MOTHER PLEADS FOR DAUGHTER. Mrs. Berry, mother of the girl Beasle Goldworthy who along with Ethel Snodgrass is under remand for walking the streets at night, was at the court this morning for the purpose of trying to secure the release of her daughter, who is only seventeen years old. Magistrate Ritchie was sitting as judge of the civil court so nothing could be done. Mrs. Berry says she has had a letter from her daughter Beasle, who is in the jail, asking Mrs. Berry to come and speak a good word for her, and promising not to walk the streets any more.

DROVE THROUGH KING SQUARE. Two Norwegians who are not quite conversant with the police regulations in this city, caused considerable excitement the other night by driving through King square. They had a nice rig hired from S. T. Golding and about seven o'clock turned off Charlotte street into King square. In the most unconcerned manner they drove through the square making a careful turn about the fountain and finally leaving the square at the corner near St. Malachi's Hall.

THEIR PRESTIGE FAR-REACHING. Miss Julia Dann has been selected to fill the position of stenographer for the Auxiliary Fire Alarm Co. of Boston.

Miss Denn secured this position through a letter of introduction from the situation department of the Currier Business University, Ltd., to the Boston agency.

FOUL PLAY SAYS BETH McLEOD.

Defeated Pugilist Says He Was Unfairly Treated.

Declares Sullivan Fouled Him Repeatedly and Referee Knew It--What Jack Powers Has to Say.

Beth McLeod is very sore today over the unfair treatment he says he received at Victoria Row last night. He indignantly accuses his opponent of fouling repeatedly and openly charges the referee with purposely allowing the foul work to continue in spite of repeated protests. Hazen Campbell, McLeod's trainer, emphatically backs him up in this and intimates broadly that the result of the bout was decided on before either of the men entered the ring.

"Why," said McLeod to a Star man this morning, "I got the dirty end of it almost from the start. If I'd have been twice as good as Sullivan I'd have had no show. I tried to fight fair and did fight fair right through but Sullivan fouled me time and again right under the referee's nose and used every dirty little ring trick an old fighter knows but Powers never said a word to him.

"We had agreed to break clean," said McLeod in answer to a question as to the nature of the fouling, "and from the second round right through sixteen punches he kept fouling me in the break away almost every time. He used either hand openly after the referee would call 'break' and landed some of his most effective punches that way. I appealed to the referee but he paid no attention. My second also protested and got only abuse for the matter. Even Chief Clark who was near the ring called 'Powers' attention to the fouling but it made no difference. Then again Sullivan hit me once hard below the belt and when I spoke to Powers he said he hadn't seen it."

"Asked why Mr. Powers should show favoritism to the victor," McLeod said: "Powers is no friend of mine. You can put that down in good big letters. He'd sooner see me lose than win any time, and for all I know he probably had his money bet on Sullivan. Anyway, he didn't give me a fair fight. He let me know he was allowed he stopped the bout when he had no business to. Why, I was nearer out in the second round than I was in the first round Sullivan in a break-away hit me McLeod. He at once warned him that if he did it again he would be disqualified. Sullivan after that fought fair. Chief Clark called his attention to the hitting in break-aways. The order he gave the men was that they should break clean on the word. This Mr. Powers said was done in all but one case, when the blow was an accident and all he did was to warn Sullivan.

Mr. Powers says that he counted McLeod out and that McLeod could not have any kick coming about the stopping of the bout in the sixth round. Chief Clark speaking this morning of last night's boxing match, said it was an admirably conducted affair. As is well known the chief is very fair to all and he keeps strictly to the rules, as the chief knew the game thoroughly, and was good enough for any of the boxers in this town--even now.

Magistrate Ritchie was late in taking his seat this morning and the court waited patiently for half past nine until ten o'clock before the business of the Police Court could be begun but when his honor did arrive he made short work of the three prisoners awaiting attention. One was an ordinary drunk, another, George Hanney by name, was found lying and lurking in an I. C. R. box car before three this morning and whilst Frederick Reed pleaded not guilty to stealing a coat from John Daley, a boarder at the Hotel Edward on King square.

Without any more ado, and within three minutes of taking his seat, his honor remanded all three men who consequently it is presumed will have to wait until tomorrow before learning their fate.

Reed is quite a notorious character in St. John. He was arrested yesterday afternoon by Sgt. Caples and officer Totten on a complaint from the owner of the stolen coat. When arrested he was very drunk, and the hullabaloo he made at the North end lockup kept the officers busy for some time in trying to quiet him.

This morning he seemed considerably sobered down as he sat on the prisoners' bench.

MAY KILL THE TREES. General complaint has been made that the trees about the fountain in King square will die as the conditions are now so that water cannot get to the roots. These shade trees that make a pretty circle around the fountain were originally protected by an iron railing that was taken away and an attempt made to keep a narrow walk about the fountain and trees. This did not succeed, and a few weeks ago the whole circle outside the fountain basin was asphalted, so that there is no possibility of the soil about the roots of the trees being moistened.

The fourteen year old boy who ran away from his relatives in the North End has not yet returned. The boy's name is George Kane not O'Neill as reported.
