Prince Bismarck is fond of walking, and whenever his health allows he still goes out on foot (always accompanied by hisbig dog), and wears his military cap and tunic; but, instead of dangling a sword, as a few years back, he now leans on a cane. When the hastead of danging a word, as a When the young Emperor William either rides or walks out he is invariably in full regimentals, with a long cavalry sabre hung from his waist, and on foot it is his custom to manipulate in addition a stick, not quite as substantial, however, as the stout, tall

An interesting controversy is under way An interesting controversy is under way in the English papers as to whether ladies should ride man fashion, it having been inted that several well-known lady riders ontemplated taking a bold step this season that direction. Field, in a long editorial, condemns the scheme, declaring that the side saddle is a better seat for the woman than the cross saddle safer and more comside saddle is a better seat for the woman than the cross saddle, safer and more comfortable while riding, and less dangerous in case of accident. Among other arguments it advances is the one that the natural roundness of a woman's limbs renders her unable to keep a secure seat on a cross saddle. Plump and round-limbed men, it asserts, can never be good riders.

Light Let in on Blenheim's Murder Mystery.

The Victim Identified-A "Suspect"

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., March 3.—Some facts came to light Saturday in regard to the man found in the subway near Princeton some days ago. When the Toronto express arrived two large wooden chests, addressed to H. Benweil, Clinton, Ont., were found in the bonded compartment of the Canadian Express Company's office here, having arrived on Feb. 18 in bond through the United States from New York. Upon making inquiries at the hotels it was learned that two young Englishmen by the names of J. Burchell and Mr. Pelley, the former a married man who had his wife with him, had been stopping at Mr. Baldwin's private boarding-house for the past two weeks, and knew something of who the man found dead at Princeton was, and that Mr. Burchell and wife had left here Friday for Princeton and Mr. Pelley had returned to New York the same day.

BURCHELL'S STATEMENT.

It was learned at Mr. Baldwin's that Burchell would return this evening, and he did by the 8 o'clock G. T. R. train, and the following statement was made by him: "The dead man's name was Fred. C. Benwell, of London, Eng. He was 34 years of age, and well connected, his father being an officer in the British army.

Three Men Killed and Eighteen Cars Destroyed.

Burnell was arrested, being tomate to wis boarding-house.

It has come to light since the arrest that Burchell was in this place one year ago accompanied by his wife, the same woman that is with him now, and stopped at the Imperial Hotel, registering as Mr. and Mrs. Somerset, arriving at midnight and remaining a day or two. Upon their return on Feb. 19 last they went to the same hotel. The proprietor recognizing them, they renewed their acquaintance, but said that on account of his good family connections and his coming on this trip trading in horses he took the name of Burchell and wished to be called and known by that alias.

THE SUSPECT.

Burchell has a dark complexion, black mustache, sharp features, front teeth badly decayed, is about 5 feet 9 inches, weighs about 150 pounds, about 30 years of age, has a tired expression around the eyes and is of a jovial disposition. His wife is a slender, rather pleasant-faced blonde, and has the appearance of being a highly-educated and refined English lady. Burchell will be brought up this morning for a hearing before the Polico Magistrate.

doubt but that the motive for the murder of Benwell was to obtain his money, and it may turn out that he may have had a large sum, coming as he did to Canada to purchase a farm in the best part of Ontario. It is even said that he intended to visit the fine stock-farm of T. C. Patterson, near Eastwood, and look that outfit over, having heard that a portion of it was in the market. One of the strangest things about this murder is that the body was discovered in the loneliest part of the county of Oxford. If Benweil's old country friends knew anything of the murder then how did they know of so lonely and desolate a spot to deposit the body? It would be supposed that no one but a person with a thorough knowledge of the whole neighboring country could select the Blenheim swamp as a hiding place for his ghastly victim. There is abundant evidence to show that Benwell was not murdered where he was found. He was done for at some other point and his life-less body driven to the swamp where it was expected it would never be found.
