The Situation Shows Steady Improvement in Canada---The Stock Market in a Peculiar Position and Causing Some

(Montreal Witness.)
The financial situation in this country continues to show steady improvement, owing, in a great measure, to the J.dustrial ac-in a great measure, to the .dustrial activity in the various provinces, but more particularly to the agricultural returns which are now being of practical benefit to the farmer and merchant everywhere. Railway and shipping interests are taking their share of the improved conditions and are work-as much of the work as possible before navishows that the country's development is not trestricted to special districts, but rather to a general ploneer movement everywhere. Villages grow into towns and towns into

The situation on the stock market is a remarkable exception to the general rule of progression and is causing not a little un- rest among those who depend on the buying and selling of stocks as a means of liveli-

The total cash deposits of the Canadian people amount to at least five	purposes; on the contrary they are, as a rule, particularly well suited to that form of buying; but the public, with its five hundred million dollars savings, seems to prefer to continue to receive three per cent interest rather than strike out for a four, five and even six per cent investment stock, which can occasionally be picked up during a duil market. Let the brokers ask themselves what they are doing to induce public interest in the market. Do they tell of the quality of their wares, their bargains, or their offerings of gilt-edged securities?
