NEW STEAMBOAT

In the several reports of the meeting of the Maritime Board of Trade held at Chatham recently, boom when it comes, and in the adwe note a resolution was passed urging a steamboat between Chatham and P. E. I. points, but no mention of Newcastle or Nelson in connection therewith We trust. connection therewith. We trust, however, that our delegates to the vantages, meeting, did not allow our rights to be ignored in this resolution.

We are situated on the main line of the I. C. R. with deep water terminal, we are also several miles nearer the up river lumbering camps where much of the P. E. I. produce is consumed, we have good up river navigation and good freight carrying accommodation on the same, besides direct railway communication with most of the up river destributing centres, and Bob the sun-bo there can be no reason why such a boat if put on should not come to Newcastle, calling at Chatham coming and returning.

We regret that this was not brought into prominance at the Chatham meeting, as the wide publication of the report would have been an excellent channel for advertising Newcastle. We trust that the matter will be dealt with at the local monthly board of trade meeting here on Monday EUCHARISTIC CONGRESS

Inext so the delegates will advise us what if anything they idd in this matter; and the local board take such action as will assure Newcastle its share in this boom when it comes, and in the advertising, the agitation for it will give us.

Newcastle should lose no opportunity to secure a share in modern progress and to advertise its advantages.

Charles Richmond Mitchell is a son of the late James Mitchell, inspector of lighthouses for the province of New Brunswick, and was born at Newcastle, N.B., November 20, 1872. He received his education recently. He is somewhat of a new figure in the western political arena, but his strends say that he has plenty of the grey matter that is bred down by the sea and that has been so fruitful in producing Premiers of Canada, distinguished college professors, and thinkers in other walks of life, and 'bey state that Premier Sifton has made a very wise choice in selecting for two such important portfolios this young exmember of the judiciary. The new of the provinces of New Brunswick, and was born at Newcastle, N.B., November 20, 1872. He received his education, and the province of New Brunswick, and was born at Newcastle, N.B., November 20, 1872. He received his education in the University of New Brunswick at Fredericton, N.B., graduating from the Canada, distinguished college professors, and thinkers in other walks of life, and 'bey state that Premier

Headed by a special representative of His Holiness the Pope, and with five cardinals, two hundred and sixty bishops, innumerable priests, the list of those who will officiate at the Eucharistic Congress in Montreal is certainly an imposing one. And when it is considered that Montreal is the greatest stronghold of Roman Catholicism on the North American continent, with its halo of church romantic

HOLIDAY-MAKERS IN ENGLAND. Who Take Helidays and Men

Who Make Them. Holiday-makers are not so common as one is apt, at first blush, to imagine; for when we mention "holiday-makers," it is not "holiday-takers." The men who take holidays, and the men who make them are of a very different order. The former spend the greater portion of their lives endeavoring to make a pleasure of business, while the latter succeed in making a oring to make a pleasure of business, while the latter succeed in making a business of pleasure. Vacations are their vocation.

King among the small company of true holiday-makers is Sir Henry Lunn, whose inclusion among the new knights has caused such general satisfaction. For almost twenty years "Dr. Lunn's Tours" have been a feature of every holiday season, and he has made holidays in the most literal sense of the words. "Our found in the most literal sense of the words. "Our found in the most literal sense of the words, "Sir Henry told an interviewer recently, "I have, during the past few years, entirely reversed the principle on which I worked in the days of the Grindelwald Conferences, which were the beginning of my tourist campaigns. My object then was to bring together people who differed. My object now is to bring together people who agree. "But, no matter how careful one may be, on very rare occasions one is bound to find a gooseberry in the strawberry basket, or a strawberry among the gooseberries. I receal one gentleman who got mixed in with a party of savants with whom I went on a cruise to the Isles of Greece.
