

V. MAY hath XXXI Days. 1791.

ODE ON THE SPRING.

I.
STERN winter now gives way to spring,
 The smiling season comes
 Array'd with ev'ry beauteous hue;
 Now balmy zephyrs are on wing,
 The birds melodious accents sing,
 And all the heav'ns are overspread
 with blue;
 Nature's beauties now appear;
 To charm the ravish'd eye;
 And each production of the year
 In pleasing order lie.

Now vernal rains refresh the vivid
 bow'rs,
 And add fresh fragrance to the springing flow'rs.

II.
 From ev'ry copse, and nodding
 grove,
 The tuneful blackbird and the thrush Attune their mellow throats to love,
 And sport about their fav'rite bush;
 In heav'nly concert join the numrous choir, And
