and if in his opinion there is any possibility of an encroachment on the city streets, that the matter be referred to the City En-gineer for decision, and that to give full ing Inspector be required to report direct matters to the City

MORE ROOM.

Enlargement of Hamilton Farmers' Market.

To the Editor of the Times: Sir,—Through the kindness of your olumns, I take the liberty of drawing public attention to the necessity for this as well as the various suggestions men-tioned for bringing it about.

First, to acquire the block on the west side of the present market and convert it suitable for market purposes, at a roughly estimated cost of about $200,000, would undoubtedly be the best, but for the excessive cost which stands in the would indoducedly be the beek, but for the excessive cost which stands in the way.

Second, the covering in of the present market place with a two-storey shelter, something similar to the present butchers' shelter, only another storey higher, with two easy grade ascents for horses and vehioles, and two stairways for citizens, would exactly double the present accommodation, providing shelter as well, at a cost of about $160,000.

Fourth, a further additional space of considerable area could be had by flooring the overhead space of the present market building, hall-way and annex, with an easy grade stairway at either end of the present building, thus affording a very considerable extra accommodation at very small cost.

Fifth, if the idea of roofing with a second storey the present market space were favorably regarded, it could be done by easy stages, say by covering the space between the present meat market building and the fish and poultry stalls next year, extending each following year until the whole work is completed, with only a moderate annual expenditure, and this suggestion would have the advantage of not only doubling the present space, but providing shelter as well.

I trust the citizens generally will take as well.

I trust the citizens generally will take this matter up and offer improved suggestions to their representatives on the Market Committee, as well as in the City Council, and in that way try to get a plan adopted whereby the farmers will be given fair and courteous accommodation and treatment, which would result in at least 25 per cent. more producers coming here, making that much better competition and preventing their treasure in at reast 20 per cent. more pro-tineers combing here, making that much better competition and preventing their attending other markets and spending their money elsewhere, as at present. By neglect, Hamilton's grain market has been largely lost to other places. Don't let our vegetable, fruit and poultry market follow suit.

Thanking you for the space, I remain, yours truly.

THE POWER SITUATION.

To the Editor of the Times:

THE POWER SITUATION.

To the Editor of the Times:

Sir,—I am sorry, indeed, the power squabble has lasted so long and the end not yet in sight. It is bad for the city's progress. Something else is sure to be slighted, while the City Council is overworked on the endless power tangle and we have the local Hydro agents and the rebellious aldermen to thank for it. They seem to have a lot of trouble in drawing up the power resolution. I would drop it, dig a hole and bury it where all the other resolutions now rest. The city is not bound to take Hydro-Electric power if it does not wish to. Those men who are fighting the local power concern and doing the city so much mischief have each an axe to grind, sure enough. The city can get all the power it requires, and more if it needs it, at a cheaper rate. That has been proven time and again. We have it right here. The concern was built up purposely for Hamilton. If the City Council should take electric power from the Commissioners, how is the Council going to dispose of what it cannot use? It will have to be paid for. The Council can not sell below cost. How is the Council going to sell it at all, with the Cataract people selling as cheaply as they have a mind to. They have everything at their finger ends, while the city will have to get everything anew and buy the power at a high figure. If the Council should feel disposed to break from the agreement made with the power commission, why, the power might be turned off at a moment's notice. The city may be left in the dark with a dead horse on its hands. I might take a different view of the whole thing, if the city did not have to buy the power. It would not then be tied up to Toronto and other places. Perhaps I should say tied down. Some of the aldermen seem to think the by-law voted on on the 7th of last. June was a Hydro victory. I have never considered it so. There was too much crooked work in it, and the vote was small. A great many of the intelligent voter's did not vote for nor against it, and, to cap it all, the gre too much crooked work in it, and the vote was small. A great many of the intelligent voters did not vote for nor against it, and, to cap it all, the great Cataract Power Company was so sweetly easy, it was a wonder the Hydro many of the company was so weetly easy, it was a wonder the Hydro many of the company was so weetly easy, it was a wonder the Hydro many of the company was so weetly easy, it was a wonder the Hydro many of the company was so weetly easy, it was a wonder the Hydro many of the company of the erwhelming, but it not, hence the contest says nothing. I can see two ways out of the tangle. One way is to drop the power tangle altogether and deal out and out with the local way is to drop the power tangle altogather and deal out and out with the local power company, and the other way is to let the ratepayers vote on it at the beginning of next year. It won't cost anything, but it wants to be watched. If the city deal with the local company all the money paid out for power will stay here, but if the city gets the power from the outside concern, of course the money will be taken away. It will never do Hamilton any good. This is rather serious. Are those who vote against Hamilton blind to their own interest? Once the Hydro men get the wedge in they will drive it with vengeance. They are out to feather their own nest. Of course, they have a following, some good, but misguided people, amongst them. The city will have litigation enough if it makes a second contract for power with another party before the first contract has expired. If the tiger tries to take the lion's den, what can we expect but trouble? Yours truly.

Rev. Egerton Ryerson Young Died at Bradford Yesterday.

Bradford, Oct. 6 .- The death occurred here yesterday of Rev. Egerton Ryerson Young, the well known missionary, lecturer and author. About a year ago

Mr. Young, while out driving with his brother, J. B. Young, met with an accident which resulted in internal injuries from which he never recovered.

Deceased was born at Crosby, Ont., on April 7th, 1840, and was a son of the late Rev. Wm. Young. After completing his education at the Normal School, Toronto, he served for some years as a school teacher, but while still a young man his thoughts turned to the a young man his thoughts turned to the Methodist ministry, to which he was ordained in 1867. His first charge was ordained in 1867. His first charge was the First Methodist Church, Hamilton. It was as a missionary and lecturer, however, that Mr. Young became known, his work among the Indian tribes in the Northwest Territories attracting wide attention. One of his journeys, from Hamilton to Norway House in 1868, occupied two months and nineteen days, and he had many adventures which afterwards furnished interesting material for his lectures and books. Among other mission which he opened were those of Nelson River and Beren's River. His labors as a missionary pioneer in the west were interrupted in 1876, when, owing to the illness of his wife, he was compelled to return to the east, and from that time onward, with the exception of a few years spent in pastoral work at Port Perry, Colborne, Bowmanville and other places, his services were almost exclusively devoted to lecturing, his tours extending to all parts of the United States and Britain.

The old English sheepdog has taken a renewed lease of life, for after the first rush of the boom some years ago there was a slackening of interest. It must be remembered that the introduction of show dogs sufficient to fill classes at all respectably dates only from 1902, just seven years ago.

Compared with other important breeds, such as the Airedale terrier, which is now so prominent throughout the country, the condition of the bobtailed sheepdog is becoming eminently satisfactory, says Country Life in America. No longer is it a fancy confined merely to Long Islanders, where the first rush was started, but we hear of them all over, from Virginia in the South to Buffalo on the North, and from Massachusetts to Michigan.

In the early days of the bobtail he was a very crossgrained, uncontrollable dog. That was his breed reputation. But association with man together with more humane treatment improves dogs wonderfully, and in this respect the bobtail does not differ from some others which had fully as bad a reputation. The Great Dane, Airedale, bulldog and Spitz or large Pomeranian all were pretty low down at one time on the probationary list.
