"Ma, do cows and bees go to heaven?"

"Mercy, child, what a question. Why?"

"'Cause if they don't, the milk and honey the preacher said was up there must be all canned stuff." — Boston Transcript.

No matter how many wrong things you have done in the past, there is all the future before you, and in it you can balance the old score and make a new one.

Small kindness, small courtesies, small considerations, habitually practised in our social intercourse, give a better charm to the character than the display of great talents and accomplishments.

The imagination is a precious faculty which, well directed, can render the accomplishment of our duties easier by kindling in our souls a holy enthusiasm for virtue and inspiring a salutary horror for evil.

The secret of a happy life does not lie in the means and opportunities of indulging our weaknesses, but in knowing how to be content with what is reasonable that time and strength may remain for the cultivation of our nobler nature.

To make the most of dull hours, to make the best of dull people, to like a poor jest better than none, to wear the threadbare coat like a gentleman, to be out-voted with a smile, to hitch your waggon to the old horse if no star is handy — that is wholesome philosophy.

Every character is the joint product of nature and nurture.
