

plete and thorough autopsy, noting the absence of gross anatomical lesions of vital organs as well as the absence of conditions such as fat embolism or fatty degeneration recognizable only by microscopic examination.