

GERMANY MAY TRY TO DRIVE BARGAIN

Attempt to Blackmail Britain
Into Shifting
Blockade.

TO ASK HELP OF U. S.

Would Seek Washington Influence to Obtain Food Supply.

Special to The Toronto World.
WASHINGTON, May 16.—With no hint yet from Berlin of the character of Germany's response to President Wilson's note, opinion here is inclining a little more to the belief that some form of arbitration will be suggested. An offer to arbitrate would serve Germany's purposes by delaying a rupture of diplomatic relations. It is felt here that it might also enable Germany to accomplish indirectly something which she failed to accomplish a couple of months ago by direct diplomatic overtures.

Would Blackmail Britain.
Germany has always been anxious to drive a bargain, with the help of the United States, by which she should agree to abandon her blockade of the Atlantic, in return for the United States' modification of the British order-in-councils which would permit the transportation into Germany of food supplies exclusively for the use of the civilian population. The stoppage of such imports under the British blockade regulation has been claimed by the United States as an infringement of neutral rights, the not an infringement comparable in character to the barbarous destruction of neutral lives and property through submarine warfare. The German admiralty proclamation tore the international code up by the roots.

To Evade Blockade.
Germany has hoped to play off her major encroachment on neutral rights against Great Britain's blockade. Her offer to enter into a compromise with Great Britain was presented through this government and was unconditionally rejected in London. But her arbitration offer can be used to this compromise before a neutral tribunal, the German government will naturally feel that it has won at least a partial diplomatic victory.

It is very doubtful whether the United States will consent to enlarge the scope of any arbitration which may be undertaken with Germany, so as to include issues which affect their outside powers, but if the question can be raised and discussed in the preliminary negotiations Germany will have gained something.

Novel Anonymous View.
In this afternoon's edition of The Washington Times an unnamed Latin American diplomatist was quoted thus: "Germany can well afford to concede she is in the wrong. The result would be to swing American sentiment to her, to line all America up behind the next step, the enforcement of the United States demands on Great Britain regarding the 'paper' blockade."

"DON'T RESORT TO GAS" ARCHBISHOP'S APPEAL

Descending to German Tactics.

LONDON, May 16, 9.08 p.m.—The Archbishop of Canterbury, in a letter to Premier Asquith, and the Bishop of London, in a sermon today, have appealed to the British Government not to make reprisals against Germany for the use of asphyxiating gases, by authorizing the army to adopt similar methods of attack. The letter of the Archbishop of Canterbury said: "Most earnestly do I trust that we shall never anywhere be induced, or drawn to take a course which would lower us toward the level of those whom we are attacking."
