ty and man years: and he died? "Leek. V. 27.

And was this all? He died! He who did wait

The slow unfolding of centurial years,
And shake that burden from his heart, which turns
Our temples white, and in his freshness stand
Till cedars mouldered and firm rocks turned grey;
Left he no trace upon the page inspired,
Save this one line—he died?

Perchance he stood
Till all, who in his early shadow 10se,
Faded away, and he was left alone,
A sad, long-living, weary-hearted man,
To fear that Death, remembering all beside,
Had sure forgotten him.

And the control of th boast of their deeds. The wound which Picton had relifered prevented his ascending the ladders to enter stit the eastle, and he was, in consequence, compelled to alremain in the ditch, but not inactive; for, calling up for the whole of the straggling parties, he ordered them hall to ascend the walls, and-this poured in a power-ful assistance to co-operate with those already in slopossession, to resist any efforts on the part of the openwy for recovering the eastle,—Life of Picton.
