Beneath the budding lilacs A little maiden sighed -The first flower in her garden That very morn had died.

A primrose tuft, transplated, And watered every day, One yellow bud had opened, And then it pined away.

I thought, as that child's sorrow Rose wailing on the air, My heart gave forth an echo, Long bound in silence there.

For though time brings us roses, And golden fruits beside, We've all some desert garden Where Life's first primrosa died!

Thoughts on the Present State of the World.

(Continued.) The progress of popular opinions on the subjec of civil government will sooner or later extend to Austria, which seems at present to maintain its hold on despotic power with all the stubborn tenacity of a death-grasp, as if impressed with the conviction that its time is short. The Austrian Emp for is surrounded with practical difficulties of no ordinary character, which menace him at every point. He scarcely dare offend the Russian Autocrat, from whom he received such material aid in suppressing the Hungarian revolt and whose further assistance he might soon require for a similar purpose. Yet he has reason to dread the consequences to himself and to his own Empire, were so powerful, so ambitious, and so politically unscrupulous a sovereign as Nichoiss to overthrow Turkey and place himself in immediate contiguity to the dominions of Austria. In the part Nicholas recently took to maintain the integrity of the Austrian empire, he was doubtiess carrying out a deep laid policy to acquire an influence in Europe, which, when be should Judge the fitting time had come to embroil Turkey in war and pounce on Constantinople, he might turn to advantage, either by securing cooperation or by inducing neutrality, thereby rendering the Ottoman empire, at a future, but not far distant juncture, a more easy prev.-Persons at a distance saw through the designs of Russia, and failed not, in warning tones, to predict the result. TEMPERANCE JUBILEE .- The friends of temperance in this city had a glorious jubilee last evening at the Temperance Temple. N. Gay street. Addresses were delivered by S. Morris Cochrane, J. McKim Duncan, and other eloquent friends of the cause, to utmost capacity, and among whom were a large number of ladies. The Blues' Band was in attendance and enlivened the comstrains. A number of songs and glees were also sung by an excellent vocal association. Altogether, it was a fitting celebration, and cause of humanity, and that too in the face which would have defeated almost any party or any cause save that which they had emblazoned upon their banner .- Balt. Clipper.

Schething New .- Israel Higgins, of Saem, N. J., has invented a new elbow for stove-pipes. It is made of cast iron, and is cast in two parts, upon which are small flanges that are united firmly together by means of small bolts. The object is to make an elbow both cheaper and more durable than the 18,746 common one.

A TUNNEL THROUGH THE ALPS .- The 2,500 000 French engineers are basily employed in perfecting the bold project of excavating a 2.682,605 3,125,401 tunnel under the Alps, to connect the Pied-1852 montese railway with those of France. It is proposed to pass through the rountains from Susa and Bardoneche to Modena, in 42.062 Savoy, by a line ten miles shorter than over Mount Cenis. It is to be eight miles in 4,458 length and a mile below the highest point of 26,000 the pass. The estimated cost is a million 4,717 and a half pounds sterling. An excavating machine, somewhat similar to the Hoosac borer, has been contrived by Chevalier Maus, the interests of social and commercial interto exercise a most beneficial influence upon on earth and good-will among men. By the completion of the tunnel the hitherto almost impassable barrier which separates Piedmont from her neighbours will be removed; and lovers of the picturesque will doubtless still prefer to encounter the keen air, the rough roads, and sublime scenery of a passage over the mountain to the more rapid transit of the railroad car.

THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE,-The words of the English language are a compound of several foreign languages. The English language may be looked on as a compilation, both in words and expressions, of various dialects. Their origin is from the Saxon language. Our laws were derived from the Norman, our military terms from the French. our scientific names from the Greek, and our stock of nouns from the Latin, through the tive is taken from other dialects.
