Steamer Sighted

Jan. 25.—According to the Captain Wilson, master of the steamer Hannington Court, sighted in port yesterday, he believes John, a floating standing, and appeared to have not long been abandoned. At the time a strong northwest wind was blowing, with a high sea running, and the derelict was driving southeast. The Hannington Court immediately reported the presence of the derelict via Wireless to Cape Race.

It is an Enemy to Germs. Thousands of bottles being used every day. For sale by all druggists and general dealers. MINARD'S LINIMENT CO., Ltd., Yarmouth, N.S.

Here's the Model 90

One of a half a million Overlands now in use.

Beautiful in appearance, powerful in performance, comfortable even on rough roads because the cantilever rear springs smooth out the bumps of the road. Big tyres help to ease the going.

There is plenty of leg room for both driver and passengers. Electric control from the steering column, simple to operate. Women drive it with ease.

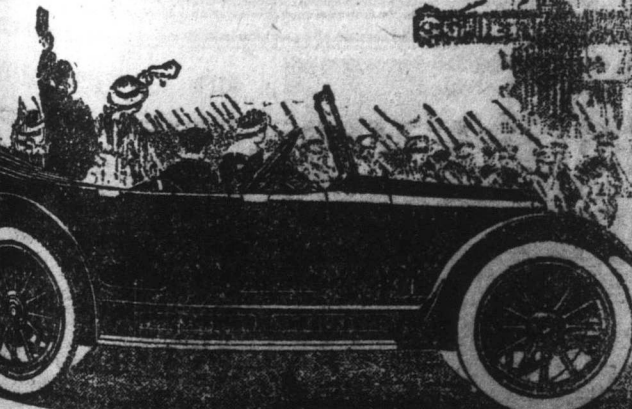

Light, but easy riding; powerful, but easy driving; is practical enough for the roughest going.

Completely equipped — nothing extra to buy.

The price makes it an unusual value.

The Evangelists.

(L. G. M.)

There may have been fine-weather Christians in St. John's at one time; but it is certain that there were not very many yesterday; for despite the heavy snowfall, and the equally heavy walking, the services of the Evangelists were crowded. Gower Street Church being filled to its utmost capacity; and they were a splendid wind-up to the four weeks' campaign which has been so faithfully conducted and so well arranged. The committee are to be congratulated upon their excellent oversight of the whole series, and we take this opportunity of complimenting the Rev. Dr. Curtis as Chairman, upon his signal success, and upon his devotion, and upon his having around him such an earnest band of men and Christian workers. It meant much to direct the campaign; but we are pleased to be able to report that it was well conducted, and that success was attached to every feature of it.

It was our privilege to attend the afternoon service, and to listen to the address upon that most important subject "The Baptism of the Holy Spirit." We were fortunate in finding a seat quite near the pulpit, and were therefore able to see, what the gentle Evangelist said, as well as to hear what she said. We backed her words up with our prayer for her, and in every way extended our sympathy to her. We were sitting behind her. We looked at the vast array of faces before her. We knew that many of them had come from afar; some a distance of nine miles, and that expectations were high, and that the occasion was worthy the Evangelist's lost effort. Our position was unique. We owed a duty to the speaker, and to the great cause to which she has devoted her life; and also to the tens and tens of thousands of people, who far and near, at home and abroad, read these reports. We therefore followed closely what she said, and aid, and here is the result.

As on all such occasions, the Evangelist began her discourse with prayer. Yesterday her prayer was a little longer than usual; and in addition to the invocation, which is offered at such a moment, she continued her intercession; and in doing so she manifested the depth of her concern in the seriousness of the subject, and her entire dependence upon Divine help. With calm dignity she then read the various Scripture references to the Holy Spirit, and His work. From John the Baptist, and the Saviour Himself, and from the Apostolic writings, she copiously quoted, and thus laid a firm groundwork for her address. To the early church she devoted her first remarks, and showed how much more in evidence the direct work of the Holy Spirit then was, than it has been in later times. There was a simple faith, neither the times nor the conditions were so critical. Men didn't quibble, they had been taught to "avoid vain disputings and genealogies"—nor were they analytically inclined—things are now much different, and doubt, and suspicion and scepticism seem to have supplanted the faith of the early Christians.

The Holy Spirit had been manifested in many ways in New Testament times; and its outpouring or baptism, was part of the Apostles' ministry. Especially was this the case of Pentecost, when the "gift of tongues" was given, and the Apostles received that Divine power which had been promised them by the Saviour. Being thus "endued" they began the great mission of evangelizing the world by preaching the Gospel to every creature.

The Baptism of the Holy Spirit implies both gifts and fruits. The gifts may deceive, but not so the fruits. The chief fruit of the Spirit is Love, and where this is exercised, the gifts are sure to be put to a proper use. Gifts are not always used properly. They are often misused, as well as misplaced. Demonstration or noise, may at times be necessary, but they should not be taken as the work of the Spirit on all occasions. It is easy to be misled. The devil is still busy, and as of old, he sometimes appears as an angel of light. The Evangelist interspersed her address with many of her own personal experiences, and in doing so she gave us the secret of her success. She is a sanctified woman. At the age of eight she was converted, and at the age of twenty-one she received the baptism of the Holy Spirit, and since that day she has been wholly in the hands of God, and fully consecrated to His service. She has had raptures of vision which were too sacred for utterance, and too good to give out for idle gossip. She has been into a frame of mind that is sometimes spoken of as a "seventh heaven," and has received such an infilling of power, that she was hardly able to contain herself. To get into this wonderful experience she paid the full price, and made a full surrender of herself, and has been raised up to publish her message to the sons of men.

That Mrs. Demarest is a remarkable woman we must all agree; and having heard her discourse yesterday, and having paid particular attention to her explanation of the natural and the supernatural, we now look upon her in a higher sense than heretofore. We pronounce her a prophetess; and as such she will find a big place in the world at large, and her name will go far and wide, and her influence will ever be for good. This is all that we have time to write now; and like our former reports, we still are conscious that we are unable to convey to the reader the depth of Mrs. Demarest's words, or to interpret to them, the high pedestal of consecration upon which she stands.

Curliana.

To-morrow at the Curling Rink the first Point Game for the season will be run off, when the "H. D. Reid Medal" (open to all) and the "Taylor Medal" (for curlers 2 years and under) will be competed for. These medals will be as usual played for in the afternoon, as well as at night. Mr. F. W. Hayward was the winner of the "H. D. Reid Medal" last year with the handsome score of 35 points and Mr. W. M. Butt was the winner of the "Taylor Medal" for the juniors, with 19 points. At the evening session this game will be played as last year, viz.—The first 30 players registered on the blackboard shall draw and commence to play at once. First play to commence not later than 7.30. The balance of the players to play the second session.

W. P. A.

FOURTH ANNUAL MEETING.
All interested in the splendid work of the W. P. A. would do no better than to read the fourth annual report, which is very nicely printed and arranged. In full is given the Association's comprehensive work, the different reports from the various committees is most interesting, showing as it does, the results that have come of their endeavours. In addition to 19 in St. John's, the W.P.A. has no less than 212 branches in the outports, the reports of which are very encouraging, proving the loyalty and hard-working propensities of the outport women of the Island.
