RESIDENCE IN ENGLAND

Suitable Place for Convalescent Canadians to Be Kept Up by Organization.

In the absence of Sir Lyman Melvin mond Hill. Mond the collect daughter, Elizabath, Jones in western Canada, The World william Norman Mabbett, son of Mr. asked Mr. Findley, vice-president of the Massey-Harris Company, for some and Mrs. W. Mabbett, Lansing, Ont. particulars regarding the convalescent home, referred to in yesterday's despatches from Ottawa. Mr. Findley said the statement was quite incomplete and premature. The suggestion made by Sir Lyman to the militia in-law, W. J. Nichol, 65 Riverdale avedepartment was that if a convalescent home for Canadians in England would be helpful, the officers of the company factories, offices and sales branches in Canada, including the officers and di-rectors and also the shareholders and local sales agents, so that all who desired could have a part in the support and management of such a home.

The proposal was to secure, in a suitable part of England, a large residence with ample grounds, which would be fully equipped to care, continuously for the duration of the war, for from 50 to 100 soldiers during the convalescing period following wounds or illness. The doctors, nurses and staff generally to be Canadians, so that a real Canadian home atmosphere might be created to help to complete recovery.

Only an Estimate.

The cost is necessarily only roughly estimated mea time, but it is expected it would take from $15,000 to $25,-000 for furnishing and equipment, including an ambulance and two or three motors for outing purposes. The yearly maintainance would probably reach $50,000. The equipment would most likely be provided by officers and shareholders, the maintenance by voluntary gifts on a monthly or yearly basis by imployes, agents, officers and shareholders.

Mr. Findley further stated that the whole proposal was subject to its being acceptable to the government and to receiving the hearty support of the agents and employes of the company. The announcement came prematurely because the organibeen completed, altho Sir Lyman Mel-vin Jones is taking advantage of the opportunity of his western visit to dis-cuss the question with their western
