been moderately fat animals are the most profitable. Every fat animal has been at a loss during the latter part of its confinement.

When an animal is ready for labor, sell it; if there is feed left by keep the more lean animals and feed them, and a "nimble sixpence" brings the due profit.

making a new orchard, says a fruit-grower, systematic matters by setting for apple trees so that your summer on the way will be together, then your fall, and then your winter apple, and so on.

It will be much easier to gather fruit, you will not be compelled to walk all over the orchard.

A cow will draw milk in three minutes, at a loss during the latter part of its confinement. When an animal is ready for labor, sell it.

in selecting stable manure for garden use, it is best from stables where sawdust has been used for bedding. It has an excellent mechanical effect upon the soil.

It is well to see to it that there is not too great a percentage of sawdust, as there is but little fertilizing value to it.

A Pennsylvania farmer cured ring-bone of a four-year-old horse by using four ounces of saltpeter in a quart of good vinegar.

Dissolve well and apply by bath or mop. About a dozen applications cured this case in six months.

Pigs need dry beds as well as other animals. Jun Feeder the sheep well, give them fresh timothy water, and keep them out of the mud.

Soils which are heavy and contain much inert vegetable matter are in England called dead, which is a good word for poetic characterization.

FOR THE FAIR SEX.

New York Fashion Notes.

Waistcoats are going out of vogue. Colored binnings will again be worn. Sliding rings on parasols are revived.

The Jersey costume has a kilt plaited skirt. Mitts will be more worn this summer than ever.

Seed pearl embroideries are very fashionable. Hats as a rule are large and turned up at one side.

Shirred trimmings are more fashionable than ever. Unlooped cloth plaited back draperies are much worn.

Capote bonnets, with protruding brims are favorites. Ostrich feather fans will be the high novelty of the summer.

Cream-white cloth jackets, ornamented with ivory buttons, are much worn. Mock pearls are very fashionable.

Very small ruffles on the bottom of plain round skirts give the required dressy effect.

A great deal of jet and colored bead embroideries appear on full dress summer toilettes.

The small, soft coil of hair worn low on the head is becoming only to very young ladies.

White and cream-colored cordurette is the material for children's seaside jackets and wraps.

Fashion at the moment decides upon light tints for garments, both for outdoor and indoor wear.

Wood colors appear in all kinds of gloves—kilt, lisle thread, and silk—and also in net and lace mitts.

Polka dots and diamond-shaped dots in silk embroidery appear on the instep of much of the new silk hosiery.

English suitcases are made dressy, with linings of facings of red, blue, old gold, heliotrope, and black satin.

White chudra cloths, white nun's cloth, white challie, and white berege will be much worn in midsummer.

Cashmere embroideries appear on the instep of fine silk hosiery, the grounds being in all the dark, bright, and pale fashionable colors.

The most striking summer evening dresses are of cream-colored blonde or Indian mulin, profusely trimmed with Languedoc lace.

The Jersey costume, being a partly worn garment, closed at the neck with elastic, clasp the figure as a lisle thread glove does the hand.

A summer novelty is cotton satin almost as lustrous as silk, with white or tinted grounds sprinkled over with tiny flowers and leaves.

The stately coiffure for ladies no longer in their teens is composed of waved bandeaux in front and large Roman braids in the back.

High wired collars for evening toilettes rise to the hair in the nape of the neck, but are cut narrow and opening low and square on the bosom in front.

Languedoc and Breton laces have almost superseded Italian (imitation) Valenciennes for children's and young girls' white organdy and Swiss muslin dresses.

The director collar of dark colored or black velvet edged with a wide fringe of Languedoc lace, is a novelty in lingerie used to lighten up dull or passe costumes.

Plain skirts are sometimes made a little more dressy by one or two narrow tucks placed above the hem, and both hems and tucks decorated with rows of machine stitching.

The new hosiery comes in all the fashionable shades of old gold, marigold yellow, garnet, dregs of wine, navy blue, gemstone blue, heliotrope, and red, and woven in lace stripes over the instep and ankles.

The Jersey costume is a novelty in the form of a woven silk costume, with an elastic opening only at the neck. The costume is slipped on before the hair is dressed, the elastic closing around the neck like a collar.

The new black wraps for summer are of Indian cashmere, Stiehlene grain silk, and satin de Lyon, and made very dressy with jet embroideries and fringes, black lace plaitings, and bright colored silk and satin linings.

foot as the boys. Her appetite is good, her cheeks rosy and her movements unconscious-ly graceful. But all this must cease.

Behold her again at twenty. No more does she run jump or roll hoop, run races or slide on the ice. It is not proper now nor lady-like, and she couldn't if she would, for she is fettered by long skirts, tight shoes and tighter stays.

Her movement has no longer the freedom and unconscious grace of childhood, for now when she walks abroad she walks to be looked at, which now in her estimation is the main object of walking. She is already in delicate health, and has a doctor who prescribes expensive advice and prescriptions for her, and ascribes her complaints to anything and everything but the real cause.

That is simply the lettering of her body with fashionable clothes. Physically she is now a prisoner. At eleven she was free. The doctor advises travel, but he doesn't advise her to take off and keep off her fashionable fetters. She wouldn't do so if he did, and she wouldn't advise her if he knew it would bring relief, for she would no longer be in a doctor who would make her dress like a guy; and being dressed like a guy is dressing differently from the style prescribed by a Paris modiste.

He Turned the Tables.

There is nothing like presence of mind after all. One dark, rainy night, old Dr. Botts, who lives on Van Ness avenue, San Francisco, was trudging homeward when he discovered that he was being dogged by a burly ruffian, evidently latent on robbery. They were in a lonely part of the town, and the man was just at his heels, when the doctor buttoned his coat up to his chin, suddenly turned back and said to his pursuer:

"Please, sir, give me a dime to buy something to eat. I don't want to get whisky, indeed I don't; haven't had anything to eat for two days."

"Great Scott!" exclaimed the footpad, repeating his slugsht with profound disgust, "to think here I've been piping off a pauper for over a mile."

And he walked off swagging at his luck.

The hats of natives of British Columbia are adorned with figures resembling tattoo marks. These marks all have a definite meaning, being in fact records of the events which have taken place in the lives of the wearers. Each individual thus display his history upon his head.

Vegetine.

Superior to any Family Medicine.

DOCTORS GAVE HER UP.

Vegetine Cured Her.

MONTREAL, P. Q., Oct. 21, 1879. My dear Sir—About sixteen years ago I was troubled with Scrophulous Humor, which settled on my lungs and brought on a severe cough. I consulted five or six of the best physicians in Montreal, but they gave up treating me, and I had no other attack of scrophulous for nine years. I tried the Vegetine in your advertisement, and I have not had a third attack. I am sixty-nine years old, and have been cured of the scrophulous humor, and I believe it superior to any of the Family Medicines in use. I can vouch for the above statement in every particular, and consider VEGETINE the best Family Medicine now in use.

FOR SKIN DISEASES. H. R. STEVENS, Esq. Toronto, July 26, 1879. Dear Sir—Having been troubled with a bad skin disease, breaking out into little sores over my face, I was recommended to take VEGETINE. I am happy to inform you that it has completely cured me after taking three bottles. I can highly recommend it to any one who is troubled with skin diseases. Yours faithfully, H. R. STEVENS.
