Washington, Oct. 1. - Once again the Tigers proved their staying powers by coming from behind after the first game against the Washington club seemed nopelessly lost. They won out five to three, but it was only after a card battle to make up for their ragged play earlier in the day.

Umpires for World's Series

The umpires for the world's championship post-season base-ball games between the Chicagos of the National League and whichever team wins the American League pennant will be Jack Sheridan and probably Hank O'Day. Sheridan already has been selected by Ban Johnson as the American League umpire, and one reason for thinking Pulliam will choose O'Day as the National League official, is that Emslie has been assigned for the post-season series in Boston and Johnstone for the St. Louis Brown-Cardinal series. Johnstone and Evans will be the St. Louis umpires, while Connolly will be Emslie's mate in Boston. Evans has recovered from his injury in St. Louis, and wants to get back in harness. Sheridan and O'Day officiated at the New York-Philadelphia world's series in 1905. President Pulliam, of the National League, also has Rigler, Klem and Carpenter to choose from to assign to the world's series, and may, of course, select one of them.
