Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 1.-The biggest combination of river coal interests ever attempted has at last come to a focus. A committee is at work considering the schedules of property values as presented by the separate coal companies operating on the river. The scheme proposes the organization of one company with a capital of $11,000,000, controlling the river coal interests from Lock No. 5, on the Monongahela River, to New Orleans. The alleged primary object of the combination is to reduce

Auspicious Opening of the Hospital Fair

By Her Excellency Lady Aberdeen.

Addresses of Welcome from Mrs. Boomer on Behalf of the Women's Council, by the Mayor on Behalf of the City, and Dr. Wilson for the Jubilee Committee-

Her Excellency's Response.

Lady Aberdeen and party, including Major Denison, A. D. C., in attendance, and Dr. Worcester, arrived at the C. P. R. station at 11:45, the train being twenty minutes late. Many representative citizens were on the platform to meet her excellency as the train pullfrom the west and north, turning de- ed in. The party at once entered carcidedly cold; clearing; light local snow riages and proceeded to the Hospital Fair. Her excellency rode with Mrs. Labatt in the latter's carriage, and among the other citizens in the escorting party were Mayor Little, Mr. V. Cronyn, Dr. Roome, Principal English, Mrs. English, fire vice-president of the Local Council of Women; Mrs. Tilley, a member of the executive of the National Council of Women, and Mrs. Yarker, acting president of the Hos-

MAYOR LITTLE. Mayor Little was the next speaker. He said: "On behalf of the council of the corporation, and of the citizens generally, I beg to tender you a most cordial welcome. Our citizens have always been glad to welcome you in their midst, because your coming not only gives them an opportunity to testify their loyalty to the crown and their appreciation of your own good qualities, but your visits invariably result in the advancement of some good cause. Ever since your excellency came to our Dominion you have been ready at all times to sacrifice your own ease and comfort when called upon to assist in furthering any charitable or benevolent object, and in many instances you have taken the initiative in forming organizations for the assistance of those not able to care for themselves. Many of those who have been assisted by these organizations will keep you in grateful remembrance long after you have returned to the motherland, and no one can tell what may result from the good seed sown by you. I trust your present stay in our city may be pleasant in every respect Owing to a dissolution of partnership, I to yourself, and may you carry away kindly recollections of our Forest City.' Judge Wm. Elliot expressed the optimistic opinion that there was not the slightest reason for doubts of the success of the project which the ladies were bent upon furthering.

HER EXCELLENCY. As Lady Aberdeen rose to reply she was warmly applauded. She expressed the very great pleasure she felt to be again in London, and spoke of her happy recollections of former visits to the city, on which occasions she had always been well treated. Continuing, her excellency announced a message of regret from Lord Aberdeen at his inability to be present also. His excellency, however, sent to the ladies a cordial greeting and best wishes for the success of their undertaking. The speaker was sure that Lord Aberdeen would have liked to come and stay about the stalls for a long time. (Laughter.) Speaking of the proposed children's hospital, she said it was a proper and admirable memorial of the diamond jubilee, and one which had the special sanction of her Majesty through the Prince of Wales, who had said the memorials should be something to relieve the sick and suffering. She eulogized London, and said the city should have as fair a hospital as its name. A little whisper had reached the speaker that there was some little difference of opinion as to the form of the memorial. Some, she heard, held that a complete new building was needed, while others favored remodeling the old. True, strong arguments could be brought forward on both sides, but it was not hard to see which side would be the winner. "When women start housekeeping they want the best that is going," said her excellency, laughingly. She spoke at some length of when the apples boiled over." the Victorian Order of Nurses, and said the women of London would in their own good time support it. Dr. Worcester, of Boston, also spoke.
