Increased Efficiency With Use

For some years past we have maintained that, whereas the Poppet Valve tends to deteriorate in efficiency almost from its first active use, the Knight engine increases its efficiency in use; also that the law of diminishing reclaims for the all-round supremacy of the Knight Engine were substantiated:

Results of Examination of Parts. (POPPET VALVE ENGINE.)

The report of the Judges of the Poppet Valve test was as follows: The exhaust from the motor was smoky, and considerable carbon deposits were observed on the exhaust valves after the test.

Adjustments—The following adjustments were made during the 300-hour run: During the 147th hour the lock nut on the exhaust valve tappet of No. 1 cylinder was found to be loose, and the tappet in such a position that the valve did not seat properly. The tappet was screwed down and locked. It was later found that this tappet had been set for more clearance that it had at the start of the test. It was consequently reset at the 152nd hour to its original position, where it remained to the end of the test. While this adjustment was being obtained the power fell to the end of the test. While this adjustment was being obtained the power fell momentarily, but aside from this the adjustments did not result in any greater varation in the power developed than were recorded during the periods when no adjustments were made. Two spark plugs were replaced without stopping the motor one during the 106th and one during the 128th hour.

The screws which fasten the cage containing the carbureter air valve in place were also tightened once during the run. A slight leak around the gland on the water pump was present during the greater part of the test, but no adjustment thereof was made.

AVERAGE H.P. DEVELOPED. 1st five hours ..... 2nd five hours ...... Thence it decreased steadily until during the last five hours it was 34.1, or a decrease of over 10%, as compared with the average of the first five hours.

This goes to show how fully our claims as to the increasing power of the Knight have been substantiated.
