the Government, as a colleague of Sir John's, is perhaps among things that for the present had better be left unsaid, as Punch is wont to remark. But this much we will say—that if Sir John goes to what as follows : You support Sir John : indeed ! More truly may it be said that Sir John supports you, and that to his own great dam-age. Why, instead of being a support to hold him up, you are more like a mill-stone about his neck to drag him down. Electors of Midlothian. otland Urged to Favor Home Rule and to Condemn Lord Sallabury's Policy of Coercion—Earl Carnaryon Hakes a Further Explanation.

London, June 13.-Mr. Gladstone has seued the following manifesto to the electors of Midlothian : "Gentlemen, -- In consequence of the defeat of the bill for the better govern-ment of Ireland, the ministry advised and Her Majesty was pleased to sanction the dissolution of parliament for a decision by the nation of the gravest and likewise seek, after sitting in thirteen parlia-ments, a seat in the fourteenth, and with this view to solicit for the fifth time the honor of your confidence. "At the last election I endeavored in my addresses and speeches to impress upon you the fact that a great crisis had srrived in the affairs of Ireland. Weak as the late government was for ordinary which brought 313 members to vote for as the late work was to train a for dealing with that crisis. A comprehen-sive measure proceeding from that gov-ernment would have received warm and extensive support from the Liberal party, and would probably have closed the Irish controversy within the present session and have left the parliament of 1885 free to prosecute the new stagnant work of ordinary legislation, with the multitude of questions it concludes. My earnest

hepe was to support the late cabinet in such a course of policy. "On January 26 last the opposite policy of coercion was declared to have been the hoice of the government, the Earl of preparation in the market for healing Carnarvon alone refusing to share in it. The Irish question was thus placed in the foreground to the exclusion of every oth-er. The hour as all felt was come, the only come of the foreground to the exclusion of every othonly point remaining to determine was per box.

"In my judgment the proposal of coercion was not justified by facts and was doomed to certain and disgraceful failure. Some method of governing Ireland other than coercion ought, as I thought, to be sought for and to be found. Therefore I viewed with regret Land other thought, to be sought for found. Therefore I viewed with regret the fall of the late cabinet, and when summoned by Her Majesty to form a new one I undertook it on the basis of an anti-coercion policy with the fullest wilson opposes him." We can speak authoritatively for at least one of the parties mentioned above, intention of being a can-the to e whether it might not be possible to and Ireland a domestic legislature and aintain the honor and consolidate the nits of the Empire. A government was a state of the state of the second unity of the Empire. A government was formed and the work was at once put in hand.

"You will now, gentlemen, understand how and why it is that the affairs of Ire-land, and not for the first time, have thrust aside every other subject and ad-journed our hopes of useful and progres-sive legislation. As a question of the first accomplished, a great supper must be made, people are stuffed to repletion, much food is wasted, and the little which is made above expenses given for the benevolent object for which the affair was gotten up. Fo matter how long and loud "Deacon Hardshell" prays for the Lord to revive His work even the uttermost parts of the earth, nor how often "Squire Pursetight" throws in his amens, I don't believe the money they give is acceptable to God, when it takes all the feolish worldly amusement which can possibly be crowded into a church festival to thaw the ice from around it, and squeeze the money out. I think their hearts at such times are warmed far more with love of self and the approval of the world, than with love to God and His cause. When our hearts are whelly given to God, I don't believe we shall need any of these things to help support the Gospel. I believe the usual manner of raising mosey for religious purposes is radically wrong. If instead of giving just as small an amount as possible, or more liberally on certain occasions when drawn out by "bushels of fun," or fear of what people will say, all professing Christians would religiously set apart one teath of their income, (no matter how large or how small their income may be,) for charity and good works, fairs and festivals would not be needed, and money for such purposes would be far more plenty that it now is. Methinks some of you are saying : "What an old fogy she is !" But I deny the charge. I believe most heartily in amusements, lively and innocent, for young and old; but I object most heart-ily, also, to many of the methods taken to obtain money to advance the cause of Ged. The families of the two sisters set forth by Petresia furnish a striking ex-ample of the difference in home govern-ment. While we cannot but feel that the elder was too cold, unloving and strict with her children, how many others we can bring to mind, who never crossed their children, but allowed them every indulgence, whose hearts now ache most bitterly. Many prayers, much thought and great care are needed on
