Origin of Term Maverick.

A group of Texas cattlemen had met in the cafe of a downtown hotel after having disposed of their cattle at a profitable figure at the stock-yards, and the conversation had gradually drifted upon topics connected with the range, says the Denver Times. The men were in a comfortable frame of mind, and some of the stories of happenings on the borders of the Llano Estacado were of a startling order. The subject of "northerners" had been exhausted, and there was a lull in the conversation.

"I'll bet there isn't anyone in this bunch that knows how the term 'maver-rick' originated," spoke up one of the cattlemen, laying down his wide-brimmed hat in an argumentative manner. Someone suggested one origin, and someone else another, but they did not appeal to the man who had challenged the knowledge of his associates.

"You are all wrong," he said, "and if you will listen a minute I'll tell you.
You know the term is applied where cattle of various owners promiscuously mingle on the common range; that is to say, where fencing is not the rule. The cows bear the brand of their owner, and the calves are known by the brands of the cows. Calves are branded as soon as found, but invariably some are not found and branded in time. The calf, becoming independent, soon leaves the cow and sets up for himself. If un-branded, who is the owner? Who can tell? It becomes impossible to decide the question of ownership. But right here one thing does happen—the un-branded beast adopts a name and is known as a 'maverick,' meaning 'no-body's calf.' Now how did—how could—this term originate? Why, simple enough—through the inattention of a cattle owner by the name of Maverick, who was known in a wide region of the Southwest Texas for not branding more than one-third of his calves and leaving the other two-thirds to become the common property of the range."

The Hon. Samuel A. Maverick, a citizen of San Antonio, Tex., was, during 1845, temporarily residing at Decrows Point, on Matagorda Bay. During that year a neighbor, being indebted to Mr. Maverick in the sum of $1,200, paid the debt in cattle, transferring 400 animals at $3 a head. Cattle were cheap in those days, the hides only being cashable in foreign markets. Mr.
Maverick did not want the cattle, but saw it was a case of cattle or nothing, and he passively received them, and left them in charge of a colored family, nominally slave but essentially free, while he and his family returned to San Antonio. Here, as before, under the distinguished management of the colored family, who really were not to blame, as they had no interest in the outcome, the cattle were left to graze, to fatten, to multiply, and to wander away.

Mr. Maverick was absorbed in the reflection that he was not incumbered by either the cattle or their managers.
Right here, a cattleman would say, "You needn't spin the balance of that yarn. I see the upshot," but I shall continue to the end, if it takes a dozen bronchos."

The speaker paused a moment and looked at his listeners, but they were attentive, and he continued:
"About one-third of the calves were branded, and the branding iron was kept so cold and rusty that in 1856 the entire planter brand was estimated at only 400 head, the original number. To the ingenious-minded, the explanation will occur when it is stated that the branding of the 'mavericks' was perfectly sparing those days, although the occupation had not been distinctly named. To restate it, the cows were brand ornaments, the calves were unadorned. Becoming independent and straying off, the calves soon acquired the requisite ornamentation."

Now, the neighbors shrewdly sur-mized these calves to be Maverick's, and so they called them 'mavericks'—but did they continue to recognize them as such? Ah, no; they hastened to burn into their tender hides their own brands, and the beasts were Maverick's (mavericks) no longer. No owner could know his own cattle on the range, except by the brand, and so the first brand settled the question of ownership. Thus the un-branded stray calves in those days were called 'mavericks,' for they were most likely Maverick's, at least in that neck of the woods.

The name took and spread, and filled an aching void, for to-day the cowboy would be lonesome if he couldn't call a 'maverick' a 'maverick.'

About the year 1856, after eleven years of experience in the cattle business, Mr. Maverick sold the entire brand, 400 head, to A. Teutant Beauregard, a brother of the distinguished general. Mr.
Beauregard, however, paid him $6 a head, and Mr. Maverick retired from the venture, thoroughly experienced against similar investments, but with an apparent profit of 100 per cent., and the unique distinction of having his name bestowed upon a very dear friend of the human race. Mr. Maverick had a distinguished record in Texas. He was a member of General Sam Houston's army, was elected a member from San Antonio of the first congress of the republic, and was captured by the Mexican army. After a life full of business, trust and adventure, he died in 1870 in the midst of his family."

GOSSIP.

Gentlemen,—I have given Tuttle's Elixir a trial and find it is the best horse medicine on the market. I have used it for stiff joints and bruises, and it is all right. I would like one of your books.

Yours truly,
