Sir Arthur W. Currie,
Principal,
McGill University,
MONTREAL.

Dear Sir Arthur,

"Journal of Parasitology,"

You will recall that at the meeting on Tuesday I brought up the question of the Institute acquiring the back numbers of the "Journal of Parasitology," which would cost $95. Dr. Todd, who presented the existing set of the journals to the Medical Library on his retirement, suggested that the set should be placed on loan at this Institute, where, of course, as in the case of the other periodicals and books in our possession, they would be available to any member of the University requiring access to them. The matter was referred to you to see what arrangements could be made.

If the back numbers can be placed on loan here, we shall be responsible for all future numbers, thus saving the University $3.15 per annum.

This journal is the only American journal devoted entirely to parasitology, and its back numbers are in almost daily requirement by members of our staff. It is little used elsewhere, and as it is practically a necessity that we should have easy access to it, it seems a pity to spend $95. if an arrangement can be made with the Medical Library.

The other periodicals devoted to parasitology in the libraries at McGill are not in such constant demand here, as they are mainly concerned with
