

As this establishment could probably be made, with the greatest convenience, within the British dominions, it might, perhaps, be undertaken with the surest prospect of success, by some society in Great Britain. The Society in Scotland for Propagating Christian Knowledge has, heretofore, contributed to the support of missionaries among the American Indians; and might, perhaps, be willing to engage in this undertaking. The Society in Massachusetts for Propagating the Gospel among the Indians of North America has, in some instances, if I mistake not, acted in concert with the Society in Scotland, above mentioned; and might, perhaps, conveniently do it, in this instance. Every association, however, who may become acquainted with the facts here disclosed, will be able themselves, to judge most correctly, of their own resources, and of their own duty.—At Fort William, on Lake Superior, a very considerable number of the partners of the North West Company assemble annually, about the middle of June, at which meeting, many important arrangements are made, respecting the business of the Company. At such a meeting, an agent from some benevo-
