EXHIBITION NEXT WEEK.

In another week the Victoria exhibition will be in full running order, and we hope "playing to good houses," to use a theatrical phrase. The management is confident that the show will be one of the best ever held, the entry list being large and the special attractions numerous. There is one point upon which the public need not take the word of any man, interested or disinterested. The grounds have been placed in splendid condition and new buildings worthy of any institution of the kind have been erected. These things are in evidence and can be seen by any one who takes an interest in a most worthy and absolutely necessary adjunct to any community situated as the people of Victoria are. If by indifference or neglect our annual agricultural and industrial exhibition should be permitted to wane and pass out of being, our city would be the loser. It is no likelihood of such a misfortune occurring. Already great interest has been displayed in the success of the fair by urban and rural and far-away exhibitors. The only point that remains to be determined is the amount of patronage the public will accord. The city is rapidly increasing in population and the surrounding country is filling up with farmers, dairymen and horticulturists. We are conscious of the fact that neither by importunities nor scoldings can the public be compelled to patronize institutions intended to be educational or entertaining in their effects. But once convince that same public that they will receive compensation, full and returning for their less of time and expenditure in money, and their patronage is assured. We are convinced that the exhibition this year will be one of the best ever held in Victoria. It ought to be the most successful upon record.

FACTS FOR THE PEOPLE.

Does it necessarily follow that because there has been a tremendous increase in the revenue of Canada during the past twelve years that the rate of taxation has been correspondingly increased? Take the case of the post office department as an example. There is an instance of a decrease in rates being followed by a wonderful expansion in revenue. The receipts of that department are annually more than double what they were in the year 1896, about six million dollars as against three million dollars. Yet the rates for the carriage of letters have been practically cut in two. The reduction was followed by a great increase in the number of letters carried. Hence the increase in the revenue. An exactly similar condition followed the reduction of the duties upon imports. In ten years the total trade of Canada has been multiplied by three. A multiplication of the revenue by two has been the result. The proposition is as simple as a, b, c. The result has been a wonderful improvement in the condition of the masses of the people. The standard of living is much higher. The people buy more because they have the means of acquiring everything considered necessary to their comfort in life. But Mr. Borden inveighs against these things and asks the people to condemn the government for taking so much money out of their pockets. The truth is that under the existing fiscal system the taxes are going into the treasury instead of into the pockets of individuals who happen to be favored with the ear of the administration. Does the fact that the deposits in the banks of Canada have more than doubled during the present regime indicate that the country is being impoverished by the operations of the Fielding tariff?

But, admitting that an expanding revenue is an evil which ought to be remedied, in what manner does the opposition propose to apply the remedy? Mr. Borden as leader of the party does not tell us what he would do to reform this alleged abuse. He does not assert explicitly that he would restore the old rates of duty, the effect of which would necessarily be a reversion to the conditions which prevailed in 1896 and preceding years. Possibly he despairs of being able to convince the public that an increase of taxation would be a relief. But some of his followers are more candid, it is less discreet. One of them says he would erect a tariff as high as Haman's gallows. Is Mr. Borden afraid of the vote of the agriculturists and general consumers of Canada? After all these are the people who make and unmake governments. They are the preponderant factor in elections. Here is what one of them said at a meeting held in Toronto recently following the great exhibition held there:

"Why don't they (the advocates of extreme protection) do as the farmers do? The barley market of Ontario the farmers did not go whining to the government for protection. They suffered for years, but finally they adapted themselves to the situation. They built stables under their barns and raised stock and dairy products and built up a market in something that did pay. Why don't the manufacturers cease crying for help and turn their attention to something that can pay of itself?"

DISSOLUTION.

The announcement of dissolution of the Dominion Parliament cannot be said to have taken the country unawares. It was expected. Seldom indeed nowadays does a legislature either in Great Britain or in Canada live out its constitutionally allotted term. Perhaps it is one of the few weaknesses of our system that as the shadows begin to lengthen before members the assembly of which they are the constituent parts begins to lose its effectiveness. We had an example of this weakness during the late session of the Dominion Parliament. The opposition was more vitally concerned about creating what it considered issues for the prospective campaign than it was interested in transacting the business of the country. It abused its powers of obstruction and dragged out the session to an unjustifiable length. This is an evil which must be checked either by amending the rules of debate or electing representatives with fitter conceptions of their duty to the country. It must be admitted that never in the history of parliamentary government in Canada was there an opposition which so completely elevated party tactics above the interests it was elected to serve. The government might have exercised its power to keep the debates within reasonable limits as government in Great Britain was forced to do, but naturally it hesitated to curtail privileges which are the glory and one of the chief safeguards of our institutions in order to curb the erratic propensities of such an irresponsible body as the opposition under the leadership of Mr. Borden. The people will on the 26th of October have the opportunity to pronounce judgment, and we venture to predict with absolute confidence that as a result of that judgment the necessity of adopting the closure in the Canadian Parliament will be postponed for a considerable time to come.

BRITISH COLUMBIA'S REPRESENTATIVES.

The one feeble charge laid against the representatives of British Columbia in the late Parliament is that they neglected to support Premier McBride in his claim for better terms. The Prime Minister of Canada is also charged with opposing the claims of the province. It is a matter of record that representatives of the Liberal party were the first to raise the question of more liberal treatment of the province by the federal government. With reasonable requests were either completely ignored or treated with contempt at Ottawa as long as there was a Conservative government in power. When the province was represented in Parliament exclusively by Conservatives not a single one of these members raised his voice in advocacy of our reasonable, righteous demands. It is not necessary to point out that British Columbia remained in a condition of business torpor during the eighteen long years of the former regime. Every citizen of the province who has been a resident for any considerable length of time knows it.

SPEAKS FOR ZAM-BUK

Magistrate Perry, of Goldfields, E.C., believes in making a "good thing known." Writing of Zam-Buk, the great household balm, he says:—"After a very fair trial I have proved Zam-Buk eminently satisfactory. The magistrate is quite right. Every home needs Zam-Buk! Unequalled for cuts, burns, bruises, eczema, blood poisoning and all skin diseases. All stores and druggists sell it at 50 cents a box. Every business institution in the province suffered from this indifference of our representatives and of the government. They have only to compare the conditions of the past few years and of to-day with the circumstances of the dead past to appreciate it. They have only to look at the works which are accomplished facts and to estimate the splendid promise for the future to determine whether the charges made are well founded. The province is rapidly being opened up by the construction of railways running through almost every part of it. Our farmers and fruit growers have been provided with markets, and the means of reaching these markets. The lead mining industry has been stimulated by the lead bounty, by the development of coal mines which supply coke for provincial smelters. The net result is unexampled activity upon every hand. Merchants and manufacturers and their employees have all shared in the business thus created. They have profited mutually by it. The provincial treasury is overflowing as a consequence of it. That is one form, and a most beneficial form, in which better terms have been given. And it is due primarily to the influence of our representatives in Parliament. It constitutes an unanswerable reply to the charge that our representatives have been neglectful of our true interests—that they have not advocated our legitimate claims in the House of Commons. We believe the electors realize that our interests have been as diligently presented to the government as they could have been set forth by any company of men, and we are confident also that, after duly weighing the circumstances, Messrs. Ross, Curtis, the Liberal candidate in New Westminster (whether he be Kennedy or Jardine), McInnes, Sloan, Smith and Templeman will be returned on October 26th by handsome majorities. They are entitled to such an appreciation of their efforts on behalf of the province.

JUST FOOLISHNESS.

There is surely a lamentable poverty of political capital at the command of the Conservative party in this province when a puerile attempt is made to drag the visit of the Scottish agriculturists into the realm of party politics. We are told the short time allotted the North Countrymen in their visit to this district is but a sample of the treatment given the province by the federal government. As if the federal government had anything to do with arranging the itinerary of the party. The gentlemen came to Canada not as immigration agents or to spy out the land upon their own behalf, but in order to acquire information or knowledge that might be of service to them in their own country and in their own special business. They had heard of the up-to-date, scientific method of agriculture carried on in Canada as a result of the establishment by the governments of the Dominion and of some of the provinces of agricultural colleges. It was to observe what had been accomplished as a result of the teachings of these institutions that the Scottish agriculturists came to Canada. We do not know whether they were sent out under the auspices of the British government or of some of the agricultural associations in Scotland. But the Dominion government received them as its guests and left them in the hands of its officials. It did not attempt to interfere with their movements when in Canada. They were left to pursue their own course, although it is reasonable to assume that they sought counsel in regard to their journeyings from some persons qualified to give sound advice. As one of the party explained to a reporter of the Colonist when here, they were busy men, Canada is a big country, and they had already been away from home and their business longer than was desirable in their own interests. They regretted that they could not stay longer in Victoria. And they were compelled to hurry back. The probability is that they had the same thing to tell every interviewer they were brought in contact with. That is all there is in the silly charge that British Columbia was discriminated against by the Dominion government in the matter.

PACIFIC LEAGUE SCHEDULE STAYS

LOCAL ASSOCIATION

ENTERS A PROTEST

Does the Lord's Day Act Bar Sunday Games? Asked at Meeting.

To all intents and purposes for this season at least the question of Sunday football has been settled and the three matches will be played. If teams are available, subject to a severe protest from the executive of the association to be sent to Secretary Ellis at Vancouver at once. Victoria decided last night to stay in the Pacific Coast league and to play the schedule, and if it is found that teams are unwilling to play the three Sunday games at Seattle, Ladysmith and Nanaimo these games will be forfeited under protest and dates for them asked towards the close of the season. It will follow if they are not played that the dates will not be awarded except on another Sunday so in that event Victoria will have no unofficial consolation of the credit for all matches won, and if they are not at the head of the list through the forfeiting of the three games, locally, they will be judged as losers. The Pacific Coast league will be recognized on the Sunday basis at all.

Considerable astonishment was caused at last night's meeting held at Victoria West by a statement made officially by Alex Locksley, president of the league, that the Anglican and Presbyterian clergymen of Nanaimo were in favor of Sunday football. Mr. Locksley told the delegates that he had learned from the clergymen last Sunday that they were in accord in Nanaimo with the playing of matches there on Sunday. The stand taken by the clergymen of the Anglican and Presbyterian churches in Nanaimo was known publicly that games were mooted for the Victoria eleven on Sunday in the seven were entitled to the recreation, and that while the men are good churchgoers and attenders of service in the morning and the afternoon they saw no harm to them spiritually or morally in the playing of football on Sunday afternoons. Mr. Locksley announced that since it had been known publicly that games were mooted for the Victoria eleven on Sunday he had been stopped on the street by clergymen and representatives of religious bodies in regard to it and that he had told them the facts of the case and that one protest had already been entered on the matter.

A delegate present last night questioned the legality of the proposed games coming under the Lord's Day act, at least in as far as a charge was made at the gates for admission. Several of the delegates spoke against Sunday football from the standpoint of public example, and were immediately challenged with the hunters, fishermen and Rugby players, who are out every Sunday. It was finally decided that the games should be played as far as possible even if the team to play the three Sunday matches was considerably weakened by the scruples of some of the best players, and if a subject he can notify the executive and his name will be taken from the list for that day. The question of grounds was also before the meeting and the J. B. A. representative announced that when the deal between the B. C. Electric Company and the J. B. A. for control of the Oak Bay grounds was put through the football club would want twenty-five per cent of the gate. The question at once arose as to whether the James Bay Association would become an important place as a railway centre and in connection with the Skeena River transportation. The question of the immediate construction of a trail from Copper City to Telqua up the Copper river is now being urged upon the local government and is likely to be built. With that point at which the transfer will be made from the Skeena river to the trail or during the winter months will be the distributing point for goods brought in by the Kootenai road. J. S. Heal, Jr., one of the early settlers in the Bulkley Valley, is at present in the city. He says the feeling in the north is strongly in favor of the building of the Copper River trail.

GREENEAL ARRIVES

AT WILLOWS TRACK

Holder of World's Record Leads St. James String to Quarters.

Club Formed and Committee to Meet Monday to Plan Runs.

Led by Greeneal, the stallion that holds the world's record over a mile and one-sixteenth, the advance guard of the St. James' string of race horses, eight in number, yesterday afternoon arrived at the race track, being the first of the visiting horses to take up their quarters for the coming races, and located in boxes fifteen to twenty-two on the far side of the ground. The record holder at the head of the string was put through the turf, led by Jockey Jim Collins, and was shown his spacious home to be for the next ten days. The handsome animal, apparently well aware of his great importance, entered the box and looked around with the eye of a connoisseur that had to occupy many temporary quarters, and apparently satisfied, at once settled down for the season. Greeneal is owned by James Wheatcroft, proprietor of St. James' Island, and owner of the St. James' racing stable. At the recent Seattle meeting, the game little horse showed a distance of one and one-sixteenth miles in the lively time of one minute forty-four and two-fifths seconds, thereby establishing a world's record. Mr. Wheatcroft intends to race the horse for all he is worth next week and his running will prove a hard nut for the other visitors to crack. The other horses comprising the advance party of the St. James' string are: Maid of Gotham, Shirley Rosemore, Marquise Randolph, Hasty Agnes, Bye Bye the second, Lotus Eater and Anderson. The remainder will arrive at the end of the week, and will be in charge of Trainer Lou Marion.

Accompanying the string there is enough luggage to supply a family starting housekeeping, and several articles that the family would consider unnecessary, among which are several cases of medicine and enough surgical apparatus to equip a miniature hospital. Each horse is supplied with its own restaurant utensils, while in the way of food there are several sacks of delicacies, the products of the St. James estate. The record breaker travels with an extensive wardrobe done up in various bundles, and comprising classy-looking night and day rugs. A special department looked after by Valet Collins is the equine's toilet requisites of face creams, skin foods, liniments and leather and steel ornaments of fifty people. Bedding, liniments, toilet brushes, and a host of sundries sufficient to fill two heavy drays are comprised in the inventory of necessities that go to the up-keep of the famous horse.

Box No. 19 had several admiring visitors yesterday afternoon when it became known down town that the handsome horse had arrived. Greenal obligingly circled round the loose box for the benefit of admiring visitors and appeared to have a kind of sense of the flattering remarks that were passed around.

The record breaker went over the track this morning in company with others in the string and took a smart breather at the rear of the track opposite the boxes. The other horses were exercised but no fast times were attempted and only sufficient work was attempted to keep the horse in form. Leo Gangel and Jim Collins are the two boys who will ride for the St. James stable next week, and Gangel being the premier jockey, will have the mounts on Greenal.

COPPER CITY GIVES EXCELLENT PROMISE

New Townsite in North Now Put on the Market.

In another column of the Times appears the announcement that lots in Copper City are now on sale. Time and again the importance of the site selected as the location of the latest city in the north has been brought to the attention of the public and W. J. Saunders, of this city undoubtedly made a wise selection when he decided to make that the location of a townsite. Situated at the head of the Kitimat branch of the G. T. P., the town of Copper City will come into prominence at once. The branch of the Pacific Northern and Omnica, for which a subsidy has been granted by the Dominion government and which may therefore be expected to be built at an early date, should have its starting point at Copper City and proceed to the Telqua mines from that point so that Copper City should become an important place as a railway centre and in connection with the Skeena River transportation.

The question of the immediate construction of a trail from Copper City to Telqua up the Copper river is now being urged upon the local government and is likely to be built. With that point at which the transfer will be made from the Skeena river to the trail or during the winter months will be the distributing point for goods brought in by the Kootenai road. J. S. Heal, Jr., one of the early settlers in the Bulkley Valley, is at present in the city. He says the feeling in the north is strongly in favor of the building of the Copper River trail.

HARRIERS GET DOWN TO ACTIVE BUSINESS

Club Formed and Committee to Meet Monday to Plan Runs.

The junior harriers of the Y. M. C. A. held a meeting last night at the rooms organized for the season. Phys. Director Pindlay was in the chair, and officers for the season were elected as follows: Hon. president, R. W. Clarke; president, Frank Baylis; secretary-treasurer, C. Baylis; captain, A. McKisack; vice-captain, Walter Sproule; executive committee, C. Betterton, G. Kiddle and E. Vale.

The chairman announced that dressing accommodation for the runners had been secured at the Gorge, and that it was proposed to commence all runs from that locality, which idea he thought would meet with general approval of the members themselves. The membership fee was fixed at 50 cents. Other minor details were attended to, and a committee meeting set down for Monday night next at 8 o'clock, when the drafting of the constitution, by-laws and winter's programme would be arranged.

HAPPY THOUGHT.

A lady writing from Ireland says:—"I want to see my sister's baby, who was very ill indeed. She had been up for night after night without undressing; he was crying all the time as with some internal pain. The doctor told her he could do nothing except put him in a warm bath, which gave him a little ease for the time being."

"I thought of STEEDMAN'S SOOTHING POWDERS which I used for my own children; and next day I sent some to my sister, who gave the child half a powder according to directions. For the first time for a fortnight she and the baby, and, in fact, all the household, got a good night's sleep, and the little fellow has continued to improve ever since."

These powders do not contain poison, gently on the bowels, thus relieving feverish heat and preventing fits, convulsions, etc.
