Re-examined by the Solicitor-General: I to the jary in such a way as he thought will state positively what was the cause of his death. I came to the conclusion that he died of exhaustion. I would not consider my opinion that he died of the injury retainment. Too much cannot be said in is evident that both the suspects took a the jury that death resulted from the injury smoke, but don't know whether he obeyed the lungs adhering to the chest wal', the thus inflicted. The first witness called was me. I ordered him to keep his bed. About layers of the pleura covering the lungs and Desmond and that the latter stauck him in 15th Sept he began to feel pain in his neck the layer lining the chest wall adhering op self-defence they must acquis him.
