Inhuman Punishment by a Village Teacher.

One day this week a female teacher in London West left her schoo in charge of a young girl whilst she (the teacher) went visiting a couple of days. Being without their regular teacher some of the little boys got garrulous. The young female in charge took down their names and handed them in to the teacher on Wednesday morning. She then proceeded to inflict the most inhuman and brutal castigation to the little children, slashing them on their arms, legs and bodies with a heavy stick until some of them had large weals and blisters on their bodies, and the mother of one boy says when he got home he almost fainted, and she too, and when the boy was examined he was black and blue from head to foot. This was a son of Mr. Alex. Dewar, of the village. What action will be taken is not decided upon yet. No doubt a discreet application of the rod is oft times necessary for healthy discipline in our schools, but to lacerate little children with sticks is unwarranted brutality, and should be condemned by the school authorities and the community at large.

The man who fired Mr. D. D. Wilson's barn, near Seaforth, about a year ago ha been captured at Oakville. On appearing before the magistrate at Clinton he pleaded guilty the offence, and was sent for trial. It appears that at the time of the fire Hawse, that is the man's name, was engaged as hostler in one of the hotels in town. While drinking at an hotel in Oakville last week, he was overheard to say that he had set fire to a barn between Seaforth and Harpurhey, which led to his arrest.

Last Tuesday morning as Mr. Daniel Clark, of Seaforth, was going from Egmondville towards Seaforth, and when opposite Coleman's sawmill, he was met by Mr. Tobias Nash, a farmer of McKillop, who had a gun in his hand, with which he struck Clark several times on the head and knocked him down. Nash was summoned to appear before Messrs. John Beattie and A. Strong and Mayor Beattie on Wednesday evening to answer to the charge preferred against him. The evidence went to show that Nash had struck Clark with the butt end of the gun several times and knocked Clark into the ditch, and that a young man named Holland had taken Nash off Clark when he (Clark) was in an insensible condition The magistrates sent Nash for trial at the spring assizes, admitting him to bail at $1,000. The quarrel between the parties arose out of a dispute which occurred last winter, and it is a blessing to both parties that it did not terminate fatally.

D. D. Wilson's barns in McKillop township, near Seaforth, were burned about a year ago. Henry Haas, who was arrested at Seaforth for connection with the affair about a week ago, has given information to Detective Greer, which that officer thinks will result in the conviction of the guilty men. Acting on the information obtained from various sources, Detectives Allen and Greer went out from here on Wednesday night last and arrested William Hodgins, a tailor of Parkhill, on a charge of arson. Both men have been taken to Goderich jail for safe keeping, and as yet the Detectives have made no further move. There is a reward of $600 for the conviction of the guilty parties.

Alex. McEwen, who was arrested as a vagrant by Detective Allen in Lambeth on Friday last, is in the last stages of consumption. He was brought before P. M. Noble Saturday morning, when the question of what to do with him was easily solved by Gaoler Kelly and Dr. Smith. After putting their hands in their own pockets these two gentlemen passed round the hat, and Magistrate, lawyers, constables, turnkeys and sympathizers between them subscribed enough to send the poor fellow to his home in Belleville (not Brockville) with a dollar or two in his pocket to keep him comfortable on the way. He left by the afternoon train for the east Saturday.

A special meeting will be held in two weeks to appoint teachers and janitors in the Simcoe street school. The question of action for an issue of debentures of $50,000 was then discussed, and the Committee adjourned to interview No. 1 of the Council in regard to the subject.

Mr. Sharman moved that the Simcoe street school be opened when seated, and the Mayor and Council, the city ministers and the ex-members of the Board be invited to attend the opening. Carried. Each member of the Board will be supplied with five tickets of admission. The necessary arrangements will be left in the hands of the Chairman, Messrs. Sharman and J. M. Wilson.

"THAT UNRULY MEMBER"

Gets the Better of Commissioner Essery Again.

HE BROWBEATS MR. STRINGER,

And Also Turns Fire on His Worship Mayor Cowan.

PECULIAR SCENE IN A SICK CHAMBER.

Mr. Alex. Finley, of Woodstock, Appointed as Engineer in Charge of the Pump House at Springbank—An Unusual Finale.

A special meeting of the Water Commissioners was held at the residence of Chairman Geo. T. Hiscox, on the corner of Queen's avenue and William street, on Saturday afternoon, for the purpose of receiving the report of the experts as to the competency of the respective applicants for the position of Pumping Engineer at Springbank and appointing a successor to Samuel Stringer as engineer in charge. But even the sanctity of Mr. Hiscox's bedchamber did not prove a sufficient preventative to the scenes of repartee and acrimony which have so often been witnessed in the Board rooms during the year. Both Mayor Cowan and Commissioner Essery appeared to feel that the meeting would not be free from the usual war of words. The table which always separates them in the Board room was missing, but both, as if by mutual consent, placed a bureau between them to prevent any collision.

After the Chairman had stated the object of the meeting,

Secretary Burke read the report made by Experts Geo. H Robb and J. H. Killey, which recommended the appointment of Alexander Fialey, of Woodstock, to the position as the most thoroughly qualified of the applicants, and noting some repairs which were needed in the machinery at Springbank.

Mr. Essery moved that the report be received, and that Mr. Finley receive the appointment.

Mayor Cowan said before the motion was put he wished to read a letter he had received. He pulled a number of papers out of his pocket, and selecting one, which, he said, was marked "private," proceeded to read it. It stated that the writer had been credibly informed by a medical man that Finley was physically disqualified for the position, having a chronic ailment in one of his legs. His Worship parenthetically remarked here that the document was written by Mr. Stringer to Dr. T. V. Hutchinson, and had been handed to him to make whatever use of it he saw fit.

Mr. Essery—I fully expected some missive of that kind.

The Mayor said that having received this information the Board would be culpable if anything went wrong after this man was appointed. He continued to read the letter, which went on to say that a man would not leave a $1,300 job for an $890 if this was not so. It was a queer thing if the Board was going to make the pumping house a hospital for such men.

Mr. Essery moved that the letter be filed for future reference.

The Mayor moved in amendment that the matter of appointing an Engineer be deferred.

Mr. Essery—If that amendment carries we will be in the same position, only there will be a different patient in the hospital.

The Mayor said he had all along been opposed to having Mr. Killey as one of the examiners, as he had recommended one of the applicants, and that was the applicant who was officially recommended.

The Chairman would have sooner seen another man than Mr. Killey on the examining board, but he believed, nevertheless, that the best man had been appointed.

Mr. Essery then followed with a lengthy speech, in which all his imaginative genius was brought into play. He imagined that it was queer that these letters from Mr. Stringer should crop up at every meeting of the Board, and he imagined that it would be a strange thing if Mr. Stringer was to be allowed to run the Board. He further imagined and charged that it was an attempt on the part of Mr Stringer to keep himself in the pay of the public by such subterfuges. With reference to making the Pumping House a hospital, he imagined that it could not be more effectually done than by keeping a tinsmith there as an engineer, and the last man for the Board to take advice from was one who had never done his duty, and had been wire-pulling to raise sympathy in his own behalf. If the report was rejected on the evidence of a professional man all well and good, but the speaker imagined a man who had so suddenly jumped from a pumping engineer to a doctor of medicine was not competent to judge. The matter of selecting the examiners had been left with the superintendent, and he continued to imagine that because a man once worked for another it would hardly be reasonable to suppose that he was to be owned by him forever afterwards.

The Chairman said Mr. Tracy had frequently seen Mr. Finley, and asked that official if he had ever noticed any physical disability a out him

Mr. Tracy said he had not.

Mr. Essery said with regard to his leaving a $1,300 job, that the present one was nearly worth that as the house rent, fuel, etc., was worth $350 a year.

Mr. Tracy said Finley had told him he was getting about the same where he was as he would have here.

The Mayor said the letter had not been written in a dictatorial spirit, but the Board would be negligent in its duty if this man was appointed before an examination was made of his physical powers, the same as required of policeme .

The Chairman asked Mr. Tracy if he did not think the man was able to run the machinery.

Mr. Tracy said he was perfectly able to build the machinery, and to run it for two or three hours the other day.

Mr. Essery indulged in some more asperities, and after stating that the evidence was of the flimsiest kind, imagined again that Mr. Stringer was actuated by selfish motives.

The Mayor said he was more responsible than the others, as he was on the Board as the representative of the City Council, which owned the property and would be the losers if anything went wrong.

This made the little Commissioner's eye flash fire, and proved the prelude to another lengthy harangue.

Mr. Essery said the Mayor was here as the representative of Mr. Samuel Stringer, and was—

The Mayor—And head of the corporation.

Mr. Essery—I don't care whether you're the taft or head or all around it. Continuing—And was continually presenting letters on his behalf that an honorable man, having a decent name, would be ashamed to present. Such documents were always in existence, and popped up at the proper time, but the very source from whence they came was enough to bring them into discredit. It was wirepulling to keep a man in the position who was unfit for it and always had been, although those who appointed him may not have been to blame. But there was now no reason why any member of the Board should champion him

The Mayor said he had always been opposed to Mr. Stringer's disabsa especially as no charge had been brought against him. Mr. Essery's action was stigmatized as the crowning act of one of the meanest and most contemptible acts he had ever seen perpetrated in the whole of his municipal experience. He needn't have come to the meeting to-day, as there was but little chance of him ever carrying his point. Everything was cut and dried. But as the representative of the majority of the ratepayers he wanted to wash his hands clean of any culpability in the matter. We were now on the eve of an election, and then the great tribunal would say whether he was right or not

Mr. Essery was ready for it.

The Chairman asked his Worship what he meant by saying all the business was cut and dried.

The Mayor said he had reference only to the later acts of the Board.

The Chairman said there was nothing cut and dried as far as he was concerne .

Mr. Essery said he considered where it came from, and imagined it was on a par with the letter. He was going to offer himself again to the people, and was prepared to meet the Advertiser's candidate with his cry of "revenge."

The Mayor said that we would know whether Mr. Essery's action in this matter was endorsed or not.

The Chairman—Well, I'll put the motion.

The Mayor—There's an amendment, Mr. Chairman.

The Chairman—Well, I'll put the amendment first. Has it been seconded ?

The Secretary—No, sir.

The Mayor—It will not be seconded unless you do it.

The Chairman—Oh, yes; there's Mr. Essery.

Mr. Essery (with a satirical laugh)—I'm afraid I must decline.

The Chairman—The motion's carried, then.

Mr. Essery moved that as soon as Mr. Finley arrived the Secretary be instructed to notify Mr. Stringer that his services were no longer needed. Carried.

This ended the business, and the Commissioners transformed into three of the most jolly and affable men imaginable, amusing the wondering officials and reporters with reminiscenses of by-gone days for half an hour. The Chairman was also affected by a little touch of consternation at the almost miraculous transformation, and in the exuberance of his spirits suggested that the Board divide their salaries among the different charities. As there are about a dozen charities, and the salaries amount to but $3, the managers of these charitable institutions need not build to any great extent on this munificence.

THE THEATRICAL EVICTION.

An Assault Case Before the Police Court Saturday.

The theatre dispute was ventilated in the Police Court Saturday. In the information Mr. Walker Marsh charges T. Parks and Frank Kerchmer with assault. Mr. Geo. W. Marsh appeared for the plaintiff, and Messrs. J. H. Flock and A. J. B Macdonald for the defendants. The P. M. confined the parties to the one point, as to whether the complainants were trespassing or not when the ushers ordered them out.

Mr. Walter Marsh was the first witness, and detailed the facts as published in the FREE PRESS. He said they were asked to move three times before Kerchmer put his hand on his shoulder. He had refused to go before.

Mr. N. A. Morkill, the manager, said they had an advertised scale of prices, which, while not particularly describing the front rows of the balcony, yet included them. Reserved seats were reserved whether they were sold or not. The complainants had 50 cent. tickets, and the price for these front row seats was 75 cents. The employes were acting under his order in putting the men out. They were instructed to show the people to the seats called for by their tickets.

Mr. Marsh showed Mr. Morkill the ticket of admission and asked what it called for.

Mr. Morkill replied that the ticket was simply an admission to the balcony and did not guarantee the holder a seat at all. The ushers, acting under instructions, reserved the seats.

Messrs. Parks and Kerchmer also gave gave evidence, and the case was enlarged till a week from Tuesday.

A CRITIC'S SUGGESTION.—"R. I. U." writes:—"If there is a man, woman or child in London, or its vicinity, who has not yet paid a visit to the City Hall to view one of the finest paintings of modern times they should lose no time in doing so. It is worth four times the price of admission to the whole gallery to see the masterpiece of the great French artist. After visiting all the principal art galleries in London, England, I was under the impression, until to-night, that there was nothing better to see than the great pictures of Doré, but this inimitable painting of Philippoteaux, of "Christ Entering Jerusalem," surpasses them all. The great number of persons represented, the harmonious coloring, the intense distinctness of attitude and expression, the perfect anatomy of figure, the effect of the sunlight on arches and buildings, and even the dust arising from the tramping of many feet, are truly wonderful. The calm, benevolent face of Christ as He turns to speak words of healing and comfort to the palsied Jew sitting by the wayside, the beautiful, sad face of the Madonna, the indignation depicted in the countenance of St. John as he catches the sneering remarks of the three Scribes, and the exquisitely realistic face and head of the ass, are points of excellence rarely seen and capable of riveting the attention of the beholder for hours. I would suggest the advisability of continuing this exhibition at least a week longer. A great deal of time has been spent by the promoters of the "Art Loan" in hanging and grouping the 400 pictures and curiosities and relics, and a week seems too short a time to allow everyone an opportunity of seeing Philippoteaux's great picture and the largest and best collection of pictures and works of art ever exhibited in London.
