COMPOUND CHAMOMILE CORDIAL.

THIS Cordial, as its name announces, is prepared scientifically by a Member of the Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain, from the Flowers of Chamomile and other vegetable ingredients, imported especially from England. Not only as a Tonic does it stand unrivaled, but its peculiar medicinal virtues have acquired a truly celebrated reputation, surpassing the famed Hirsch's Extract, in which, in point of richness of taste and flavor, as well as in practical efficacy, it is incomparably superior.

These ingredients chosen, while fully preserved, are more delicately concentrated and developed in the Cordial, which from its transparency and golden tint, resembles Wine, and so much so, as to be used at discretion. The flavor is fresh and fragrant, and the taste most grateful and invigorating, suited to the Lily, the Temperance Advocate, or luxurious convalescent.

TESTIMONIALS:

Toronto, June 26th, 1852.

Mrs. REXFORD & CO.,

GENTLEMEN.—We have tested the Sample Bottle, with which you favored us, of your "Compound Chamomile Cordial," and find it as you describe, fragrant and agreeable to the palate and consider it an excellent Preparation for the use of the valuable tonic properties of the Flowers of Chamomile.

GENTLEMEN.—I duly received and have tried the sample of "Compound Chamomile Cordial," which you sent me.

Aware of the manner in which you prepare it, and of the nature and quality of the ingredients which you employ in its manufacture, I cannot object to express to you in my writing my opinion of it, which I should not hesitate to do under different circumstances.

I consider it a very elegant Pharmaceutical Preparation, its properties being made exceedingly useful in a detergent as well as therapeutic point of view. It will serve as an excellent substitute for much of the trash which is purchased as fit for the use of invalids, and will also prove an excellent medium for the agreeable conveyance of remedies, which, without some auxiliary, are often abhorred against and rejected by the stomach.

I am, Gentlemen,

Yours, &c.,
FRANCIS HADDOCK, M.D.

GENTLEMEN.—I duly received and have tried the Sample of "Compound Chamomile Cordial," which you sent me. I consider it a very elegant Preparation, and useful in all cases where a mild Tonic is required, more especially in cases of Dyspepsia, and the weakness of the Stomach, it being very agreeable to taste, can be taken by any one.

Mrs. REXFORD & CO.,

GENTLEMEN—I have received the Sample Bottle of your "Compound Chamomile Cordial," and consider it a beautiful as well as highly palatable preparation. The aromatic and peculiar bitter flavor, in which lies the essential Medicinal qualities, appear to be largely infused and well preserved, and as this vegetable Cordial is highly beneficial in those forms of Dyspepsia, depending on debility, or want of tone of the digestive organs, (the form most frequently met with on this continent,) your Cordial will, I doubt not, form an invaluable addition to our Pharmaceutical stores.

From the knowledge possessed by me of Mr. Rexford, and his very high reputation as a Pharmaceutical Chemist, I feel much pleasure in candidly recommending his preparation to this valuable tonic to my Professional brethren, and to the public, as a delightful and invigorating Cordial.

I am, Yours, &c.,

GEORGE HOLME,
Surgeon.

Mrs. REXFORD & CO., Toronto,

GENTLEMEN.—I have no hesitation in expressing to you my professional approbation of your "Compound Chamomile Cordial." The tonic properties of the Flowers of Chamomile, with which it is fully treated, are an universally acknowledged and the Medicinal qualities of that vegetable ingredient are fully admitted in Dyspeptic complaints, that I consider the idea of administering it in the pleasurable form of a Cordial, most happy; and
