

PREFACE

Each year the Institute commissions, funds, and publishes a survey of Canadian public opinion in the area of international peace and security. This series began with a poll conducted in 1987. The questions and survey methods are designed by Don Munton, of the University of British Columbia, and Institute staff. The polling is carried out by Longwoods Research Group in Toronto.

The analysis of results presented in the text is that of the authors and does not necessarily represent the views of the Institute and its Board of Directors.

Michael Driedger is a researcher in the Institute of International Relations at the University of British Columbia. Don Munton is an associate professor of political science at UBC.
