Decrease in General Death Rate

The annual report of Dr. Geo. G. Melvin, chief health officer, has been presented to the St. John Board of Health. The number of notifiable diseases reported during the year was 242, as compared with 445 in 1916, 294 in 1915, and 366 in 1914.

Speaking of deaths from tuberculosis the report says that the record is far from reassuring. The actual number of deaths from all forms of this disease increased from 63 in 1916, to 98 in 1917, while those of the pulmonary type sprang from 58 to 81. This the report states is rather disappointing in the face of a steadily falling general death rate. Dr. Melvin is of the opinion that the work of stamping out the disease is one of the gravest and most difficult that has ever been undertaken.

Dr. Melvin says that it is very satisfactory to note another decrease in the Berne, Jan. 29.—Half of the thirty thousand men who have taken refuge in Switzerland as deserters or in order to avoid military service in their own country are to be mobilized by the Swiss government for civilian service. They have been formed into companies of 100 each under the supervision of Swiss officers, and have been set to work on the land to increase the agricultural production. They will receive food and clothing and twenty-six cents pay a day, the same amount paid the Swiss soldiers. They are being assisted by the Swiss Socialists in organizing a meeting to protest against this service.

SPEEDING PLANS TO SEND U. S. SOLDIERS TO FRANCE

Washington, Jan. 29.—While declining to comment directly upon the statement attributed to President Wilson, that there will be twice as many American soldiers abroad next June as had been originally planned, Secretary of War Baker said:

"The programme of the department has been a constantly developing one, and many difficulties and limitations have been removed or overcome. I cannot discuss numbers or men in France or anticipated to be in France at any particular time, but we have made substantial progress."

SWEDEN AND NEW BRUNSWICK IN FOREST MANAGEMENT

The prosperity of Sweden is substantially due to her forest possessions and the excellent use that nation makes of them. The prosperity of New Brunswick is to the same degree the product of forest industries.

Half of the whole area of Sweden is held permanently for growing timber crops. From that area, the national government gets a revenue of $8,000,000 a year, about two-thirds as much as the entire public revenues from all the forests of Canada.

New Brunswick is about one-sixth the size of Sweden and keeps about the same percentage under timber. New Brunswick's public revenues from forests are $800,000 a year, comparing not unfavorably with those of Sweden.

The great rift between the forestry policies of the two countries is that New Brunswick's forests have grown continuously weaker while Sweden's have maintained their strength. Sweden's revenues are from the "interest," or natural growth of the timber, while New Brunswick has been cutting deeply into "forest capital."

One spells permanent prosperity, the other does not. A sufficient reason is found in the fact that Sweden employs more than 600 technically-trained foresters, supports a modern fire protection policy and does not permit wasteful cutting.

New Brunswick, however, is on the point of adopting similar precautions. This year the fire protection service will be reorganized and the division of forestry at Fredericton will have an oversight of the cutting operations.
