

In our study of the transfiguration we have gone with Peter and James and John up into the mountain. We have noticed them, seeing Jesus transfigured, seeing the two heavenly visitors with Him, seeing the cloud covering all from their view, and seeing no man save Jesus only. They heard the conversation regarding His decease, the voice of testimony from the cloud, and finally the sweet words of the Master soothing their terrified hearts. In our lives we may have many such mountain experiences, and with eyes anointed with divine eye-salve see the invisible things of God, and with ears opened, hear the messages of comfort and direction given by His Holy Spirit.
