Such A Little Pope.

By Charles Phillips—Special Correspondence N. C. W. C. News Service.

(Concluded.)

He seemed smaller still the next time I saw him. Because this time he sat on his throne—and he has to sit on the edge of it to keep his feet on the floor. Yes; this is quite true. But then, even a six footer would be dwarfed in that great towering scarlet chair set high on its dais in the Hall of Consistory.

It was on this same occasion that I first heard Pope Benedict speak. There was a surprise for any man who might have imagined there was frailty in the make-up of "such a little Pope." He is one of the most forceful and dramatic speakers I have ever listened to, and I doubt if there is his superior anywhere in the Church when it comes to delivering a moving, impassioned address. I shall never forget that allocation of Pope Benedict in the Consistory Hall.

He began, as is the papal custom, speaking from the throne. He was pleading for world peace, world adjustment, world justice. His voice grew clearer, stronger, his gestures more and more animated and eloquent. In the end he rose suddenly to his feet, swept away by his own emotion, first with his hands outstretched as if he would beg the whole world to hear him; then clasped those fine little elegant hands that had moved me so at mass as they were raised above the chalice—clasped and almost wringing in the fervor of his pleading. His face was alight, his dark eyes glowed, his voice vibrated through the chamber with an arresting power. It was an unforgettable moment.

But it had been only a few seconds before that I had seen quite a different light in the Holy Father's eyes, the light of humor playing over the pallor of his face with a memorable human touch in the midst of formal ceremonial. It was just flash, a sudden passing incident that may have escaped the eyes of many present, yet it gave a glimpse of Benedict the man. The new Cardinal of Cologne was kneeling at the pontifical throne to receive the sacred birsta. His master of ceremonies was placing the golden chain and cross about the neck of his Eminence. The chain stuck on the Cardinal's ear. The master of ceremonies tugged. The Pope, waiting to go on with the ritual, could not escape the wee comedy of it all. His lips twitched into a humorous smile; then his little hand went out and patted the new Cardinal on the shoulder, as if to reassure him against embarrassment.

After the ceremony, when the Pope passed about among the small group gathered for the occasion, greeting friends and acquaintances in the most informal manner, he always managed, it seemed to me, to turn the salute to his ring into a cordial handshake.

But it was the day of the public consistory when our new American Cardinal received the red hat, that the sight of Pope Benedict touched me most. It was then that he seemed to me most of all "such a little Pope."

He made his entrance that day into the great Sala Regia, rich with its famous frescoes, its Minardi's Liniment Relieves Neuralgia.

tribunes draped with precious tapestries, on the famous Sala Gestatoria, carried on the shoulders of the papal throne bearers, preceded, surrounded and followed by the Noble Guards, the Swiss Guards, the Palatine Guards, and with the great fahelli or pontifical fans heralding his approach. He wore a high gold mitre and was enveloped in a cope of scarlet cloth of gold, so rich and splendid that it beggars description. How tired, how worn, how little he seemed, away up there over the heads of the kneeling throng, on a level even with those in the upper tribunes—he who had barely come to the shoulders of his stalwart guards on Sunday morning! His arms drooped to his knees every few moments, then he moistened his lips. He was pale. But the same sweet agreeableness was in his dark eyes. He seemed to see everyone and to give each one individually and personally his blessing.

I felt that he looked straight at me, straight into my eyes. And there was that about him at that moment while I knelt for his blessing that made my heart utter a little prayer, not only to him but for him. That heavy cope, that great mitre, all the solemn accessories of ceremonial and ritual surrounding him, seemed to me symbols of his high weight and pressure of his high tragic office. Yes, I prayed for him then. I think he wants, desires our prayers. He is such a little Pope, the burden is so terrible on him, the world so uncomprehending, apparently deaf to his pleading for peace and faith in God and Christian fellowship.

MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS

gently unlock the secretions, clear away all effete and waste matter from the system, and give tone and vitality to the whole intestinal tract, relieving constipation, sick headaches, biliousness, coated tongue, foul breath, heartburn and all other troubles arising from a wrong action of the liver.

BEST FOR LIVER.
Mrs. D. C. Wright, 89 Johnston St., Hamilton, Ont., writes:—"I cannot speak too highly of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, in fact, I would not be without them, as I think they are the best possible remedy for the liver."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c. a box at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The husband and wife who by their acts deliberately ignore these obligations, obtain, community respect and consideration under false pretences.

In these days of lowered standards the Catholic home must be a place of prayer. To the warnings of missionaries and confessors may be added the instinct of enlightened patriotism urging every Catholic husband and wife to stand proudly before their fellow-Confidants in the knowledge that, in avoiding the wrath of God, they have fairly won the respect accorded them.

Christians Are Killed

News has just come from Ichang, that twenty-nine Chinese Catholics have been put to death by a group of fanatical Chinese under a self-styled "Ta Han King" or the Heavenly Son of the Ta Han Dynasty.

The massacre took place in a pagan temple in Shu Sha Win, a town on the borders of Hupeh and Szechuen. The Christians were dragged from their homes and brought to the temple where, under threat of death, they were asked to offer incense to "The Living Buddha." They refused, and, like the early Christians, bravely gave their blood for Him who died for them. Three Belgian priests were reported missing, but two have been released.

This party, made up of bonzes (Chinese monks) was originally organized to rid the country of roving bands of robbers and ex-soldiers; but it has gradually developed from a political sect into an intensely anti-Christian mob.

Christian Family

Bulwark of Society

When Archbishop Glennon pointed out in a recent sermon that the passing of the home menaced the national life of America, he sounded a timely warning. In placing emphasis on the importance of home life, he reiterated a doctrine as old as the Church itself—the need of modeling family life on the lines of the humble home of Nazareth.

But the singular fact is that the world, whose present ways lead to the destruction of the home, recognizes, and always has recognized, the importance of the home as the keystone of the nation. Deprived by self-will of the sustaining grace of a sacramental state of matrimony, it has never been able entirely to deny the dignity of the married state.

It has always accorded special recognition to the married man. It has granted him certain privileges, considered him entitled to special consideration in business affairs and in social life.

There was a reason, and it is fitting that good Catholics, whose boast is that they are good Americans, should consider this reason.

The deference paid to the young married couple by their neighbors in the world is based upon the assumption that they will become heads of families—that they will give citizens to the State as the Catholic husband and wife give sons to serve it and souls to glorify God. Moreover, as heads of families they are expected to typify authority, law and order.

W. H. O. Wilkinson Streetford says:—"It affords me much pleasure to say that I experienced great relief from Muscular Rheumatism by using two boxes of Milburn's Rheumatic Pills. Price 5 cents a box."

BOILS AND PIMPLES

ON FACE AND BODY.

Boils and pimples are caused by bad food, and there is only one way to get rid of them and that is to get at the seat of the trouble by using a good reliable blood cleansing medicine such as Burdock Blood Bitters.

This preparation has been on the market for over 40 years, and is the most reliable remedy for all troubles arising from a bad condition of the blood.

It removes all the impurities from the system, and will leave a clear, healthy skin devoid of all eruptions.

Mr. Felix Bohard, 39 Dover St., Charlottetown, Ont., writes:—"I was troubled with boils and pimples, and could not get rid of them. I had used different kinds of remedies and salves, and finally thought there was no relief. I used two bottles of B.B.B. and was completely relieved of all my boils on my neck, back and hips, and the pimples also disappeared."
