As things of beauty and masterplaces of art, we at once placed the Stations of the Cross in the formany at a cost of st. 600.

The colors are soft and pleasing to the eye and in no case too claborate. But what brought form our expression of admiration, was the parking the theorem and a half feet high, with the lower of the state of the figures and the lift like expression on the features. As we looked at one after you will have some idea of this magnificen church.

The opening of the church was attended with all that pomp of ceremony, for which the Roman Catholic Courch is so remarkable. Many prominent men of both the laity and the clercy from the surrounding country had come to wine-as and take part in this memorable event. The large church was filled to the utmost, as the news of the opening had travelled far and wide. The venerable cortege proceeded from the patish house, and as the proceeded from the patish house, and as the grand and imposing ceremony which is part of the Rubries, and which always facinizes the mird, from the fact that we witness and hear prayers and hymns which are a medium between earth and heaven. After all had cettered the church a few positions of the Rubries were grown through and then the Mass begins. The tuily realizes our ideal in siza, beauty and gen-al excellence. Once again we join with the congregation of St Mary's in congratulations upon their accomplished effort and in prayer for their future welfare, March 3, 1878.

Now as a member of the Order of the Resurrection, he was called upon to enter his field of labor. St. Jerome's Coolege was rapidly progressing, and was in ned of able and erergestemen of good and faithful teachers to see to its interests. Father Koopfer from the day of his return from Rome, to the present day, has labored incessantly, and has always been an active member of the facults of St. Jerome's its interests. Father K. loopfer from the day of hisroture from Rome, to the present day, has labored incessantly, and has always been an active member of the faculty of St. Jerome's College. He, through his untring efforts, has done all in his power to p omote its interests. As a professor Father Kleepfer is kind and onlicent; as a friend, benevolent and sincerer. Not only was he unside as a member of the teaching staff, but also a shepherd of a flock. In 1881 he was appointed pastor of the Preston congregation, where he labored for two years Thou as the death of Rev. I. Funcken which occurred Jan. 39, 1890, he was appointed rector of St. Mary's church at Berlin, which station he holds at the present day. The office of Provincial of the Order of the Resurrection in America was also made vacant by the death of Father Funcken, and Father Kleepfer was appointed his successor, which position he retained until two years ago. Daring his time as Provincial, he made two trips to Rome in the interests of the Order.

Notwithstanding his assistance rendered the college and the community his labors in the parish have been untilting. He has continually serviced to supply the wants of his parishioners spuring no efforts on his part. The great hope and desire with which he was insulied from the first day of his appointent as recor was the building of a new hourd. His parish was continually increasing and he say the neces sity of a new and tag in mose of worship, and for this he did not labor in value. His prayers have been heard and answord. He now sees his noces fulfilled, his desires granded, and the shoot his day for his he did not labor in value. His prayers have been heard and answord. He now sees his noces fulfilled, his desires granded, and the choice has the parish or the same day as the opening of the new tempt of the own of the character of the character of the same day as the opening of the new tempt of the same day of the samiverary of his ordination, yet it is the same yets, and it was his carnest desire to cele presented him with a solid sliver, gold-plated challes of Roman style, beautif ally ornamented with hand outraving. The gift of his nephews and nices was an olegant set of sliver, cold-plated cructs. One niceo presented him with a beautiful sanctuary lamp of Gothe style. The tokens of the altar boys and school crifted on were expressed in the presentation of a very expensive missal valued at $35. Some of his class-mate-and public gave him three hand some sacciuary on airs valued at $400 several well disposed (thends of the parish present dhim with purses, while the donation of the natish in general is their generosity and liberality in reducing the church debt.

The remembrance of his day will always be cherished by the paster of $5. Mary's congrigation. A bright future lays before him. He has merited for himself the good will and love of his parishioners and now happy in the rew church, lives to reap the harvest of his life's both.
