

"If It's From Mickie's It's Good."

CHRISTMAS WINE

If you are going to have wines or liquors of any kind for Christmas and must study economy, save on the quantity, not on the quality.

Make your choice from one of these lists—The first are "good"—the second are "better"—the third are "best."

(1) Low Priced—

ST. JULIEN CLARET, a French wine, imported by us direct, and bottled immediately on arrival. 30
CONCORD GRAPE WINE, of this we have two kinds, one a 25c bottle, and another the finest obtainable. 40
SUPERIOR MARGAUX CLARET, a fine dinner wine, which we also import and bottle. 50
RYE WHISKY, bottled by ourselves after maturing two years in the purest and best barrels. 50
GINGER WINE, popular because of its low percentage of alcohol. 1.00
PORT OR SHERRY WINE, for dinner. 1.00

(2) Medium Priced—

RYE WHISKY, Mickie's 5-year-old. 60
ST. JULIEN CLARET, 1896 vintage. 70
COCKTAILS, Mickie's West India. 75
NIEBERSTEIN, a popular Rhine wine. 1.00
BIRGUNNY, "Beauvillain". 1.00
SCOTCH OR IRISH WHISKY, a choice for the dinner table. 1.25
SUPERIOR MARGAUX CLARET, a fine dinner wine. 1.25
Port Wine, old, smooth and dry. 1.25
Sherry, Vino de Panto. 1.25
Bottle of Bouquet's V.O. 1.25
Champagne, a fine cup wine. 1.50

(3) High Priced—

Rye Whisky, Walker's Club or Gooderham's Special. 1.00
Scotch or Irish Whisky, the very best. 1.75
Port Wine, 40 years old. 1.75
Sauterne, Chateau Yquem. 1.75
Burgundy, the finest. 1.75
Claret, the Chateau Yquem. 2.50
Champagne, a choice of the finest. 2.75
Liquors, all prices from 30c to 3.00

(4) For Cooking—

Port Wine. 65
Whisky. 65
Brandy. 1.00

Mickie & Co.,

Wine Merchants,
51-2 King-st. West. - - - - Phone 409.
Cellars under 5 and 7 King-street west and 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 Melinda-street

ANGLO-AMERICAN FRIENDSHIP

Was Well Shown at the Annual Dinner of the Canadian Society in New York.

New York, Dec. 19.—Intense enthusiasm for Anglo-American friendship and interest in Great Britain's cause in South Africa was shown to-night at the annual dinner of the Canadian Society at the Hotel St. Andrew. The American and British colors were draped together above the guest table, and toasts to the President and the Queen were drunk standing and with cheers.

The "Star-Spangled Banner," "God Save the Queen" and the Canadian anthem, "The Maple Leaf," were sung. The friends of Anglo-American friendship, three hundred in number, were seated at long tables, and the keynote of every toast, and always evoked enthusiasm.

Women attended the dinner for the first time in the society's history. The guests of the evening were Sir Rodrick Cameron, Frederick Massey and Sir J. McDougall of Berlin, Ont.

Sir Rodrick Cameron, Dr. Edward H. Kraus, the president of the society, Dr. W. H. Wilson, Nelson and others responded to toasts.

President Kraus, in the course of his speech, said: "To-night under a cloud overhanging Canada and the Empire, and which casts a gloom over our American friends and causes some of us to believe, wherever freedom, equal rights, justice and higher and advancing civilization are valued, we must hope and trust that the cloud will break in mercy and refresh the plants of progress and freedom wherever they are sown. We must hope and trust that the cloud will break in mercy and refresh the plants of progress and freedom wherever they are sown."

He said he was glad to see the American and British colors draped together above the guest table, and toasts to the President and the Queen were drunk standing and with cheers.

The "Star-Spangled Banner," "God Save the Queen" and the Canadian anthem, "The Maple Leaf," were sung. The friends of Anglo-American friendship, three hundred in number, were seated at long tables, and the keynote of every toast, and always evoked enthusiasm.

Women attended the dinner for the first time in the society's history. The guests of the evening were Sir Rodrick Cameron, Frederick Massey and Sir J. McDougall of Berlin, Ont.

Sir Rodrick Cameron, Dr. Edward H. Kraus, the president of the society, Dr. W. H. Wilson, Nelson and others responded to toasts.

President Kraus, in the course of his speech, said: "To-night under a cloud overhanging Canada and the Empire, and which casts a gloom over our American friends and causes some of us to believe, wherever freedom, equal rights, justice and higher and advancing civilization are valued, we must hope and trust that the cloud will break in mercy and refresh the plants of progress and freedom wherever they are sown."

He said he was glad to see the American and British colors draped together above the guest table, and toasts to the President and the Queen were drunk standing and with cheers.

The "Star-Spangled Banner," "God Save the Queen" and the Canadian anthem, "The Maple Leaf," were sung. The friends of Anglo-American friendship, three hundred in number, were seated at long tables, and the keynote of every toast, and always evoked enthusiasm.

Women attended the dinner for the first time in the society's history. The guests of the evening were Sir Rodrick Cameron, Frederick Massey and Sir J. McDougall of Berlin, Ont.

Sir Rodrick Cameron, Dr. Edward H. Kraus, the president of the society, Dr. W. H. Wilson, Nelson and others responded to toasts.

President Kraus, in the course of his speech, said: "To-night under a cloud overhanging Canada and the Empire, and which casts a gloom over our American friends and causes some of us to believe, wherever freedom, equal rights, justice and higher and advancing civilization are valued, we must hope and trust that the cloud will break in mercy and refresh the plants of progress and freedom wherever they are sown."

He said he was glad to see the American and British colors draped together above the guest table, and toasts to the President and the Queen were drunk standing and with cheers.

The "Star-Spangled Banner," "God Save the Queen" and the Canadian anthem, "The Maple Leaf," were sung. The friends of Anglo-American friendship, three hundred in number, were seated at long tables, and the keynote of every toast, and always evoked enthusiasm.

Women attended the dinner for the first time in the society's history. The guests of the evening were Sir Rodrick Cameron, Frederick Massey and Sir J. McDougall of Berlin, Ont.

Sir Rodrick Cameron, Dr. Edward H. Kraus, the president of the society, Dr. W. H. Wilson, Nelson and others responded to toasts.

President Kraus, in the course of his speech, said: "To-night under a cloud overhanging Canada and the Empire, and which casts a gloom over our American friends and causes some of us to believe, wherever freedom, equal rights, justice and higher and advancing civilization are valued, we must hope and trust that the cloud will break in mercy and refresh the plants of progress and freedom wherever they are sown."

He said he was glad to see the American and British colors draped together above the guest table, and toasts to the President and the Queen were drunk standing and with cheers.

The "Star-Spangled Banner," "God Save the Queen" and the Canadian anthem, "The Maple Leaf," were sung. The friends of Anglo-American friendship, three hundred in number, were seated at long tables, and the keynote of every toast, and always evoked enthusiasm.

Women attended the dinner for the first time in the society's history. The guests of the evening were Sir Rodrick Cameron, Frederick Massey and Sir J. McDougall of Berlin, Ont.

Sir Rodrick Cameron, Dr. Edward H. Kraus, the president of the society, Dr. W. H. Wilson, Nelson and others responded to toasts.

President Kraus, in the course of his speech, said: "To-night under a cloud overhanging Canada and the Empire, and which casts a gloom over our American friends and causes some of us to believe, wherever freedom, equal rights, justice and higher and advancing civilization are valued, we must hope and trust that the cloud will break in mercy and refresh the plants of progress and freedom wherever they are sown."

He said he was glad to see the American and British colors draped together above the guest table, and toasts to the President and the Queen were drunk standing and with cheers.

The "Star-Spangled Banner," "God Save the Queen" and the Canadian anthem, "The Maple Leaf," were sung. The friends of Anglo-American friendship, three hundred in number, were seated at long tables, and the keynote of every toast, and always evoked enthusiasm.

Women attended the dinner for the first time in the society's history. The guests of the evening were Sir Rodrick Cameron, Frederick Massey and Sir J. McDougall of Berlin, Ont.

Sir Rodrick Cameron, Dr. Edward H. Kraus, the president of the society, Dr. W. H. Wilson, Nelson and others responded to toasts.

President Kraus, in the course of his speech, said: "To-night under a cloud overhanging Canada and the Empire, and which casts a gloom over our American friends and causes some of us to believe, wherever freedom, equal rights, justice and higher and advancing civilization are valued, we must hope and trust that the cloud will break in mercy and refresh the plants of progress and freedom wherever they are sown."

He said he was glad to see the American and British colors draped together above the guest table, and toasts to the President and the Queen were drunk standing and with cheers.

The "Star-Spangled Banner," "God Save the Queen" and the Canadian anthem, "The Maple Leaf," were sung. The friends of Anglo-American friendship, three hundred in number, were seated at long tables, and the keynote of every toast, and always evoked enthusiasm.

Women attended the dinner for the first time in the society's history. The guests of the evening were Sir Rodrick Cameron, Frederick Massey and Sir J. McDougall of Berlin, Ont.

Sir Rodrick Cameron, Dr. Edward H. Kraus, the president of the society, Dr. W. H. Wilson, Nelson and others responded to toasts.

President Kraus, in the course of his speech, said: "To-night under a cloud overhanging Canada and the Empire, and which casts a gloom over our American friends and causes some of us to believe, wherever freedom, equal rights, justice and higher and advancing civilization are valued, we must hope and trust that the cloud will break in mercy and refresh the plants of progress and freedom wherever they are sown."

He said he was glad to see the American and British colors draped together above the guest table, and toasts to the President and the Queen were drunk standing and with cheers.

The "Star-Spangled Banner," "God Save the Queen" and the Canadian anthem, "The Maple Leaf," were sung. The friends of Anglo-American friendship, three hundred in number, were seated at long tables, and the keynote of every toast, and always evoked enthusiasm.

Women attended the dinner for the first time in the society's history. The guests of the evening were Sir Rodrick Cameron, Frederick Massey and Sir J. McDougall of Berlin, Ont.

Sir Rodrick Cameron, Dr. Edward H. Kraus, the president of the society, Dr. W. H. Wilson, Nelson and others responded to toasts.

President Kraus, in the course of his speech, said: "To-night under a cloud overhanging Canada and the Empire, and which casts a gloom over our American friends and causes some of us to believe, wherever freedom, equal rights, justice and higher and advancing civilization are valued, we must hope and trust that the cloud will break in mercy and refresh the plants of progress and freedom wherever they are sown."

He said he was glad to see the American and British colors draped together above the guest table, and toasts to the President and the Queen were drunk standing and with cheers.

The "Star-Spangled Banner," "God Save the Queen" and the Canadian anthem, "The Maple Leaf," were sung. The friends of Anglo-American friendship, three hundred in number, were seated at long tables, and the keynote of every toast, and always evoked enthusiasm.

Women attended the dinner for the first time in the society's history. The guests of the evening were Sir Rodrick Cameron, Frederick Massey and Sir J. McDougall of Berlin, Ont.

Sir Rodrick Cameron, Dr. Edward H. Kraus, the president of the society, Dr. W. H. Wilson, Nelson and others responded to toasts.

President Kraus, in the course of his speech, said: "To-night under a cloud overhanging Canada and the Empire, and which casts a gloom over our American friends and causes some of us to believe, wherever freedom, equal rights, justice and higher and advancing civilization are valued, we must hope and trust that the cloud will break in mercy and refresh the plants of progress and freedom wherever they are sown."

He said he was glad to see the American and British colors draped together above the guest table, and toasts to the President and the Queen were drunk standing and with cheers.

The "Star-Spangled Banner," "God Save the Queen" and the Canadian anthem, "The Maple Leaf," were sung. The friends of Anglo-American friendship, three hundred in number, were seated at long tables, and the keynote of every toast, and always evoked enthusiasm.

Women attended the dinner for the first time in the society's history. The guests of the evening were Sir Rodrick Cameron, Frederick Massey and Sir J. McDougall of Berlin, Ont.

Sir Rodrick Cameron, Dr. Edward H. Kraus, the president of the society, Dr. W. H. Wilson, Nelson and others responded to toasts.

President Kraus, in the course of his speech, said: "To-night under a cloud overhanging Canada and the Empire, and which casts a gloom over our American friends and causes some of us to believe, wherever freedom, equal rights, justice and higher and advancing civilization are valued, we must hope and trust that the cloud will break in mercy and refresh the plants of progress and freedom wherever they are sown."

He said he was glad to see the American and British colors draped together above the guest table, and toasts to the President and the Queen were drunk standing and with cheers.

The "Star-Spangled Banner," "God Save the Queen" and the Canadian anthem, "The Maple Leaf," were sung. The friends of Anglo-American friendship, three hundred in number, were seated at long tables, and the keynote of every toast, and always evoked enthusiasm.

Women attended the dinner for the first time in the society's history. The guests of the evening were Sir Rodrick Cameron, Frederick Massey and Sir J. McDougall of Berlin, Ont.

Sir Rodrick Cameron, Dr. Edward H. Kraus, the president of the society, Dr. W. H. Wilson, Nelson and others responded to toasts.

President Kraus, in the course of his speech, said: "To-night under a cloud overhanging Canada and the Empire, and which casts a gloom over our American friends and causes some of us to believe, wherever freedom, equal rights, justice and higher and advancing civilization are valued, we must hope and trust that the cloud will break in mercy and refresh the plants of progress and freedom wherever they are sown."

He said he was glad to see the American and British colors draped together above the guest table, and toasts to the President and the Queen were drunk standing and with cheers.

The "Star-Spangled Banner," "God Save the Queen" and the Canadian anthem, "The Maple Leaf," were sung. The friends of Anglo-American friendship, three hundred in number, were seated at long tables, and the keynote of every toast, and always evoked enthusiasm.

Women attended the dinner for the first time in the society's history. The guests of the evening were Sir Rodrick Cameron, Frederick Massey and Sir J. McDougall of Berlin, Ont.

Sir Rodrick Cameron, Dr. Edward H. Kraus, the president of the society, Dr. W. H. Wilson, Nelson and others responded to toasts.

President Kraus, in the course of his speech, said: "To-night under a cloud overhanging Canada and the Empire, and which casts a gloom over our American friends and causes some of us to believe, wherever freedom, equal rights, justice and higher and advancing civilization are valued, we must hope and trust that the cloud will break in mercy and refresh the plants of progress and freedom wherever they are sown."

DIRECTOR:
H. W. FLAVELLE,
A. E. AMES.

THE
ROBERT

Don't Leave Everything
Till the Last Day

or you'll sure
to neglect
something.
Clothing for Thursday
smacks strongly of Xmas and gives you
some special buying chances.
Read the news of lounging coats and gowns, reefer, fancy vests, etc.—it tells of dollars you can save.

Men's Smoking Jackets or House Coats, in fancy checked tweed, fawn and grey with red mixture, handsomely trimmed, with worsted cord to match, and finished with velvet and tassels, sizes 34 to 42, special. 5.00
DRESSING GOWNS—$2 less in price for Thursday.

Men's Fine Beaver Cloth Dressing Gowns, navy, seal brown, garnet and slate grey colors, large roll collar, patch pockets, pockets, edges and cuffs trimmed with worsted cord to match, and finished with velvet and tassels, sizes 34 to 42, at regular $6.50 and $7, Thursday reduced to. 5.00

REPEATED REDUCED FOR THURSDAY:
Fine English Nap Reefer, dark navy blue velvet collar, double-breasted, mohair sleeve lining, deep facings, black velvet linings, edges bound with mohair cord, sizes 34 to 44, regular $6, Thursday. 4.50

FANCY VESTS.
Men's Fine Imported English Corduroy
Vests, seal brown and dark, with fine silk spot, cut high at throat, single-breasted, fly front and finished with wool lined. 2.50

FOR THE BOY:
Children's Fancy Mink Reefers, fine grey and black, silk velvet collar, double-breasted, with fine silk lining, and large round pearl buttons, farmer's satin lining, sizes 21 to 27. 4.25

Boys' Two-Garment Suits, double-breasted style, all-wool English tweed, heavier mixture, faint berrington pattern, lined with cloth and wide shape, sizes 22 to 28, special. 2.25

Furs Can Hardly be Outclassed in the high favor in which they're held, as acceptable gifts. Many a man and boy will open with delight the parcels sent from here containing the gauntlets, caps or other practical tokens of Xmas affection chosen by some thoughtful friend or relative.
Let us show you some of our nice pieces.

HATS AND FURS—YONGE AND RICH-MOND-STREET.
Soft Hats, up-to-date and very dressy styles, fine grade of English fur felt, Christy's combined make, unlined, colors seal brown, mid-brown or black, special Xmas price. 2.00

Women attended the dinner for the first time in the society's history. The guests of the evening were Sir Rodrick Cameron, Frederick Massey and Sir J. McDougall
of Berlin, Ont.

Sir Rodrick Cameron, Dr. Edward H.
Kraus, the president of the society, Dr.
W. H. Wilson, Nelson and others responded to toasts.

President Kraus, in the course of his speech, said: "To-night under a cloud
overhanging Canada and the Empire,
and which casts a gloom over our American friends and causes some of us to
believe, wherever freedom, equal rights,
justice and higher and advancing civilization are valued, we must hope and trust
that the cloud will break in mercy and
refresh the plants of progress and freedom wherever they are sown."

He said he was glad to see the American and British colors draped together
above the guest table, and toasts to the President and the Queen were drunk
standing and with cheers.

The "Star-Spangled Banner," "God Save
the Queen" and the Canadian anthem,
"The Maple Leaf," were sung. The friends
of Anglo-American friendship, three hundred in number, were seated at long
tables, and the keynote of every toast,
and always evoked enthusiasm.

Women attended the dinner for the first
time in the society's history. The guests of the evening were Sir Rodrick Cameron, Frederick Massey and Sir J. McDougall
of Berlin, Ont.

Sir Rodrick Cameron, Dr. Edward H.
Kraus, the president of the society, Dr.
W. H. Wilson, Nelson and others responded to toasts.

President Kraus, in the course of his
speech, said: "To-night under a cloud
overhanging Canada and the Empire,
and which casts a gloom over our Ameri-
can friends and causes some of us to
believe, wherever freedom, equal rights,
justice and higher and advancing civiliza-
tion are valued, we must hope and trust
that the cloud will break in mercy and
refresh the plants of progress and freedom wherever they are sown."

He said he was glad to see the Ameri-
can and British colors draped together
above the guest table, and toasts to the President and the Queen were drunk
standing and with cheers.

The "Star-Spangled Banner," "God Save
the Queen" and the Canadian anthem,
"The Maple Leaf," were sung. The friends
of Anglo-American friendship, three hundred in number, were seated at long
tables, and the keynote of every toast,
and always evoked enthusiasm.

Women attended the dinner for the first
time in the society's history. The guests
of the evening were Sir Rodrick Camer-
on, Frederick Massey and Sir J. McDougall
of Berlin, Ont.

Sir Rodrick Cameron, Dr. Edward H.
Kraus, the president of the society, Dr.
W. H. Wilson, Nelson and others responded to toasts.

President Kraus, in the course of his
speech, said: "To-night under a cloud
overhanging Canada and the Empire,
and which casts a gloom over our Ameri-
can friends and causes some of us to
believe, wherever freedom, equal rights,
justice and higher and advancing civiliza-
tion are valued, we must hope and trust
that the cloud will break in mercy and
refresh the plants of progress and freedom wherever they are sown."

He said he was glad to see the Ameri-
can and British colors draped together
above the guest table, and toasts to the President and the Queen were drunk
standing and with cheers.

The "Star-Spangled Banner," "God Save
the Queen" and the Canadian anthem,
"The Maple Leaf," were sung. The friends
of Anglo-American friendship, three hundred in number, were seated at long
tables, and the keynote of every toast,
and always evoked enthusiasm.

Women attended the dinner for the first
time in the society's history. The guests
of the evening were Sir Rodrick Camer-
on, Frederick Massey and Sir J. McDougall
of Berlin, Ont.

Sir Rodrick Cameron, Dr. Edward H.
Kraus, the president of the society, Dr.
W. H. Wilson, Nelson and others responded to toasts.

President Kraus, in the course of his
speech, said: "To-night under a cloud
overhanging Canada and the Empire,
and which casts a gloom over our Ameri-
can friends and causes some of us to
believe, wherever freedom, equal rights,
justice and higher and advancing civiliza-
tion are valued, we must hope and trust
that the cloud will break in mercy and
refresh the plants of progress and freedom wherever they are sown."

He said he was glad to see the Ameri-
can and British colors draped together
above the guest table, and toasts to the President and the Queen were drunk
standing and with cheers.

The "Star-Spangled Banner," "God Save
the Queen" and the Canadian anthem,
"The Maple Leaf," were sung. The friends
of Anglo-American friendship, three hundred in number, were seated at long
tables, and the keynote of every toast,
and always evoked enthusiasm.

Women attended the dinner for the first
time in the society's history. The guests
of the evening were Sir Rodrick Camer-
on, Frederick Massey and Sir J. McDougall
of Berlin, Ont.

Sir Rodrick Cameron, Dr. Edward H.
Kraus, the president of the society, Dr.
W. H. Wilson, Nelson and others responded to toasts.

President Kraus, in the course of his
speech, said: "To-night under a cloud
overhanging Canada and the Empire,
and which casts a gloom over our Ameri-
can friends and causes some of us to
believe, wherever freedom, equal rights,
justice and higher and advancing civiliza-
tion are valued, we must hope and trust
that the cloud will break in mercy and
refresh the plants of progress and freedom wherever they are sown."

He said he was glad to see the Ameri-
can and British colors draped together
above the guest table, and toasts to the President and the Queen were drunk
standing and with cheers.

The "Star-Spangled Banner," "God Save
the Queen" and the Canadian anthem,
"The Maple Leaf," were sung. The friends
of Anglo-American friendship, three hundred in number, were seated at long
tables, and the keynote of every toast,
and always evoked enthusiasm.

Women attended the dinner for the first
time in the society's history. The guests
of the evening were Sir Rodrick Camer-
on, Frederick Massey and Sir J. McDougall
of Berlin, Ont.

Sir Rodrick Cameron, Dr. Edward H.
Kraus, the president of the society, Dr.
W. H. Wilson, Nelson and others responded to toasts.

President Kraus, in the course of his
speech, said: "To-night under a cloud
overhanging Canada and the Empire,
and which casts a gloom over our Ameri-
can friends and causes some of us to
believe, wherever freedom, equal rights,
justice and higher and advancing civiliza-
tion are valued, we must hope and trust
that the cloud will break in mercy and
refresh the plants of progress and freedom wherever they are sown."

He said he was glad to see the Ameri-
can and British colors draped together
above the guest table, and toasts to the President and the Queen were drunk
standing and with cheers.

The "Star-Spangled Banner," "God Save
the Queen" and the Canadian anthem,
"The Maple Leaf," were sung. The friends
of Anglo-American friendship, three hundred in number, were seated at long
tables, and the keynote of every toast,
and always evoked enthusiasm.

Women attended the dinner for the first
time in the society's history. The guests
of the evening were Sir Rodrick Camer-
on, Frederick Massey and Sir J. McDougall
of Berlin, Ont.

Sir Rodrick Cameron, Dr. Edward H.
Kraus, the president of the society, Dr.
W. H. Wilson, Nelson and others responded to toasts.

President Kraus, in the course of his
speech, said: "To-night under a cloud
overhanging Canada and the Empire,
and which casts a gloom over our Ameri-
can friends and causes some of us to
believe, wherever freedom, equal rights,
justice and higher and advancing civiliza-
tion are valued, we must hope and trust
that the cloud will break in mercy and
refresh the plants of progress and freedom wherever they are sown."

He said he was glad to see the Ameri-
can and British colors draped together
above the guest table, and toasts to the President and the Queen were drunk
standing and with cheers.

The "Star-Spangled Banner," "God Save
the Queen" and the Canadian anthem,
"The Maple Leaf," were sung. The friends
of Anglo-American friendship, three hundred in number, were seated at long
tables, and the keynote of every toast,
and always evoked enthusiasm.

Women attended the dinner for the first
time in the society's history. The guests
of the evening were Sir Rodrick Camer-
on, Frederick Massey and Sir J. McDougall
of Berlin, Ont.

Sir Rodrick Cameron, Dr. Edward H.
Kraus, the president of the society, Dr.
W. H. Wilson, Nelson and others responded to toasts.

President Kraus, in the course of his
speech, said: "To-night under a cloud
overhanging Canada and the Empire,
and which casts a gloom over our Ameri-
can friends and causes some of us to
believe, wherever freedom, equal rights,
justice and higher and advancing civiliza-
tion are valued, we must hope and trust
that the cloud will break in mercy and
refresh the plants of progress and freedom wherever they are sown."

He said he was glad to see the Ameri-
can and British colors draped together
above the guest table, and toasts to the President and the Queen were drunk
standing and with cheers.

The "Star-Spangled Banner," "God Save
the Queen" and the Canadian anthem,
"The Maple Leaf," were sung. The friends
of Anglo-American friendship, three hundred in number, were seated at long
tables, and the keynote of every toast,
and always evoked enthusiasm.

Women attended the dinner for the first
time in the society's history. The guests
of the evening were Sir Rodrick Camer-
on, Frederick Massey and Sir J. McDougall
of Berlin, Ont.

Sir Rodrick Cameron, Dr. Edward H.
Kraus, the president of the society, Dr.
W. H. Wilson, Nelson and others responded to toasts.

President Kraus, in the course of his