Mrs. Gladstone.

[From the Ladies' Home Journal.]

She is one of the most charming-looking women you ever saw, a sweet, kind face framed in full, soft, lovely hair and topped by a cap of velvet and lace. A gown that falls in artistic folds and doesn't rustle, and a way of looking at you as if she were interested in everything you said—that's Mrs. Gladstone. She does not care for society, as it is meant by the round of balls and receptions, and the giving and going to them, but she is delighted when she is at the head of her own dinner-table, and has about her a circle of friends who know and love her and Mr. Gladstone. Unlike the wife of any other Prime Minister she never went in for having a salon, for surrounding herself with rich and powerful friends who simply care to be received at the house of a prime minister, and yet have no real interest in the cause which he so thoroughly and entirely championed. Instead she has given her time in caring for him, to seeing that he was under any and all circumstances as comfortable as possible, and, that in this way, his health was preserved for the nation for whom he did so much good. Her happiest moments are when she is with her husband at Hawarden, but on every important occasion she has always been by his side. Just remember when she is with her measure at marticle, but on every important occasion she has always been by his side. Just remember that this means going over the country in railway trains, being for hours on open air platforms, and then you will understand why the people of England worship Mrs. Gladstone as a heroine.

Shetland Ponies

Shetland Ponies.

The conventional Shetland pony, the animal represented in picture books—namely, about 40 to 44 inches high, very tight jointed, and with an impossible growth of hair all over him—is just about as bad a type of this famous race as can be well imagined. From his build he is generally short winded and thoroughly impracticable in his paces. A South Mainland specimen, on the other hand, long and rakish in build, hard grown, as the saying is, and clean limbed, will far surpass his companion in staying power.

One of this hardy breed—in our opinion the ideal Shetland pony—has been known to travel from Shumburg to Lerwick and back the same day, with a tolerably heavy riding weight, say 56 miles altogether of extremely hilly road. But, minor differences apart, there are certain characteristics—unfailing tests in their way with the experienced judge—which go the "make-up" of a Shetland, as distinguished from an Iceland or Farce, popy—e.g., a certain unmistakable breadth of build, set of pasterns, and, more particularly, an apathetic air which no other breed possesses.

tain unmistakable breadth of build, set of pasterns, and, more particularly, an apathetic air which no other breed possesses.

Your "Sheltie" is not a quick animal, is inclined to be sleepy rather than otherwise in his paces, and is, as a rule, disposed to do no more than he can help in the way of exertion, though, if put to it, he evinces great power of endurance, and will go through an immense amount of work for his size. The lecland variety is altogether inferior, short lived, narrower in build, and generally fallacious, but, with all this, he is quicker, livelier, and lacks that air of pensive melancholy which haunts every Shetland pony.—[Popular Science Monthly.

REV. J. GOFORTH. Letter Regarding His Work in China Written to His Brother, Mr. Wm. Hooper, of This City.

Over a River of Molasses.

From the Chicago Tribune.

The following remarkable story, told by an eye witness, is entitled to a place among the instances of intelligence among the lower animals. A cook was much annoyed to find his pastry shelves attacked by ants. By careful watching it was discovered that off they came out twice a day in search of food—at about 7 in the morning and 4 in the afternoon. How were the pies to be protected against the invaders?

He did not have long to wait, for at 6:30 o'clock he noticed that off in the left hand corner of the pantry was a line of ants slowly making their way in the ditection of the pies. They seemed like a vast army coming forth to attack the enemy. In front was a leader, who was larger than any of the others, and who always kept a little ahead of his troops.

They were of the sort known as the medium-sized red ant, which is regarded as the most intelligent of its kind, whose scientific name is formice rubra.

About 40 ants out of 500 stepped out and joined the leader. The general and his aids held a council, and then proceeded to examine the circle of molasses. Certain portions of it seemed to be assigned to the different ants, and each selected unerringly the point in the section under his charge the section of the piece and the leader and say sheepskin dress for the very cold weather. Besides I have long-legged cloth boots, each one big enough for two feet. Such seems the point in the section under his charge the point in the portions of it seemed to be assigned to the different ants, and each selected unerringly the point in the section under his charge where the stream of molasses was narrowest. Then the leader made his tour of inspection.

The order to march was given, and the ants all made their way to a hole in the wall in which the plastering was loose. Here they broke rank and set about carrying pieces of plaster to the place in the molasses which had been agreed upon as the narrowest. To and fro they went from the nail hole to the molasses, until, at 11:30 o'clock they had thrown a bridge across. They then formed themselves in line and marched over, and by 11:45 every ant was eating pie. woman with a tight waist. Your Aunt Rose wears Chinese clothes, and I think they are very becoming to her. The first time she put them on and walked through the streets with me all the Chinese women flocked out to greet her and express their pleasure at her adopting their dress. pleasure at her adopting their dress.

I know a missionary in China who teaches about 100 students. Once when he was talking about the wicked and foolish custom of footbinding and calling upon his students to do all they could to stop it, one of the boys spoke up and said: "It seems to us Chinese that the tight lacing indulged in by foreign women is more injurious and foolish than that of footbinding." The missionary had no word to reply. He was beaten in the eyes of all common sense.

We hope to buy or rent some houses in this town in a few days. There are about 1,000 families here, and six cities as big as London within from ten to twenty miles distance. But how shall I give you an idea of the number of towns and villages within of the number of towns and villages within twenty miles of this center? I will say as many towns and villages as there are houses in London and then will have some to spare. The little girls of this town cannot come out to see me. Their brothers, little and big, all may come, but the Chinese women would not think it nice for little women would not think to have a print to come out. The boys say I am not a bit cross-looking. They freely come and talk with me. They think it very funny to see me eat. I give some of the little fellows sugar to eat, and find they like it just as much as the small boys at home.

Oh, how giad I will be when I see these boys and girls bowing and serving Jesus. I am quite sure that Jesus intends to choose of these bright boys to preach his Gospel.

ETHIOPIANS MADE WHITE.

Doctors Say This Can Be Done Through the Transplanting of Skin From the Philadelphia Record.]
Provided a victim could be found for the skinning operation, surgical skill is equal to the feat of turning a negro's skin permanently white. The question of the transposition of color in the cuticle of the of her hair.

A physician, in seriously discussing the matter, said yesterday that the original cause of the difference in the color of the skin of different races is still a matter of some dispute. Some authorities on the subject maintain that it is attributable with the color of the subject maintain that it is attributable. solely to climate. In contradiction to this, however, other authorities prove that the dark color of the skin does not depend the dark color of the skin does not depend on geographical position, nor even alto-gether on racial purity, by the fact that the extremes of the chromatic scales are found throughout the whole negro domain. Dr. J. V. Shoemaker, the eminent der-matologist, of this city, in speaking of the Dr. J. V. Shoemaker, the eminent dermatologist, of this city, in speaking of the result of Dr. Ege's experiment, said that, in his opinion, a negro's skin grafted upon a white man would probably lose its color, the process of cutting disturbing the cells containing the coloring matter. Dr. H. C. Beeuning, demonstrator of anatomy at the Medico-Chirurgical College, also holds this opinion, but at the same time says it is imperative that the particles of skin'stransplanted should be very minute as in the case of Dr. Ege's experiment. Dr. Boeuning also said that while colored skin transplanted on a white man will lose its color and become white, white skin grafted upon a negro would never become black. From this it will be seen that although a negro might possibly be turned white, those white persons who are so enamored of the soft glossy unctuous epidermis of the negro as to desire a change are debarred by nature from indulging their peculiar taste.
